RADIO LOOMS AS VAST FACTOR IN NATION'S LIFE

Big Corporations Act to Simplify It.

BY ROBERT M. LEE.

The future of radio—a forecast:

1. Fifty powerful broadcasting stations controlled as a unit will stretch from coast to coast, giving simultaneous service. The present 550 or more stations, which fill the air with a wild medley of sounds and cost a king's ransom every year, will be eliminated.

2. Control of light rays may make possible the transmission of pictures, even to views of actual happenings in progress. And two persons may carry on a direct conversation by wireless over great distances.

3. Centralization will be so perfect that the common desk telephone in the home will be a combination of telephone and radio receiving set, and a receiving set may be carried with no more inconvenience than a wrist watch.

Field Held Limitless.

All of the things above are not merely possible; they have reached such a stage of probability that four big corporations with assets of millions of dollars have gone in head over heels. They are not ignoring their already great enterprises but they are recognizing the almost limitless field of wireless by clothing it with costly equipment, high salaried engineers and by the acquisition of patent rights calculated to expand it into the commonplace of the future.

A couple of years ago a representative of the Westinghouse Electric company came to THE TRIBUNE editorial offices.

"If you will let us install some temporary apparatus," he said, "we will transmit through a loud speaking device a musical number played by an orchestra."

His Offer Endorsed.

This ridiculous statement fell on indifferent ears. He was told, with a yawn, to go ahead with his foolishness, but please don't turn down the [illegible] ing."

That was yesterday. Yesterday radio broadcasting was so astonishing that newspapers printed large pictures of families sitting about the drawing room listening to opera by wireless telephone.

Today the radio receiving set is a commonplace in the hands of more than 10,000,000 persons. It is estimated that there are 500,000 receiving sets in operation every night in the New York metropolitan area.

Chicago Stations' Fame.

Three broadcasting stations in Chicago added fortune letters from their listeners. Responses were totaled at 328,410. The Zenith-Edgewater Beach station alone received 170,000 responses. It is estimated that one listener out of fifty took the trouble to respond. This presupposes a listening total of nearly 9,000,000 persons. There were responses from Texas, Alaska, Cuba, Central America, Bermuda and Canada.

Amateur broadcasters were only as [illegible] mber of these that desire [illegible] the sound of one man's voice. Is there is anything in making the world safe for democracy it may be the tool is radio. It won't be long before a convincing, silver tongued orator may be whooping it up in his campaign for president of the United States of the world.

"Big Four" Controls.

And it isn't such a long step from speculation to fact. This brings in the four big companies mentioned above. The association is called the Big Four. They are the American Telephone & Telegraph company, the General Electric company, and the Westinghouse company, plus the Radio Corporation of America. The last named is the sturdy offspring of the quartet.

The American Telephone & Telegraph company, being already in control of all wire communication, by wireless, reserves for its share of the four activities the manufacture of transmitting machinery through its subsidiary the Western Electric company and all commercial broadcasting; that is, all broadcasting or advertising [illegible] or anything for which a fee [illegible]

Two Kinds Receiving Sets.

The Westinghouse and General Electric companies propose to themselves the manufacture and marketing of receiving sets. They hold a monopoly on this branch of radio through certain controlling patents. They also operate certain broadcasting stations, but not for profit, [illegible] recognizing that a receiving set is worthless unless there is something to receive.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 15.—Gen. Charles G. Dawes of Chicago and Owen D. Young, New York attorney and chairman of the board of directors of the General Electric company, will be invited to represent the United States upon the proposed committee of experts to study balancing the budget and stabilizing money in Germany. The reparations commission made this announcement late this afternoon after studying information from America regarding acceptable candidates for the committee. The reparations commission told Col. James Logan, the American unofficial observer, that they intend to issue the invitation at a plenary meeting of all the reparations delegates soon.

PISTOL BARRAGE TRAPS YOUTHS ROBBING A FLAT

Police laid down a barrage of revolver shots late last night at the front and rear of the apartment building at 411 East 46th street to prevent the escape of two burglars in the flat of Leo E. Wolf, secretary of the Greenebaum Safe Deposit company.

E. R. Wolf discovered the burglars and telephoned the police, who surrounded the building. To frighten the burglars and prevent an attempt to flee, fire was opened from more than a dozen police revolvers. After the shooting two colored boys were found under a bed. They had packed jewelry and clothing in a suit case and were ready to leave when the police arrived. They gave their names as Chauncey Kidd, 237 East Fifth street, and James Clark, 2214 Indiana avenue. They admitted they had committed half a dozen burglaries recently.

85 DIE AS QUAKE ROCKS COLOMBIA

Towns Destroyed Along Ecuador Border.

BOGOTA, Colombia, Dec. 15.—[By the Associated Press.]—Many persons have been killed and a larger number injured by an earthquake which today destroyed two small towns in the region of Ipiales, near the Colombian-Ecuadorian frontier. Eighty-five dead have been recovered from the ruins of Cumbal, which, with the town of Chile, suffered most severely from the effects of the shocks, according to the reports thus far received.

Chile is situated on the slopes of the Chile volcano, to the eruption of which the present disaster is attributed. Among those who perished were the wife and father of the mayor of Cumbal.

Landslides Obstruct Roads.

The road from Cumbal to Ipiales is obstructed by great landslides and the full extent of the earthquake has not yet been learned. Numerous surrounding villages are believed to have been badly damaged, and a commission of government officials has been sent to inspect the affected zone. There are many homeless and there is a lack of food and shelter.

The earth shocks continue, but in milder form.

Heavy Shocks Felt.

Heavy earth shocks were felt along the southern frontier of Colombia, the village of Carlo Sama being destroyed. Pasto, Ipiales, Tuquerres and Ibarra were in the direct line of the earth tremors and were badly shaken. Latest reports say that serious damage was caused at Ipiales.

LEPER SLAYER MAY BE TRIED IN CAGE OF GLASS

New Orleans, La., Dec. 15.—Surgeon General Hugh Cumming of the United States public health service, in a letter today to Dr. Oscar Dowling, state health officer, offered to provide a glass cage in which to incarcerate George Zuanrecentre, Negro leader of the national lepreserium at Carville, La., while he is being tried here for murder. An electrical device for communicating with the Negro while undergoing examination was demanded by officials today.

A complete radio outfit for transmitting the voice of attorneys to the prisoner and his to the court and jurors is considered as a possibility.

SHIP SINKS OFF ATLANTIC COAST; 22 FEARED LOST

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 15.—Indications that there was heavy loss of life in the sinking of the Norwegian steamer Runa off Frying Pan shoals today is given in a wireless dispatch from the American steamship W. W. Mills tonight. The Mills picked up four survivors but heavy seas prevented attempts to rescue others. Coast guard vessels, including the Modoc, are on the way to the scene to attempt rescue.

A dispatch from the Mills tonight said:

"Steamer Runa foundered 4 a. m. Dec. 15. American steamer W. W. Mills has following survivors aboard: Second officer and carpenter, deck boy Anderson, Fireman O'Rourk, and mess boy. Proceeding to Sabine."

There are twenty-seven men in the crew of the Runa.

MEXICANS MASS ARMIES AS BIG BATTLES LOOM

Obregon to Carry War to Foes.

BULLETIN.

Vera Cruz, Dec. 15.—(By Associated Press.)—Revolutionary forces, according to El Dictamen, are in possession of Puebla, and trains already are running between Puebla City and this port. The capture of Puebla was effected by forces under Gen. Antonio Villareal.

BY JOHN CORNYN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Iraquato, Mexico, Dec. 14.—[Delayed.]—President Obregon left here at 10 o'clock today en route to Mexico City. Long trains of cavalry followed him. They will be used in the Vera Cruz campaign. It is expected that the federal and rebel forces will meet in battle as soon as the bridges to the front are repaired. The bridges probably will have to be repaired under fire.

GEN. OBREGON.

All day today additional heavy military trains continued to move to wards the front at Yurecuaro. Large numbers of army mules and horses arrived here today. Some will be sent to troops operating at Quertero and others to Atete, Vera Cruz, for the campaign against Gen. Sanches.

Obregon Maps Campaign.

President Obregon held a long conference with his military leaders to plan out a campaign in the state of Jallaco. In the afternoon the presidential train moved towards Yurecuaro, but was stopped at Montelecon because scouts reported that troops under Gen. Enrique Estrada had burned bridges on his front and flanks because he was not ready to meet the federal advance.

[P. & A. Photo.]

Rebels Rush Reinforcements.

Vera Cruz, Dec. 15.—[1:30 p. m.]—[By the United Press.]—Gen. Guadaloupe Sanchez, commanding rebel forces, has sent troops to reinforce the army of Gen. Gonzalez at Santa Lucrecia, where an important battle is believed pending. This announcement was made today by the De la Huerta press bureau, which also said:

The situation at San Marcos, where a rebel victory was claimed yesterday, was unchanged.

Obregon's forces were retreating in Puebla.

Gov. Lopez Lara of Tamaulipas surrendered and joined the De la Huerta forces, which now are preparing to attack federals in Tampico.

Puerto Mexico still is held by Obregon's troops.

President May Lead Army.

Mexico City, Dec. 14.—[By United Press.]—Delayed.—President Obregon was returning to the capital tonight. Extravagant rumors were in circulation [censored]. Mexico City remained calm. El Mundo says Senor Obregon is returning to assume direction of the offensive against the rebel army of Gen. Guadalupe Sanchez advancing from Vera Cruz.

At 9 a. m. today a government statement said the federal advance on Guadalajara, Jallaco, was commencing. The town of Ocotlan was reported occupied by the federals.

Another government statement said federal forces have driven the rebels from the small section of the state of Durango which they occupied.

Defeat Band of Villistas.

Laredo, Tex., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—A bulletin issued by the Mexican war department says Gen. Chao and Gen. Manuel Gutierrez, who headed a small band of Villistas, were killed in a skirmish with Mexican federal troops at Furrall, Chihuahua, on Wednesday afternoon.

Old Guard at Bay in Senate, Yields in House

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—The ancient adage that "the old guard dies but never surrenders" was upset in the house today. It continued to hold good in the senate.

The house "regulars" yielded to the demands of the insurgents, backed also by a considerable number of Democrats, and gave Representative John M. Nelson (Rep., Wis.) a place on the powerful rules committee, although this action seriously jeopardizes the "regular" control of the committee.

La Follette, Ill, Gets in Fight.

In the senate, however, the old guard stood firm in its support of Senator Cummins (Rep., Ia.) for chairman of the interstate commerce committee. Senator La Follette (Rep. Wis.) leader of the radical bloc, from his sick bed urged his followers to enter into a coalition with the Democrats Monday and bring about the election of Senator Smith (Dem., S. C.) as chairman of the committee, unless the old guard was willing to compromise on Senator Howell (Rep., Neb.) or Senator Cousens (Rep., Mich.).

The old guard apparently is in no mood to make such a compromise. Most of the insurgents had anticipated Senator La Follette's advice and acted accordingly.

Battle for a Principle.

"The progressive group in the senate," Senator La Follette said, "is vigorously opposing the election of Senator Cummins as chairman of the committee on interstate commerce, on a broad principle. The issue involved is the Esch-Cummins railroad law.

"In the last election, progressive voters overwhelmingly declared for the drastic revision or repeal of that law. In every state where that act was an issue, the senators who voted for it were retired to private life, and men were elected who are pledged for its repeal or drastic amendment. Freight rates on coal, agricultural products, and all other commodities are too burdensome to be longer borne by either producers or consumers.

"The progressives regard the last election as a clear mandate to enact without delay new and just railroad legislation.

Radicals "Can't Surrender."

"To have stood for Senator Cummins as chairman of the committee on interstate commerce would have been a surrender to the special interests concerned in the maintenance of the Esch-Cummins railroad law. During the last two years Senator Cummins has used his chairmanship to prevent amendment of this repudiated law. His reelection as chairman would have sanctioned a continuation of this policy of secret committee control to bury legislation which the people demand.

"Senator Howell and Senator Cousens are vigorous champions of public ownership of public utilities. The election of either to the chairmanship of the interstate commerce committee would be a clear and distinct victory for the progressives in the senate and the country.

"Should the old guard refuse to accept either, the election of Senator Smith, former chairman of the interstate commerce committee, and a man who voted against the Esch-Cummins law, would also be a clear cut victory.

Recovering from Grip.

"I have been confined to my home with a severe attack of grip, from which I am now recovering rapidly. I would not feel that I had discharged my full responsibility, however, if I did not make it clear that I am in full accord with the splendid stand which the progressives in the senate are making."

The selection of Mr. Nelson was made possible by the withdrawal of Representative Tilson [Rep., Conn.].

Mr. Nelson also gave the Republican leaders assurance that no attempt will be made to disrupt the house organization at this session.

The arrangement to accept Mr. Nelson was approved at a meeting of house Republicans by a vote of 138 to 3. The other Republican members of the rules committee will be Snell [N. Y.], chairman; Schall [Minn.] and Johnson [S. D.]. Holdover members are Burton [O.]; Bixler [Pa.], Moore [Ill.] and Scott [Mich.]. Democratic members will be Pou [N. C.], Garrett [Tenn.], Bankhead [Ala.], and O'Connor [N. Y.].

Representative Carl Chindblom [Rep., Ill.] gets the Illinois place on the ways and means committee. His place on the merchant marine committee will be taken by Mr. Reid [Rep., Ill.].

TRIED TO SNARE FISHER; WANTED ROSENWALD IN Big Offer Led to Panama Inquiry.

Leo Koretz, Chicago's "master confidence man," was seeking to interest Julius Rosenwald, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., to the tune of a million dollar investment in his Bayano Trust company when his plans were neatly kicked over by Judge Harry M. Fisher, it became known last night.

Koretz was highly esteemed in the financial community, it was explained. He sought always to appear in the soundest financial light. And he impressed upon his friends the boundless possibilities of his position to the extent that his negotiations with the most highly reputable men of the community had the apparent face value of honesty.

Insists on Investigating.

Under the plea of seeking the best legal advice for his growing establishment he sought out Judge Fisher. He began negotiations gently, sounding the judge on his attitude toward accepting the position of chief counsel for the Bayano concern. The salary was to be $75,000 a year. Koretz mentioned Julius Rosenwald as one of the prospective partners in his enterprise. He also mentioned that an additional retainer of $220,000 might be available to Judge Fisher should he look favorably on the offer to become counsel for the company.

Judge Fisher, upon hearing these gentle feelers, set in motion the investigation which resulted in the exposition. He told Koretz he might consider the matter, but he must be satisfied by an investigation of the Bayano properties. Koretz was caught in a corner. He tried to evade the issue, urged Judge Fisher to forego the investigation. Judge Fisher insisted. And Koretz blandly took the lead in the investigation and appointed a committee to carry this out.

Koretz May Flash Big Millions.

A report that the agents of the investigating committee had found another colony of the proof, being spun from its corruption to Tom Koretz from its corruption scandals in Colon, Canal Zone. The oil lands were found to be an alligator swamp.

Meanwhile Attorney Maurice Berkson, counsel for the receiver in bankruptcy proceedings against Koretz, uncovered new evidence tending to indicate the con man's peculations may top $16,000,000.

In digging through Koretz's records Mr. Berkson also found indications that at times Koretz masqueraded under the name of "Richard Hazard."

It is now suspected that it was under this latter alias that Koretz associated with a new woman being sought in the case, the woman who is believed to have superseded the mysterious "Mrs. Bronson" in the Ponzi's affections.

POSES AS RICHEST JEW

Last night for the first time Judge Fisher revealed the full story of Koretz's efforts to persuade him to become a leading figure in the "Bayano preferred" organization.

At no time though did Koretz make very clear to Judge Fisher the precise position the jurist was to occupy.

"As near as I could get at his idea," said the judge, "Koretz wanted me to be a kind of general advisor to the directors. Nominally, my title was to be general counsel, and I was to have special charge of the immense philanthropies Koretz claimed to be preparing to dispense."

"Koretz figured out that he was worth at least $100,000,000, and all of it, he would boast, in liquid assets," Judge Fisher added. "He implied that this made him the wealthiest Jew in America.

Jealous of Rosenwald.

"A kind of veiled undercurrent of jealousy toward the high position that Mr. Rosenwald holds in the Jewish race in America ran through Koretz's conversation. He even intimated once that eventually he would 'make Julius Rosenwald look like a piker' when it came to philanthropies. But Koretz never used those words. He was too reserved and dignified for that. But that was the meaning."

Judge Fisher said he first met Koretz in 1907, when he visited a small portion of his law office to the exclusion, then ostensibly a modest, struggling young lawyer, as well as engaged in his Arkansas rice ventures.

"The monthly rent of $32 was always promptly paid," said the judge.

"I lost direct track of Koretz after that until last May, though reports often came to me of how wealthy he was growing.

"Then, last May, he went [illegible] midst of the $250,000 Jewish charity fund drive when somebody happened to notice that Koretz had contributed only $15,000 to the fund.

"The contribution was considered small for one of Koretz's supposed wealth, and I was delegated to ask him for more. I called him up and asked for an appointment. He insisted that I and Mrs. Fisher come to dinner at his Evanston home. He called for us with one of his fine cars and afterwards drove us to Ravinia in the other.

"It was while we were enjoying an after dinner smoke in his luxurious home that he first approached me about coming with his 'firm.'

"'By the way, judge,' was the way he began, 'as I understand it, you have no means outside your $12,000 salary? Why, you can't even keep a car on that.'

Offers $25,000 Position.

"Then he said he would like to get somebody whose judgment he could absolutely rely upon to take an executive position with the Bayano company and intimated he had picked me. I merely thanked him and said no more.

"In July he invited Mrs. Fisher and myself again to dinner. This time he was a little more specific. He mentioned a $25,000 a year salary in an offhand manner, adding, 'We'll, of course, make it much more after you get started.' I told him I would consider the offer, but would have to make a first hand inspection of the Panama properties before giving a definite answer.

"'Of course,' he easily replied, 'we'll take a run down there together—say in October.'

"I admit I took the offer seriously, especially after a number of persons I discussed it with in confidence spoke so highly of Koretz and were so enthusiastic over the handsome dividends all investors appeared to be receiving.

OFFERS $220,000 CASH

"A short time later Koretz called me up to ask if I had made up my mind. I talked it over with him again in his office, and then he wanted to defer the Panama journey to November. But this time he made the additional offer of $500,000 in Bayano stock to go along with the salary. Said this stock was earning $50,000 a year. He said I needn't pay for the stock at all if I didn't want to. Said I could simply let the dividends gradually pay for it and that, of course, eventually the stock would be mine.

"I told him I was still considering his offer, but that I must first see that Panama oil land. When I insisted on this he said: 'Well, I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll give you $220,000 in cash, representing part value of your stock, and give it to you right now if you want it.'

"I told him that was fine, but that I must insist on the inspection trip.

"In the early fall I met Koretz by appointment at the St. Regis in New York. He was living there in the most beautiful hotel suite I have ever seen. It was the very last word in luxury and beauty, and was engaged by him permanently by the year, I have understood. He had a wonderful library there and insisted I take a book of travels from it home with me.

"When I broached the Panama inspection this time he feigned great enthusiasm. He said that he had chartered a ship and that seventy principal stockholders in Bayano, along with their families, would take the trip with us.

Credits Koretz's Imagination.

"That was really the extent of our talks about the going with his 'firm.' The next thing I knew Koretz had skipped and Bayano had blown up.

"As I look back now I have to credit Koretz with having a wonderful imagination. He could reel off by the hour all about the number of wells on his wonderful Bayano tract, the thousands of barrels per day they were gushing, the exact figures his pay roll came to daily.

"He claimed that the timber rights alone were yielding his company $25,000,000, and that he expected to realize $50,000,000 a year from Standard Oil [illegible].

Judge Fisher said that Koretz's imagination also became fired when discussing Palestine. His fevered brain became impressed with the belief that oil might also be found in the Holy Land.

"In that case," Judge Fisher said Koretz exclaimed on one occasion, "I would gladly spend a million to finance an oil producing company in Palestine. Then, if it panned out profitably, as it certainly would, I would simply take my own money out and turn the property over to the country."

QUIZZED ON KORETZ

Mrs. Salo Auerbach, who denies having been concerned with Chicago Ponzi's secret "love nest."

PANAMA NEVER HEARD OF WILY MR. LEO KORETZ

And His Big Bayano's Just a Swamp.

BY GERALD MARTIN.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Colon, Panama, Dec. 15.—Harry K. Boysen, brother of Louis K. Boysen, head of the real estate department of the First Trust and Savings bank of Chicago, who was sent here by Leo Koretz, the Chicago swindler, will reach New York on Wednesday on the Santa Marta. The others sent here by Koretz—Emil Kitsinger, who resigned as purchasing agent for Wilson & Co., packers, to associate himself with Koretz; Edward Mayer, who resigned as manager of the byproducts plant of Wilson & Co.; S. M. Zinner, an official of the National Beverage company; Henry Klein, former whisky merchant and son-in-law of the late Judge Philip Stein, and E. Smith, former chief accountant for Wilson & Co.—will arrive in New York Monday on the Santa Anna.

Koretz Unknown There.

The Panaman registrar, Gen. Benjamin Quintero, following a thorough search, failed today to find any record of the Bayano River Trust company or of Koretz, who is not known here. The Bayano river runs into the Pacific northeast of Panama City, and is an alligator infested swamp with timber growing in it. During the war considerable balsewood was shipped to the United States for airplanes, but the company handling the lumber did not make much money.

Nobody here has ever associated the Bayano river with oil, the only oil fields here being Sinclair's at Bocas, on the Atlantic coast, and the Texas company plant at Chiriqui, on the Pacific coast, both many miles from Bayano.

Residents here were astonished to learn that millions of dollars had been subscribed for the Bayano Trust company, and the investigators have returned feeling that they have been stung.

The Tivoli hotel states that Mr. Kitsinger and his friends chartered a launch to visit Bayano on Monday, but finally canceled it and booked passage for New York on the same day on the Santa Anna, boarding the steamer at Balboa and traversing the canal to Cristobal, where a cable was brought aboard as the ship was leaving, asking Mr. Boysen to remain and investigate the Espinosa proposition, another of Koretz' swindle schemes.

Boysen Goes to Panama City.

Following a conference in the cabin, Mr. Boysen canceled his reservation after the others had taken up a collection for his expenses. Mr. Boysen went to Panama City and saw Enrique de la Guardia, agent for Paul Espinosa, wealthy cattle man, president of the jockey and golf clubs, and property owner. Señor Espinosa is in Europe.

Señor de la Guardia referred him to Mr. Montgomery, manager here for the Standard Oil company, and who has charge of the fields in Ecuador and Colombia, who resides at the Tivoli hotel.

Mr. Boysen inquired as to the Bayano and other Panaman oil prospects, and the reply peeved him, so he returned on the Santa Marta Wednesday for New York.

The investigators seemed angry, the management of the hotel states, and held conferences in Mr. Kitsinger's room, who paid all the bills. Their five days spent here inquiring as to the oil prospects disgusted them, for it showed that the Bayano investment was a swindle.

DRIVER FALLS OFF TRUCK; KILLED.

Ernest Benning, a driver for the Sterling Lumber Co., living at Kensington avenue and Lake Calumet, was instantly killed yesterday when he fell from the top of a truck loaded with bales of shavings.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR.

Beats Electric or Gas.

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke, or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil). The inventor, L. P. Johnson, 699 W. Lake st., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.—Adv.

SEEK 2 CHICAGO WOMEN FRIENDS OF OIL JUGGLER

Prosecutor Hopes to Get New Evidence.

Seeking "the" woman in the case of Leo Koretz, investigating officials have uncovered traces of at least two, both said to be wives of victims of the "Panama oil bubble." There have been $1,000 parties, clandestine trips to pleasure resorts, and proof that much of the $5,000,000 which Chicago's super con man took from his friends and relatives in the course of a dozens years went to the ancient triumvirate of wine, women and song.

Delving into this aspect of the case, Stanley Klerkowski, assistant state's attorney in charge of the inquiry, yesterday sent three policemen into the private suite of Mrs. Salo Auerbach at the fashionable Webster hotel with a subpoena for Mrs. Auerbach to appear before the grand jury tomorrow morning. Just what she had to do with Koretz is not clear.

Seek Girl in East.

At the same time, piecing together a torn letter found in Koretz's office, he began a search for a girl in the east—possibly Atlantic City—who complained that Koretz had deserted her and who cried when others told of their relations with the fugitive con man. Then he ordered detectives to search for a Mrs. Schwartz and a chauffeur who supposedly could tell of Mrs. Schwartz and Koretz.

"For four days we have followed the old French axiom of 'find the woman'," Mr. Klarkowski explained. "Now we have found not only a woman but perhaps half a dozen women. There is now no doubt that Leo Koretz not only vesting in his oil fakes but he also fooled more than one woman. He was a Don Juan as well as a Wallingford."

Believed on Way to Morocco.

While Mr. Klarkowski was uncovering the sweethearts of the man who "took" his pals for half a dozen million dollars, he received seemingly authentic information that the swindler had planned to flee to Morocco. Klarkowski refused to say what was the basis for his beliefs on this angle, but insisted that the information seemed authentic.

"Within a few days," he said, "we may have something worth while. All I can say now is that I have every reason to believe that when Koretz cashed $500,000 worth of checks and fled from Chicago, Morocco was his objective. We have sent messages in the hope of intercepting his flight."

If Koretz has fled to Morocco, it is not the first time that a Chicago con man has chosen that place for a millionaire exile. Years ago, Paul Stensland, the Milwaukee avenue banker, fled to that far country.

THE TRIBUNE, acting on secret information, sent to that land of exile a representative, who arrested Stensland and brought him back here.

Rented Flat as "Bronson."

Numerous persons who are expected to add to the dual life revelations of Koretz are due to appear at the state's attorney's office today in response to subpoenas.

Officials, seeking "a woman" in the case, found that Koretz, millionaire club member on the north side, had been "Al Bronson," south side flat owner and apparent traveling salesman, too.

They called in maids, telephone operators, and residents of the Shirley apartments, where "Bronson" had lived. All identified "Bronson" as Koretz. Pictures of a woman were shown them.

"That looks like Mrs. Bronson," they said.

Mrs. Auerbach Subpoenaed.

Mrs. Auerbach was subpoenaed at 2 a. m. yesterday. No word was given her that there was any supposed connection with the south side flat. She first agreed to come to the state's attorney's office, and then pleaded she was too ill to leave her flat at the Webster hotel.

Policemen guarded it all night.

Before noon yesterday Mrs. Auerbach, fashionably gowned and seemingly composed, received the men of the press.

"All I know of Koretz is that my husband and I invested $35,000 with him and lost it," she said. "We advanced $10,000 to him the last day he was in Chicago."

A few hours later her attorney, Lester Bauer, appeared at the state's attorney's office.

"Mrs. Auerbach is distressed about this publicity," he said. "She is willing to come down here as soon as her health will permit. She knows nothing of a south side flat or of Koretz assuming the name of Bronson. She has not yet been subpoenaed."

Letter Bemoans Lost Love.

A girl who calls herself "Alt" is sought in the east. Officials believe that her name is Althea or Alta. The clew to her came through torn bits of a letter found in a waste basket in Koretz's apartment. It had been mailed from Atlantic City and was not from "Alt" but from a friend of hers. It told of "Alt" crying over Koretz and bemoaning the fact that he no longer communicated with her.

"You know, Leo, she honestly cared for you," it ended.

Detectives from Mr. Crowe's office yesterday started raiding six safety deposit vaults rented by Koretz, and it was through these raids that it became known that Koretz and Miss Jessie Taggart jointly held a box. She also is sought.

At the same time information was divulged by Attorney Michael Feinberg indicating that Koretz was a forger as well as a promoter of fakes.

"Examination of certain papers used by Koretz in promoting his Arkansas farms indicates that he forged numerous papers," said Mr. Feinberg. "I am going into the matter carefully for certain clients of mine who were duped by Koretz, and I expect to be able to furnish definite proof within a few days."

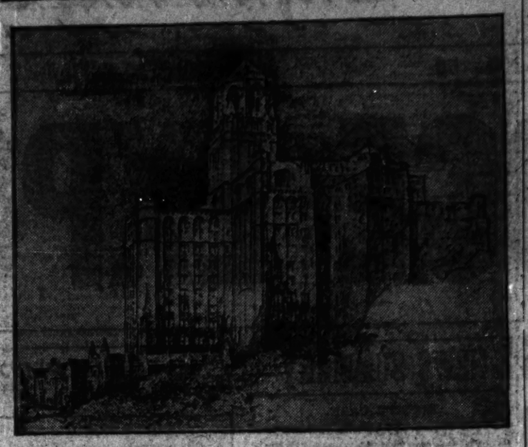
Further details of Koretz' life were found as the examination of documents in his offices continued. A little wooden box, opened for the first time by officials, produced a series of lantern slides evidently intended to picture his rise from poverty to wealth.

The slides were made in a slightly jocular vein, apparently, for they paralleled the life of Andy Gump in THE TRIBUNE cartoon. In fact, Koretz was named "Uncle Bim" and repeatedly was shown as showering wealth upon his friends.

Mr. Crowe yesterday issued subpoenas for several relatives of Koretz who have not yet turned over $75,000 of the $325,000 he gave them just before he fled. The money was supposed to be given Friday, and Mr. Crowe became impatient at the delay.

At the same time it was discovered that one of the packages of $1,000 bills turned over several days ago is missing. There were supposed to be twenty-five in it. Count yesterday showed only twenty-four.

GIFT TO NORTHWESTERN



This, the architect's drawing of the $3,000,000 Montgomery Ward Memorial Dental and Medical school of Northwestern university, shows how that building will look when viewed from the west, toward Lake Michigan, from the Lake Shore drive and Chicago avenue. The plans were drawn by James Gamble Rogers, formerly of Chicago. Work is to be started next May.

VICTIMS OF KORETZ SPEND LAVISHLY ON VISIONS OF WEALTH

The visions of wealth in Koretz oil led numerous Chicago families to a more lavish scale of expenditure than was customary with them in the days before the plunger rubbed his Aladdin's lamp for them. For example:

Three families, finding the money rolling in, sent daughters east last September to expensive finishing schools. In more than one case it is likely this luxury will be cancelled at the Christmas holidays and the girls will be withdrawn.

Some boys have been sent to eastern colleges on the basis of growing family wealth provided by the seemingly inexhaustible flow from Koretz's Panama oil wealth.

One family, a beneficiary of the Koretz sort of providence, recently moved from a modest flat into a luxurious suite of rooms in one of the great new family hotels, and moreover purchased something "ultra" in a town car, acquiring therewith a chauffeur in all the livery obtainable.

These are sample cases, indicating the confidence of investors in the glowing Koretz enterprise. Some of the investors, of course, are people of wealth aside from what was coming or expected to come from Panama. Others will have to reconstruct the family budget.

To Build in 1924

Ground will be broken next May for at least three of the units of the professional schools of Northwestern university, to be located on McKinlock campus, Chicago avenue near Lake Michigan. This was announced yesterday with the additional word that a gift of $3,000,000 from Mrs. A. Montgomery Ward, widow of the founder of the mail order business of Montgomery Ward & Co., had raised the present total of the building and educational fund to $5,803,524. Some of that total sum is conditional on the reception of other gifts.

Robert F. Duncan, executive secretary of the campaign fund committee, declared that the present success was due to the loyalty of trustees, faculty, and students of the university.

Mr. Duncan pointed out a campaign is in progress for a new commerce school building upon the Downtown campus. There also is a separate canvass for funds for the woman's quadrangle of buildings on the Evanston campus and for new or improved buildings for the schools of music, speech and the Evanston school of commerce.

JUGO-SLAVIA AND ROUMANIA GIRD FOR GREEK WAR

BY RAYMOND FENDRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ROME, Dec. 15.—[Tribune Radio]—The sun went down in the Balkans tonight in an ominous ox blood red haze.

KING GEORGE.

Young King George of Greece may be tumbled off his throne before the sun sets upon the bitterly fought Greek election tomorrow over the establishment of a republic, and troops from Roumania and Jugo-Slavia may march in to set up this unlucky dynasty again.

The deadly earnestness of Queen Marie of Roumania, who is the most diplomatic chess player of the Balkans, to maintain her daughter on the Greek throne was revealed today.

It was she who sent King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia, her other royal son-in-law, on his one day trip to Paris this week. He had a secret meeting with M. Venizelos in Paris. King Alexander stated that if King George were overthrown or the slightest harm done him Roumania and Jugo-Slavia would take energetic measures against Greece.

King Alexander begged Premier Poincare to use all the French influence in Greece to uphold the dynasty, and made the same threats to France.

It is understood that France, Roumania and Jugo-Slavia today delivered ultimatums to the Greek republican leaders concerning the overthrow of the dynasty.

The British charge d'affaires also privately supported these ultimatums.

$500,000 'PONZI' HARVEST SEEN IN INSURANCE CRASH

Clover Likely to Face Criminal Charges.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Another $500,000 harvest taken from [illegible] of Chicago investors [illegible] disclosed in the proceedings [illegible] under way before Referee Sidney [illegible] in the affairs of Alfred [illegible] and the Public Agency company, 105 South La Salle street. Attorney Henry S. Blum stated yesterday at the close of the week's hearings. A petition in bankruptcy against the company is pending before Judge [illegible] H. Wilkerson.

Clover's methods as a supersalesman, a bold and compelling charmer of trust books, never shone with greater lustre than in this evidence consisting his dual rôle as dictator of the affairs of millions of the Public Agency company and the Public Life Insurance company, 1400 West Washington boulevard. He was removed from the chairmanship of the latter concern in February last after the books for nine months showed operating losses aggregating $248,280.94.

Stormy Insurance Figure.

Ever since his swift rise from a salesman for the Prudential Life Insurance company to the presidency of the Royal Life Insurance company, which went on the rocks in 1916, Clover has been a stormy figure in the insurance world. Operating in his latest venture by grace of the state of Illinois, he has been able to dazzle his associates once more with his juggling powers, his casual handling of other people's money, his golden promises.

Clover organized the Public Life Insurance company in 1916 soon after the wreck of the Royal. Some of the same stockholders who lost in the Royal reinvested in the new concern, it is said. He became chairman of the board and general manager. He organized the Public Agency company in 1917 and made himself president. As president of the latter company he made a contract with himself as president of the life insurance company to handle all the insurance selling campaign for a commission of 25 per cent on premiums. It is this contract which has brought about the present investigation. In the proceedings before the referee Mr. Blum represented the petitioning creditors and Attorney Edward J. Hennessy represented the alleged bankrupt.

Tells of Agency Deal.

Clover organized an advisory board of ninety-five members to help him as head of the agencies company float the business of the insurance company. This is some of Clover's testimony on this point:

Q.—What was the effect of this advisory board, if any? A.—Selling 100,000 shares of Public Life Insurance company stock for $1,000,000.

Q.—What effect, if any, did it have on the sales of insurance? A.—It did effected the selling of $4,820,000 worth of life insurance and in the neighborhood of several million dollars of insurance was written altogether.

Charges Board "Conspiracy."

Q.—When did this advisory board cease functioning? A.—On the 7th day of February, 1923, by conspiracy agreement of nine members of the board, my power was taken away from me.

Q.—Prior to that how was the business of the Public Life handled? A.—The Public Agency company conducted all the business of the Public Life, selling stock and life insurance and all the business.

Q.—How much was the amount in insurance written to the Public Agency company? A.—About $7,000,000, under a commission agreement, the Public Life to pay all the expenses.

Q.—Did you have anything to do

Q.—Did you have anything to do with organization of the Public Life? A.—I had absolutely full control.

Q.—Why was it necessary to organize the Public Agency company? A.—It is necessary for an insurance company to have agents.

Q.—Why could not the Public Life employ its agents? A.—That is its pleasure. All companies have them.

Q.—Will you tell the court how much time you gave to the affairs of these concerns? A.—Three hundred and sixty-five days of the year, twenty hours a day.

After telling how much work he did and how he had been an expert salesman for thirty-eight years, witness was asked how much insurance he had written personally during the last six years for the Public Life.

A.—Personally, working in a dual capacity, in one meeting of the advisory board I sold $480,000 in one night. At the original banquet I sold $880,000 and delivered $560,000 of it.

Never Attended School.

The witness was asked about his peculiar bookkeeping arrangements.

Q.—How long did you go to school? A.—I never seen the inside of a school with children in it, or men, either.

Q.—You have never been to school at all? A.—No; when I was 17 years old I could not read my name after I wrote it.

Q.—Did you ever study bookkeeping? A.—No, sir. I am a life insurance man. When I was a little past 17 I had to point and had people to write.

He said that 75 per cent of the first insurance premiums was paid over to the agency company.

Hazy on Money Matters.

Clover testified that the books of the Public Agency company were incomplete, and he was extremely hazy in the matter of loans and assets.

Maurice W. Adams, an accountant, could not testify whether the Public Agency company operated under profit or loss. W. N. Doland, another accountant, testified the current assets in hand July 31 were $931. Various payments were made to the advisory board members, it was shown. Mr. Blum stated at one point in the examination that the "books demonstrated as much substance as to interior contents as a toy balloon." The liabilities of the Public Agency, he stated at another time, were in excess of $200,000.

HUNDREDS BID FAREWELL TO MASTER DETECTIVE

Chicago bade last farewell yesterday to William A. Pinkerton, world renowned detective. Folk of every walk of life attended the funeral services. Simplicity was their keynote. Burial was held in Graceland cemetery. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

CHICAGO PAYS LAST TRIBUTE TO PINKERTON

Simplicity at Funeral of Noted Detective.

William A. Pinkerton, master detective, was buried yesterday in Graceland cemetery. The funeral ceremonies were simple. Those who loved "Bill" Pinkerton were there, bidding farewell to a true friend, for "The Eye" was held in deep esteem by thousands of Chicagoans.

Hundreds at Station.

The body arrived at the Dearborn street station at 10 o'clock. Before his death in Los Angeles, last Tuesday, the noted detective had expressed the wish to be buried here. Hundreds were waiting at the station to pay their last measure of respect to their friend.

The pallbearers were high officials of the Pinkerton National Detective agency, J. H. Shumacher, Asher Rossiter, William E. Webster, J. C. Fraser, H. H. Lintner, L. F. Stiles, E. J. Weiss, and L. Spence. "Billy" had not wished for honorary pallbearers, but there was a guard of honor.

Brief Funeral Sermon.

The funeral services were held in the chapel of the Fourth Presbyterian church. The Rev. John Timothy Stone spoke briefly of the life and good works of the "famous son of a famous father."

Mrs. William J. Chalmers, 1100 Lake Shore drive, a sister, and two daughters, Mrs. Joseph O. Watkins and Mrs. William C. Pullman, with their families, were present.

Others in attendance included George Ade, Lou Housmann, Harry Ridings, Dr. Francis W. McNamara, John McFarland, Chief of Police Morgan A. Collins, ex-Chief John J. Garrity, Daniel Trude, Capt. James Larkin, Frank Repetto, Hugh McCaffery, Corporation Counsel Francis X. Busch, E. A. Sutherland, Thomas McGuire, William D. Soule, Patrick Foley, Ald. John Powers, M. T. Evans, Edward Evans, Capt. William Shoemaker, Adolph Hermann, and Rollo Timponi.

PARIS COIFFEURS SAY BOBBED HAIR IS OUT OF STYLE

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 15.—[Tribune Radio.]—The hairdressers' congress has voted that shingled and bobbed hair are out of style.

Three new modes are recommended—directoire period, like that of the Empress Josephine, with the hair drawn up to the middle of the cranium and a band tightly stretched around the temples; Louis Philippe, with chignon curls clustered around the neck and ears, and Empress Eugénie, with two bands across the forehead and the hair falling on the shoulders.

These three styles were chosen because they permit the wearing of false hair, as all women have their locks cut off.

Christmas Vacation for Schools Begins Next Friday

Superintendent of Schools Peter A. Mortenson announced yesterday that the Christmas vacation for Chicago's school children would be slightly cut down this year to avoid running the school term far into the hot weather in the summer. All public schools will close Friday, Dec. 21, and reopen Wednesday, Jan. 2, the superintendent said.

HUSBAND TELLS HOW HE FOUGHT, KILLED HIS WIFE

Burned Clothes, Hid Body in Garage.

After being questioned for thirty-four hours in the Englewood police station, Joseph Milewski confessed late yesterday that he had murdered his wife Thursday night in their home at 1901 West 63d street, and then burned her clothes in an effort to conceal the crime.

In his confession, Milewski said he was prompted by the thought that his wife was unfaithful to him. Earlier in the day the Englewood police took the wife slayer to the garage where his wife's body was found, but at that time he failed to break down or make any incriminating statement.

"The trouble started about 8 o'clock Thursday night," Milewski began without apparent nervousness. "My wife wanted to go and asked me to open the garage door. I asked her what she meant by going out every night. She said it was none of my business. She started the car and locked me in the garage. I broke two of the garage windows, and then my wife opened the door.

"She ran toward the house, picked up a board and struck me over the head with it. As she ran up the stairs I seized a milk bottle and hit her on the head. Then I dragged her into the basement. She still was alive. I choked her, but even then I wasn't sure she was dead, so I took my pocket knife and stabbed her twice in the neck."

Milewski then admitted that after he was sure his wife was dead, he took her clothes and burned them in the furnace.

The slayer is the owner of a saloon and has two children.

BEATEN AND ROBBED IN HOME.

John Kortowski, 6501 Brandon avenue, was beaten by three men and robbed of $35 while alone in his home yesterday forenoon, he reported last night.

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—[Tribune Radio.] Recognition of pre-war and war debts of Russia no longer is a serious stumbling block to negotiations with France.

Through the efforts of Leonid Krasin a large portion of the old Russian state, municipal, and railway obligations are now in the hands of the soviet government. From 75 per cent to 92 per cent of these bond issues has been repurchased on the world market for almost nothing. The purchases include practically all the bonds which were held in Holland and England and a large portion of those in France, and 70 per cent of those which were held in Germany.

The largest purchase had been made during the summer and fall months of this year. During that period more than 1,000,000,000 rubles wogth of government loans in Germany were taken up by soviet agents throughout Germany, or by a Dutch banker, who turned over the account to the soviet government. These included a large part of bonds of 1902, which were partially covered by the Chinese government loans of 1906 and 1908.

Bought Back at Small Cost.

At the end of the war 1,500,000,000 gold rubles ($750,000,000) in czarist bonds were circulating in Germany, all of issues predating the war. About 160,000,000 gold rubles ($80,000,000) of this sum was in municipal bonds and railway obligations. Beginning in 1923 the soviet purchases reduced this total to 1,000,000,000 gold rubles ($500,000,000), and during May and June and July further purchases were made. The total in circulation in Germany today is 300,000,000 gold rubles ($150,000,000) in state and 100,000,000 gold rubles ($50,000,000) in railway and municipal bonds.

Of the obligations purchased in Germany bonds of the face value of 500,000,000 gold rubles ($250,000,000) were sold direct to soviet agents at prices ranging from one-quarter to three-quarters of 1 per cent. The other 600,000,000 gold rubles ($300,000,000) passed into soviet hands through the agency of Dutch bankers, who bought chiefly at the rate of one-half of 1 per cent.

Get 30 Per Cent of French Holdings.

The operations in France also were carried on extensively through Dutch bankers. Close to 8,000,000,000 gold rubles ($4,000,000,000) in pre-war bonds were in the possession of French banking firms or small investors. It is understood here that more than 30 per cent of these bonds were purchased at various times by soviet agents.

Large quantities of Russian war bonds held in France also have been repurchased, but THE TRIBUNE is unable to estimate accurately the total. It is understood that the total of the obligations to France was 17,000,000,000 gold rubles [$8,500,000,000]. Practically all of these, which were in private hands, have been taken up by the soviets or have disappeared from circulation.

The negotiations for a Franco-Russian treaty are progressing. THE TRIBUNE is able to give further interesting details of the conversations. They began in Berlin when M. Dejmargerie arrived to take up the post of ambassador here. He met the soviet officials at the home of the minister of one of the Balkan states. When the preliminary details were completed the negotiations were transferred to Paris.

The treaty would assure France that Russia would not help Germany, and also a cessation of Communist propaganda by Russia in France.

In this connection, President Zinoviev's recent statement that Germany needed no military help from Russia is interesting.

QUAKE KILLS MANY

Several towns were destroyed and at least eighty-five persons killed by an earthquake yesterday along the Colombia-Ecuador border.

RECOGNITION FAR OFF

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—President Coolidge and Secretary of State Hughes have been tremendously embarrassed by the interpretations which have been placed upon the President's message to congress respecting the recognition of soviet Russia. It was learned upon the highest authority today.

The administration, it was stated, is being most embarrassed as a result of the communications urging recognition which have been sent to the President following the transmission of the President's message to congress.

The United States government, it is asserted on the highest authority, is farther away from recognition of the soviet government than it has been for the last five or six years. The United States government can never recognize the soviet government except upon three conditions:

1. The soviet government must recognise at least the claims of the United States against Russia.
2. The soviet government must agree to restore the American property confiscated under the soviet regime.
3. The soviet government must agree to abandon its apparently world wide enterprise to endorse a communistic regime in various foreign countries.

BORAH BILL HITS CLOSE DECISIONS IN HIGH COURT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—Progressive antagonism to the present organization of the United States Supreme court was crystallized in a bill introduced in the senate today by Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho.].

Borah's bill would require that no decision affecting the constitutionality of any act or law could be made without the concurrence of at least seven members of the court.

LYNCH'S WIDOW FOUND; REJECTS WERNER QUERIES

Grand Jury to Be Told of Her Refusal.

The Cook county grand jury is to be told of the refusal of Mrs. Austin J. Lynch to discuss with Assistant State's Attorney John Sbarbaro in St. Louis yesterday whether she had securities in the Lynch safe deposit box, among the boxes opened when Werner Brothers' storage warehouse vault was robbed.

Mrs. Lynch, widow of one of the Thompson realty experts, was found at the Melbourne hotel in St. Louis by Mr. Sbarbaro, but she refused to talk to him, except in the presence of her lawyer, former Judge O'Neill Ryan of St. Louis. On her behalf that lawyer denied that she had any securities in the safe deposit box. Two St. Louis detectives, called by her lawyer, were present when Mr. Sbarbaro was Rejects Every Question.

Every question asked by Mr. Sbarbaro was objected to by Mr. Ryan, and his client would not answer any of them. The visit of Mr. Sbarbaro was with the hope that he might get information for the special grand jury with regard to fees of $471,000 obtained by Lynch when an expert for the city under the Thompson administration.

The fact that eight $1,000 bills had been left behind by the burglars led the Chicago police to believe that one of the reasons for the $1,000,000 robbery of the Werner vault was to get papers in the Lynch case. Mrs. Lynch's attorney declared that the reason the currency was not touched probably was because it was in an old brown envelope that did not look as if it held anything but old papers.

Under Different Name.

The Lynch box, rented under the name of Wagner, was one of the thirty-five opened by the robbers.

Mrs. Lynch, who, still under the name of Wagner, called after the burglary, said nothing had been taken.

Chief of Detectives Hughes thought that was strange until he learned that Mrs. Wagner was Mrs. Lynch.

The special grand jury made several ineffectual attempts to subpoena Mrs. Lynch. It was the contention of the prosecutors that Lynch was compelled to "split" the $671,000 with various politicians of the Lundin-Small-Thompson clan, that his records would show the division. They had no way of knowing whether the documents sought by the state were obtained by the safeblowers.

Mrs. Lynch had evaded service before the burglary and left town immediately afterward. The jury still is investigating the graft angles of the payment of $2,500,000 to some experts during the Thompson administration.

Senate to Hold Treaties Until Mexico Behaves

POINCARE OPENS DOOR TO DIRECT GERMAN PARLEY

Hears Berlin Plea for Cut in Ruhr Army.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Dec. 15.—[Tribune Radio.]—First steps for the resumption of direct Franco-German relations were taken this morning when Premier Poincare received German Charge d'Affaires von Hoesch. The German official transmitted Chancellor Marx' plea for a resumption of official contact between the French and German authorities in the occupied territory, especially in the Ruhr.

M. POINCARE.

Premier Poincare after hearing Herr von Hoesch's statement, asked for a memorandum in writing. He expected to reply late this evening.

THE TRIBUNE is informed that Herr von Hoesch did not take up the reparations question nor separatism. The conversation marks the official end of the passive resistance in the Ruhr.

Asks Reduction of Army.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—[Tribune Radio.]—Only one condition was imposed by the German government in its note to Paris, which Berlin hopes will lead to direct negotiations with France over the Rhineland and Ruhr questions. Chargé d'Affaires von Hoesch was directed to point out to Premier Poincare that no negotiations could be undertaken which would affect the German sovereignty of the occupied area.

Germany asks that the number of troops in the occupied area be reduced by France to bring the costs of the occupation somewhere within Germany's capacity for payment.

The note was sent to M. Poincare only after careful feelers had been made through the person of the Norwegian minister. British circles also urged the step, pointing out that the results of the elections in Great Britain and the decision of President Coolidge to permit America, unofficially, to take part in the commission of experts, to examine German finances, had made the moment ripe for a new attempt at an agreement with Premier Poincare.

May Close German Courts.

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—The new minister of justice, Dr. Erich Emminger, stated today that the present period of transition from the paper mark to a gold basis currency was giving rise to serious difficulties because no gold based revenue was flowing into the state treasuries fast enough.

Dr. Emminger declared there was great danger that the various states would find it impossible to keep their courts of justice open, owing to the expense involved, or to maintain the inmates of their prisons. For the next three or four months, he said, all costly legal machinery would have to be drastically curtailed by adopting simplified methods in the administration of justice and further savings effected by postponing all private cases at least three months.

FATE YIELDS TO WOMAN SINGER'S 79 YEAR DREAM

Hope, Ambition Conquer Family Cares at Last.

New York, Dec. 15.—A woman, 79 years old, fulfilled her girlhood wish tonight in an auditorium just a few feet from 42d street and Broadway, and all that that implies. Doing so made her happy and the 500 men and women there were glad.

Throughout her four score years, Mrs. Henry Clay Wright of Dallas, Tex., wanted to be a concert singer. The death of her parents prevented her from studying while she was young. Later she married, and always she had too many cares to begin her musical career.

Gently Frail in Old Lavender.

Three months ago she came here and became a pupil of Mme. Ida Haggerty-Snell. Tonight came the test, a public concert. Mrs. Wright, a gentle, nervous figure in a pale lavender dress, adorned with a corsage bouquet, her brownish gray hair knotted on her head, seemed excited but confident. She leaned on the piano and sang "A Song of the South." Her program of a dozen selections was ambitious, one piece being in Spanish and another in Latin. Once for encore she sang "Suwanee," and her years in the old south were reflected in the sweetness of her voice.

Mrs. Wright showed she had a good tone in the middle register. Below that she became hoarse; above that—she reached high C—she was metallic, and so are some opera singers.

Yet There Was Beauty.

Her voice wasn't plastic; she dwelled on notes, slid off key occasionally, but nevertheless there was beauty.

After the first group of three numbers she came back with an excellent tone in "Out Where the West Begins" (Chapman), and her second group was well done. The third and last was not so good. She had to retire just before her next to last number for rest. Her last song was Gounod's "Ave Maria," and she sang it well.

When she was out of hearing Mme. Haggerty-Snell asked if the audience thought her pupil could sing. The audience remained two minutes to applaud an affirmative reply.

REPORTS $8 HOLDUP.

Ray Kats, 4151 West 63d street, driver for the Great Western laundry, yesterday reported to the police that he had been robbed of $8 of the company's money at the rear of 4342 Grand boulevard by a colored man.

WILSONS OBJECT TO ALTERATIONS IN LEE CHAPEL

Lynchburg, Va., Dec. 15.—Former President Wilson and Mrs. Wilson, writing as Virginians, have entered a vigorous protest against plans to remodel or alter the Lee Memorial chapel at Washington and Lee university. The letter, as made public by President Henry Lewis Smith, reads:

"We, the undersigned, as natives of the state of Virginia, wish to add our earnest and emphatic protest against any such alteration of the Lee chapel as we understand to be in contemplation. Such changes would, in our opinion, be an outrageous desecration and bring serious discredit upon the university and the state.

"We urge an immediate reconsideration of the whole matter and hope that the chapel will be left exactly as it is.

New Kentucky Governor Won't Have "Pardon Day"

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 15.—Gov. William J. Fields, inaugurated last Tuesday, nullified pardon day for the full remainder of the four years of his administration today in his first decisive act as chief executive of Kentucky. He declared there will be no days set apart for consideration of applications for pardons.

'Tiger Girl' and Chum Kidnaped at Dance Hall

Anna Barron, 3249 Lime street, recently in the hands of the police as a "bandit queen" and called a "tigress" by her parents, was kidnaped as she was leaving a dance hall at 32d and Halsted streets early this morning. The kidnapers also seized Josephine Burmann, 16, of 3246 Lime street, who was with the Barron girl.

The girls were carried away screaming in two large automobiles, according to the reports by their escorts, Frank Baker, 3143 Fox street, and John Mattis, 3227 Fisk street.

SPRAGUE AGAINST NICKEL PLATE'S CALUMET SCHEME

Opposes Control by One Road of New Harbor.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The Nickel Plate plan, presented to the city council at the last meeting by [illegible] Dever, to dig a minor part of the Calumet harbor for exclusive use in a railroad encircling the harbor is almost certain to meet opposition.

Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, said yesterday that he is opposed to giving the Nickel Plate exclusive control over the contemplated belt line road. He is opposed to any railroad company having such ownership. He desires that the road shall be built and operated by several companies, as many as will enter into the partnership arrangement. He suggested ten roads as owners jointly of the circle line.

Cites Switching Charge.

Sprague, Warner & Co. is a wholesale grocery house located on the St. Paul railroad, in which the commissioner is interested. For switching a car to or from the wholesale grocers, the St. Paul charges a minimum of $10 per car, if the car has been brought to Chicago to be sent from Chicago over a route other than the St. Paul.

The result is that the wholesale grocers must route over the St. Paul, to and from Chicago. The firm must instruct shippers to send via the St. Paul, which in effect makes the firm a continual solicitor of business for the St. Paul. That is just illustrative of what every other firm must do for the railroad on which it is located, or pay the minimum charge of $10 a car for switching.

It is said that if ten roads were interested in the railroad around Lake Calumet, they would haul in and out of the industries located on it without the $10 per car charge. That would make a rate on the harbor unusually desirable. The charge for transfer from warehouse to rail nor from warehouse to boat. It is said that such advantages are not now attached to any other location for industries in Chicago.

Talks to Rail President.

Col. Sprague talked yesterday to the president of one railroad who said that if the harbor is built he will be interested in being a part owner in the railroad circling it. This is a road other than the Nickel Plate.

S. W. Gehr, attorney for the Pullman company, was seeking information yesterday at the city hall regarding the plans of the Nickel Plate.

"The Pullman company owned all of the west shore and south shore of the lake, except two or three small pieces," said Mr. Gehr. "The Pullman company in 1917 made an agreement to give up its riparian rights as requested by the city and dedicate a strip 100 feet wide for a railroad. Outside of that strip the Pullman company has a railroad now being operated along the west and south side of the lake. Is it the plan of the Nickel Plate to take over that strip of 100 feet for a railroad for themselves in perpetuity?"

Gives Pullman Attitude.

"Are you opposed to the Nickel Plate plan," was asked Mr. Gehr.

"This is our present position," he replied. "We are interested to know exactly what the Nickel Plate plan is, what the city contemplates doing and what the effects will be. When we have that information, we will then state our position."

Cite Switching Charge.

Sprague, Warner & Co. is a whole- grocery house located on the St. railroad, in which the commis- is interested. For switching a to or from the wholesale grocers, St. Paul, charges a minimum of $10 car, if the car has been brought to to be sent from Chicago over a other than the St. Paul.

The result is that the wholesale gro- must route over the St. Paul, to from Chicago. The firm must in- shippers to send via the St. Paul, which in effect makes the firm contract solicitor of business for the Paul. That is just illustrative of every other firm must do for the on which it is located, or pay minimum charge of $10 a car for switching.

It is said that if ten roads were in- ted in the railroad around Lake they would haul in and out of industries located on it without the per car charge. That would make on the harbor unusually desirable. charge for transfer from warehouse rail car from warehouse to boat. It said that such advantages are not attached to any other location for tries in Chicago.

Talks to Rail President.

Sprague talked yesterday to the sident of one railroad who said that the harbor is built he will be inter- in being a part owner in the rail- circling it. This is a road other the Nickel Plate.

W. Gehr, attorney for the Pull- company, was seeking informa- yesterday at the city hall regard- the plans of the Nickel Plate.

"The Pullman company owned all the west shore and south shore of lake, except two or three small ," said Mr. Gehr. "The Pullman company in 1917 made an agreement give up its riparian rights as re- ested by the city and dedicate a strip 100 feet wide for a railroad. Out- de of that strip the Pullman company a railroad now being operated ong the west and south side of the . Is it the plan of the Nickel to take over that strip of 100 for a railroad for themselves in petuity?"

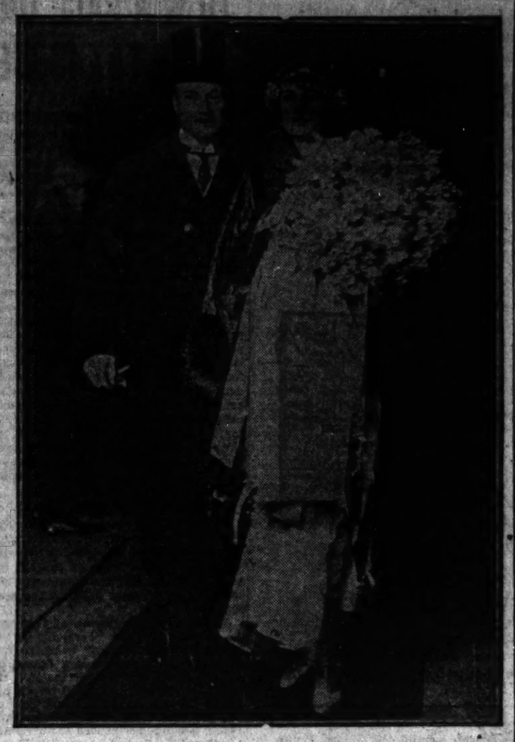
Gives Pullman Attitude.

"Are you opposed to the Nickel Plate ," was asked Mr. Gehr.

"This is our present position," he lied. "We care interested to know tly what the Nickel Plate plan is, the city contemplates doing and the effects will be. When we that information, we will then our position."

BRIDES AND BRIDEGROOMS OF THE YULETIDE

Miss Polly Packard was married yesterday to Frederick Winsor Copeland. The wedding ceremony was held in St. Chrysostom's church.



Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ridgely Brunker were wed yesterday in the Fourth Presbyterian church. Mrs. Brunker was Miss Margaret Gaylord. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

MISS GAYLORD WALKS TO ALTAR BENEATH ROSES

Weds A. R. Brunker of Philadelphia.

Arches of American Beauty roses, the bride's favorite flower, decorated the aisle down which Miss Margaret Gaylord, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Gaylord of 920 North Michigan avenue, walked to become the bride of Albert Ridgely Brunker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brunker of Philadelphia, Pa. The bridegroom is the president of the Liquid Carbonic company of Chicago.

The ceremony was performed yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock by the Rev. John Timothy Stone at the Fourth Presbyterian church. American Beauty roses also decorated the Gaylord residence, where a reception followed the wedding.

Miss Gaylord's gown was of white satin with long sleeves and train, and her veil of rose point lace was gathered to her head with a slim wreath. She carried a bouquet of white roses clustered around an orchid.

How Maids Were Attired.

Miss Louise Huling of Chicago, the maid of honor, wore a blue and cream lace costume, a small lace hat with long streamers, and carried an old-fashioned colonial bouquet. The bridesmaids, Miss Clarissa Donnelley of Lake Forest, Miss Ella Henry of Detroit, Miss Mary Phillippi of Newark, N. J., Miss Martha Phelps of Binghamton, N. Y., Miss Caroline Davideon of Montgomery, Ala., Miss Madeline McCarter of Rumson, N. J., Miss Theda Peters of Neenah, Wis., and Miss Margaret Cosline of Toledo, O., wore lavender and cream lace, with lace hats and colonial bouquets similar to those of the maid of honor.

The wedding dress of Miss Polly Packard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Packard of 436 Barry avenue when she was married to Frederick Winsor Copeland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Kent Copeland of Winnetka, yesterday afternoon, was of cream velvet, simply made, and her veil of tulle fell from a lace bandeau. Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley.

Reception for Friends.

The wedding took place at 5 o'clock at St. Chrysostom's church, with the Rev. Norman Hutton officiating, and was followed by a reception at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Packard for relatives and intimate friends.

Mrs. F. Farrington Holt of Detroit, who was her sister's matron of honor, and Miss Barbara Dunham, the maid of honor, wore gold colored georgette, and the bridesmaids, Miss Elizabeth Copeland, Miss Janet Lawrence, Miss Alice de Windt, and Miss Marion Brosseau, were attired in deep blue and deep green georgette.

All of the attendants wore bands of flowers at the backs of their heads and carried bouquets of mixed flowers. Howard Lincoln of Claremont, N. H., was Mr. Copeland's best man, and ushering were Norman Pritchard, Laurence Greeley, Wesley Dixon, Preston Boyden, Henry Tennes, and William D. Sidley.

Carries Ostrich Feather Fan.

Miss Beulah Murray Fisk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace E. Fisk of 1328 North State street, wore white chiffon velvet with a long train draped from the waist and faced with silver cloth and a tulle veil held in place with a bandeau of silver cloth for her marriage to Victor Boughton Gilman of Kansas City, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor C. Gilman of Babson Park, Fla., which took place yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock at St. Chrysostom's church, the Rev. Mr. Hutton reading the service.

Instead of the traditional bouquet, Miss Fisk carried a white ostrich feather fan. The bride's only attendant, Mrs. Merrill Colt, wore a gown of orchid velvet and a silver cloth hat, and carried Aaron Ward roses and orchids. The church and the Fisk residence, where a small reception was held following the wedding, were decorated with yellow chrysanthemums. Artemus Pickard was the only attendant of the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Attarbury of Plainfield, N. J., and Miss Anna Pennington of Philadelphia came from the east for the wedding, but Mr. and Mrs. Gilman were prevented from attending because of Mr. Gilman's illness.

COOLIDGE OPENS CELL DOORS FOR WAR PRISONERS

31, Including Chicagoans, Given Freedom.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—The plea for amnesty which has been presented repeatedly to three national administrations was granted finally today by President Coolidge in commuting the sentences of all remaining imprisoned violators of war laws.

The action of the President will bring about the release before Christmas of thirty-one men now serving sentences in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kas., for violation of the espionage act.

Nine Convicted in Chicago.

Two of these men were convicted at Kansas City in 1919 along with twenty-four other alleged members of the I. W. W.; nine of them were convicted in Chicago together with William D. (Big Bill) Haywood, general secretary-treasurer of the I. W. W., and the others were found guilty in Sacramento in 1919.

Mr. Coolidge acted upon receipt of a recommendation for amnesty from the special committee he appointed several weeks ago to make a disinterested study of the question of clemency for war law violators. This committee was composed of Newton D. Baker, secretary of war during the war period; Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord, who served overseas as head of the service of supplies of the American army, and Bishop Charles H. Brent of the Episcopal church, who was chief of the army chaplain service during the war.

The news was received with gratification by the American Civil Liberties league and other organizations which have carried on the fight for amnesty and also by Senator Borah [Rep., Idaho] and other members of congress who have held that inasmuch as the allies had released their war law prisoners the United States should do likewise.

"I am delighted that a President has discovered the first amendment to the constitution and has had the courage to announce the discovery," Senator Borah said. "It is a vindication of the right of free speech and free press.

"Intolerance, bigotry, prejudice, kept them there for many years. The President has performed a distinct service to the most fundamental principle of free government."

The prisoners convicted at Chicago were C. J. Bourg, Harry Lloyd, Charles H. McKinnon, James P. Thompson, Alexander Cournos, Burt Lorton, James Rowan.

TAKE HUGE DOOR FROM TOMB OF TUT-ANKH- AMEN

LUXOR, Egypt, Dec. 15.—[By the Associated Press.]—The work of removing the top of the canopy of Tut-Ankh-Amen's sarcophagus was suspended this morning in order to clear the ante-chamber of the glittering stack of treasures discovered between the first and second shrines and thus leave room for the disposal of the three large sections of which the roof of the outer shrine is made up.

In three covered stretchers the large collection of royal sceptars, staves, bows, and maces and the great linen pall that covered the second shrine were taken out.

The next task, that of removing the great door of the outer shrine, proved to be a most difficult undertaking. The door is in two parts, about six feet high, and is immensely heavy, one estimate giving the weight of each wing as more than a quarter of a ton.

LAW JAILS WRONG MAN; RIGHT ONE FOUND, IGNORED

Waiting outside the detective bureau today, dangling a pair of handcuffs, will be George D. Pteriotis. He purchased them yesterday, announcing that if necessary he himself will take to New York Joseph Sakelos, the man under whose name he served more than two years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga.

Government officials at New York, who three years ago prosecuted Pteriotis for the crimes of another, insisting that there was no such person as Sakelos, that this was an assumed name of Pteriotis, took no action yesterday. Attorney Bernard Sandler of New York said he had wired them he had the living proof that Sakelos was not a mythical character but there was no response.

Chief Hughes told Attorney Sandler he would hold Sakelos for forty-eight hours in the expectation New York wanted him. Sandler left to stir up officialdom there, leaving Pteriotis, who had hunted the country over for Sakelos, to stand guard here.

It was explained there is no indictment pending against Sakelos, Pteriotis having been convicted for the actions attributed to Sakelos, and no one except Pteriotis is now interested in proving that Pteriotis is Pteriotis and not Sakelos. The bankers, who through bankruptcy proceedings confiscated Pteriotis' fortune of $80,000, would only be inviting a law suit it is said, in now seeking to prosecute Sakelos, who admits he is the offender.

And Pteriotis has more than one reason for seeking to establish his innocence of the crime for which he served the full penalty. He is facing deportation because of that conviction and needs to produce Sakelos as the best possible refutation of the original charge.

WHO'S TO RUN THE RAILROADS? SURE HE'S A HOOSIER

Sir Henry's Goin' to Handle 'Em Right.

Congress was relieved of all its railway burdens last night when the Indiana society at its nineteenth annual dinner in the gold room at the Congress hotel, appointed Sir Henry Worth Thornton, a native of Logansport and, incidentally the head of the Canadian National railways, high commissioner with full powers to solve all the problems which have been vexing senators and representatives, the railroads, capital and labor and the traveling public.

The move is expected to meet with signal success; witness the appointment of Will H. Hays, as purgativator of the motion picture industry, and Monesaw M. Landis, czar of baseball.

Railway Chiefs Were There.

As a result of the appointment certain shipments between Canada and the United States are expected to be doubled; and rates and fares should take care of themselves for a dozen railroad presidents were present when the amazing appointment was made.

At the same time Senator James E. Watson of Indiana was made counsel general. He is to pass any enabling acts which may become necessary.

Sir Henry was extremely pleased with the appointment. "We have a great unguarded border," he said. "Thank God it is unguarded and that our great dominion is as yet hardly tapped."

Those at Speakers' Table.

This statement was loudly applauded at the speakers' table, where sat Capt. Waldo Evans, commandant at Great Lakes; Dr. William C. Covert, for many years chaplain of the society, but who leaves on Jan. 1 for Philadelphia; James J. Davis, secretary of labor; John C. Shaffer, Harry B. Kurrie, president of the Mason; Wilbur D. Nesbit, chairman, and president of the society; William Dudley Foulke, Gen. L. R. Gignilliat of Culver Military academy, Gen. Harry C. Hale, William A. Heath, George Ade, and John L. Jackson, with Sir Henry and Senator Watson.

The railroad presidents who attended had the tracks of the various trunk lines shifted for the evening so that the Elizabethan room of the Congress became one grand terminal. Not only were the tracks laid and shifted single but they were double decked, so that the Hoosier Unlimited, the Literary Mail, and the Dark Horse way freight, the observation platforms of which formed the speakers' table, could be backed up into the rose room.

Guess Where Watson Was?

Thanks were expressed to the Congress Hotel company for tearing out their walls temporarily in the holiday season to make all this possible. Senator Watson, of course, sat on the observation of the Dark Horse Way freight, which left at the end of the proceedings for Washington. George Ade and Meredith Nicholson, John T. McCutcheon, Sidney Smith, and Carey Orr sat on the platform of the Literary Mail.

"Where are you bound for?" asked a reporter of Mr. Orr as the train pulled out. Mr. Orr smiled: "What difference does it make?" he said.

Among the railroad presidents and vice presidents seated at special tables were H. E. Byram, C. M. & St. P.; C. H. Bister, N. Y. C.; C. H. Markham, I. C.; J. E. Gorman, C. R. I. & P.; A. F. Banks, E. J. & E.; S. M. Felton, C. G. W.; Hale Holden, C. B. & Q.; A. H. Smith, N. Y. C; George Hannauer, Indiana Harbor; W. B. Finley, C. & N. W., and others.

There were palpably pleased when fifty Indiana belles from the Chicago Musical college pranced in dressed as brakemen and carrying lanterns, singing: "I've been working on the rail-l-l-lroad—a-a-all the live long day. I've been working on the railroad, just to——"

"That's how we got our start," the presidents and vice presidents said, and Medill McCormick, a red cap, was heard to say that he would at once discard his flaming chapeau and fancy uniform for the denim and the dinner pail.

"I've had a lot of experience," McCormick said, "but if that's the way to start for the presidency, I'm on my way!" And he forthwith threw off his coat.

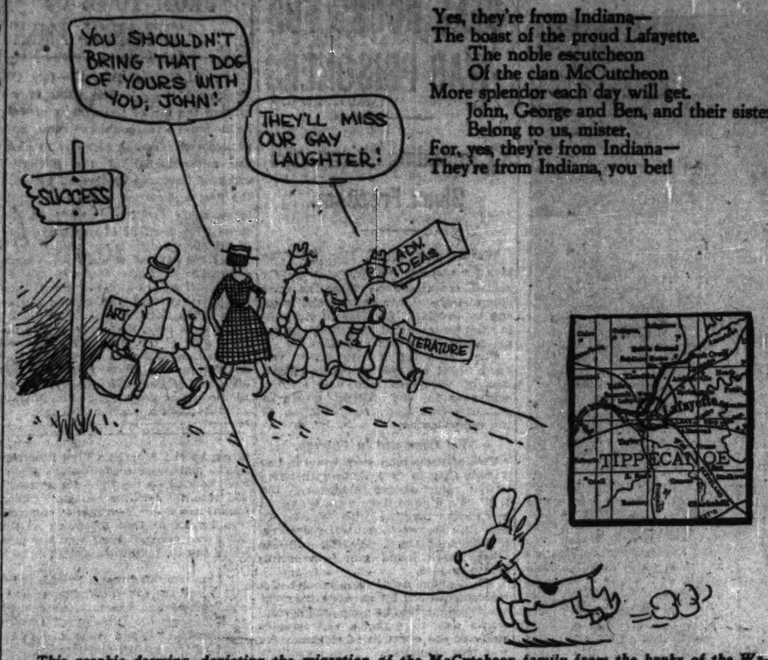
A Few Untoward Incidents.

Several rude incidents marred the perfection of the evening. A walking delegate of the Hoosier Railways, Unlimited, broke into the gathering with threats of a strike; an effeminate person who said he was a railroad president out of work told Sir Henry he had been illtreated by the Interstate Commerce and several other commissions; a radical congressman, who said his name was "Whoa Wahoosis," attempted to make a speech, and a penniless person who said he had come from Milwaukee was dragged off the "rods" of one of the big trains which backed into the gold room.

"I'm simply a passenger," this individual said. "The railroads have taken all my money. My home is mortgaged. I demand my rights!"

Chairman Nesbit assured him that before the evening was over the railroads would be running for the benefit of the public. And sure enough, with the appointment of Sir Henry as high commissioner, they were!

THE MCCUTCHEON MIGRATION



Yes, they're from Indiana—
The boast of the proud Lafayette.
The noble escutcheon
Of the clan McCutcheon
More splendor each day will get.
John, George and Ben, and their sister,
Belong to us, mister,
For, yes, they're from Indiana—
They're from Indiana, you bet!

This graphic drawing, depicting the migration of the McCutcheon family from the banks of the Wabash to Chicago, was thrown on the screen at the banquet of the Indiana society last night. Left to right: John, Jessie, George, and Ben.

COOLIDGE'S NAME GOES ON BALLOT IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—President Coolidge, it was announced here today, will enter the South Dakota presidential primaries next March. Political advisers of the President, in disclosing the chief executive's decision at the White House, announced that Mr. Coolidge had written a letter to Samuel Elrod, former South Dakota governor, declaring it to be his intention to enter the approaching primaries as a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Following close on the decision relative to South Dakota came word that Hoke Donithan of Marion, O., will organize and head the Coolidge movemen in Ohio. Donithan was a close personal friend of President Harding and was a Harding delegate to the 1920 convention. Official announcement of his appointment will be made by William M. Butler, manager of the Coolidge campaign, within the next few days.

Other matters of political interest to develop around the White House included the launching of a boom for Gov. Joseph M. Dixon of Montana, as running mate with President Coolidge.

COOLIDGE HOPES TO WIN RACE ON LOW TAX ISSUE

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington D. C., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—The Mellon tax reduction bill is the horse the Coolidge managers are relying on to carry the President to victory in the Republican national convention next June.

Accepting the Mellon proposals without the slightest qualification, the President has made the plan his own, and his political sponsors already feel his fortunes materially enhanced by the popularity of the cause he has embraced.

Tax reduction is popular, the most popular political proposal before the people. It has become a paramount issue, and is destined to influence profoundly the election of the next president of the United States. During the primary campaign it will be a prominent factor in the Republican contest for the nomination, and afterward, in the election, it will be a bone of contention, particularly if it shall not have been disposed of by the enactment of legislation.

Demands Early Action on Bill.

The President plans to lead an aggressive fight to put the Mellon plan through congress. He is going to insist on early consideration of the bill by the house, and through administration supporters will fight delay in the senate.

Whatever the outcome of this battle in congress, the President, in the opinion of his political backers, will loom forth a commanding figure by the time the convention meets. He will be either the man who forced the tax reduction through congress, or the protagonist, checked for the time being, because he refused to surrender to the radicals and political obstructionists in order to get through any kind of a bill.

In the former event the nomination of the President, his friends believe, will be assured. In the latter event he will be the natural leader of the advocates of the Mellon plan and the logical candidate if the Republican convention indorses that proposal.

Not Worried About Bonus Stand.

The Coolidge managers are not worrying over the effect of the President's opposition to the bonus for world war soldiers. They believe his stand for tax reduction, for reduction of freight rates and agricultural relief will conteract any unpopularity resulting from his rejection of bonus legislation.

Partisans of Senator Hiram Johnson, the President's only avowed opponent for the nomination, are confident their leader will gain more political capital out of the tax reduction issue than will Mr. Coolidge. They are sure he will strike a popular chord by advocating greater reductions of the taxes on small incomes than Mr. Coolidge. Just where he stands on the surtaxes they do not know, as he did not commit himself on this point in his Chicago speech. They calculate that Johnson who is for the bonus, will carry many a state over Coolidge on that issue alone.

Concerning the World Court.

Opposition to the United States joining the world court will carry Johnson far, his friends believe, and land him the nomination. In the Coolidge camp, however, the prediction is heard that the world court will have ceased to be an issue by the time the convention meets, if it is not dead already. The President, it is said, will not make an aggressive fight to procure favorable senate action on the world court proposition, which, as he remarked in his message, "should not assume an artificial importance."

Mandelein Files Plea for Cemetery Car Line

Extension of the Chicago Surface Lines from 111th street and California avenue to Holy Sepulcher cemetery, a distance of about four miles, is asked in a petition filed yesterday with the Illinois commerce commission in Springfield by Archbishop George W. Mundelein.

EXTENSION FIRST, THEN SUBWAYS, DEVER PROGRAM

Mayor Commits Self on Transit Policy.

Mayor Dever is for subways. But he is for extension of existing transportation facilities first. Extension, in his own words, mean "service where there is no service" in rapidly growing outlying sections of the city.

And these extensions of service will be made, the mayor has suggested, according to one of his closest advisers, whether the surface or elevated lines consent to municipalization of their properties or not.

Members of a north side business men's association placed the mayor on record Thursday night at a banquet given in his honor. After the banquet, the mayor offered, in answer to questions to explain any of the administration's policies.

Dever Outlines Stand.

"Well, Mr. Mayor," said one member, "We are for subways."

"So am I," answered the mayor.

"We are for extensions of the elevated and surface lines."

"So am I," answered the mayor again.

"Which will come first?" asked the member.

"The most important thing in this whole traction problem is the extension of present facilities," answered the mayor. "After that has been accomplished, then subways should come. The crying need of this city is service where there is no service. Rapid transit alone will not solve the question.

Preparing for Contingencies.

"If we spend out $40,000,000 traction fund for subways and have no money left for extensions, what have we accomplished beyond tying our own hands? Suppose the elevated and surface lines refuse to deal with us and refuse to improve their service as the needs of a growing city demand?"

Although the mayor has no fear, he says, that negotiations for the purchase of the elevated and surface lines cannot be carried to an amicable conclusion, it is known that he is preparing for hostilities if they come.

It may be, one administration official said yesterday, that if negotiations fail, the mayor may advocate building of competitive systems by the city using the $40,000,000 traction fund.

City May Build Extensions.

He has also considered the possibility of using the traction fund to build extensions to both the elevated and surface lines and forcing these companies to operate trains and cars over the city's tracks.

The traction fund might even be used for the purchase of millions of dollars worth of motor busses to operate as feeders to the surface and elevated lines from outlying districts now unserved by either.

Just what the elevated lines officials think of the mayor's recently announced traction program, probably will be known in a few days, when Samuel Insull, chairman of that system's directorate, reports to Mayor Dever results of this week's conference with eastern financiers. The surface lines have already indicated their willingness to "discuss" a sale of their properties to the city.

Denmark Plans to Hold World Exhibition in 1928

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 15.—Danish industry and government is arranging for a world exhibition, to be held in Copenhagen in 1928.

3 Get Ten Years Plus for Robbery with Pistols

Effingham, Ill., Dec. 15.—Indeterminate sentences to the southern Illinois state penitentiary of not less than ten years were pronounced in Circuit court here this afternoon on Raymond and Ralph Sanders and Charles McDonald, indicted at a special grand jury session Saturday morning for robbery with firearms. The holdup was on Dec. 14.

AUTOS' VICTIMS TOTAL 690 FOR YEAR TO DATE

Three Fail to Rally from Their Injuries.

Speed or careless driving took three more lives yesterday as Cook county's 1923 motor death toll rose to a total of 690. Three men died in hospitals of injuries previously suffered when they were struck by automobiles.

Edward Shoemaker, 47, 6515 South Francisco avenue, died in St. Anne's hospital. He was struck Dec. 9 by an automobile driven by Frank Vak, 4333 Elston avenue, who is being sought by the Cragin police. The accident occurred at Cicero avenue and George street.

Rocco Cozzi, 65, of Blue Island is dead at the St. Francis hospital as a result of injuries received Dec. 3 when he was struck by an automobile driven by Emil Jennis, also of Blue Island. An inquest will be held tomorrow.

Daniel Carey, 29, 5813 Indiana avenue, who was struck Thursday by an automobile at Michigan avenue and 33d street, died at the Michael Reese hospital.

Speeding Less Frequent.

Evidence that the mayor's campaign against the speed menace is begining to show results was found in the Speeders' court, where most of the violators arraigned were found to be charged with minor traffic infractions.

Municipal Judge Henry M. Walker disposed of only twenty-two cases. Judge S. M. Ward in the city speeders' court heard 200.

The police in twenty-four hours arrested 106 speeders and 129 violators of traffic ordinances.

Police Keep Close Watch.

Records show that the police now are beginning to arrest the motorist who drives a mile or two an hour more than the law allows. Many speeders arrested yesterday were charged with speeding at a rate of only 22 to 25 miles an hour.

The park police records yesterday showed that in twenty-four hours the Lincoln Park police arrested only one violator, while the police of the south and west park districts made no arrests.

TRIBUNE FOLK GET $123,668 AS YEAR'S SAVINGS

Closing the most successful year in its history, which dates back to 1907, the Dearborn Mutual Relief association, made up of and controlled by TRIBUNE employés, will "pay off" tomorrow. It will distribute $123,668 to 1,008 members. The 1924 fiscal year will open two weeks thereafter. The employés' association, which is, primarily, a savings organization, will this year pay 13 per cent interest to depositors. The average deposit has been $2.50 a week. The association liquidates each year, after fifty weeks, and starts anew.

DISABLED VETS WIRE COOLIDGE PLEA FOR BONUS

A resolution critizing the national administration and expressing disappointment at the attitude of President Coolidge on the proposed soldiers' bonus, was adopted last night by members of Chicago Chapter No. 2, Disabled American Veterans.

A copy of the resolution, together with a request that he consider favorably all proposed bonus legislation, was wired to President Coolidge.

Chicago chapter has a membership of more than 2,500.

BEER RUNNER TO SHOW U. S. WHERE 'LOAD' CAME FROM

Following a reported confession to the federal grand jury by Martin Brandl, one of the men in the party the night Morris Kane, a beer runner, was shot to death by hi-jackers near the "Sag," Edward J. Hess, assistant United States District attorney and a party of prohibition agents left yesterday for Joliet, where Brandl was to point out the brewery from which the beer runners procured their stock.

Brandl confessed, it was reported, that he, Keane, and William Egan, who also was shot during the fight, had been actively engaged in beer running for some time. Brandl declared he did not know the name of the brewery which furnished them with beer, but said he could point it out if taken there.

The authorities believe the brewery referred to is the plant of the Joliet Products company, on which a federal temporary injunction was served last July. The injunction prohibited the plant from manufacturing beer containing more than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol. On Nov. 27, Federal Judge Wilkerson signed a decree closing the brewery for one year. Attorney Hess indicated that the federal authorities were in possession of evidence that thousands of barrels of illegal beer had been shipped from the plant.

Most of the beer was sent out before the permanent injunction, Mr. Hess believes. If Brandl points out that brewery the officials will be prosecuted on charges of contempt of court, Mr. Hess indicated. The penalty for violating a temporary injunction is a maximum of one year's imprisonment and a fine of $1,000.

Christmas Candies

In the Candy Department, as well as in all other departments, this store sells food of the highest quality. If we offer a candy at 35c or 50c or $1, you may rest assured that it is as good, and better, than any other candy of like grade, and when we say that we save you 40 to 50 per cent on the price of your candy, we mean just that! Anyone who takes the opportunity to compare the qualities and prices of our candy with so-called "factory prices" will find, we believe, that their interest can best be served at this store.

KEEP THE UNITED STATES AMERICAN.

President Coolidge, in the two brief paragraphs of his recent message dealing with immigration, makes several statements of profound truth and significance. Their brevity is susceptible of much elaboration, which the President avoided, but which many Americans, seeking a solution of our immigration and Americanization problems, will attempt for themselves.

When the President says, "American institutions rest solely on good citizenship," he is uttering a truism with which all will agree. When he adds that "they were created by people who had a background of self-government," he speaks a truth of such deep significance that it commands thought. That truth is of vital importance in any sound effort to understand our immigration problem, and to solve it for the future safety and stability of our democratic government and institutions.

Mr. Gino Speranza, a distinguished American student of the subject, has written a series of articles upon it, now appearing serially in The World's Work, which we wish all might read. The fact that he himself is of Italian parentage, though born and educated in the United States, lends weight and interest to his observations and conclusions. His attitude and his qualification for the task he reveals in a paragraph:

"I am not, even remotely, of Anglo-Saxon or Nordic stock. But this is my country. And the test of service and devotion for the new stock may be, after all, not how much we give of ourselves, but how much of ourselves we deny. The task and the call of us all—old stock and new—as I vision it, is to strive to keep America as it was, and, as I pray with all my mind and heart, it may ever be."

By that, of course, he means to keep the fundamental principles, characteristics, and ideals of American democratic self-government as pure as they were in the minds and hearts of the founders. It is that background of self-government to which Mr. Coolidge referred. It is that which distinguishes the United States from the Republic of Mexico. It is upon that that American institutions rest, and to maintain that is the highest duty of good citizenship.

And it is in danger. There is recognition of that danger in the President's statement that America must be kept American. There is subconscious recognition of it in a growing restlessness in American life, a restlessness out of which spring such widely divergent movements as the Ku Klux Klan, the Minute Men of the Constitution, the radical bloc in congress, and so-called reform movements in our local, state, and national affairs.

This danger to American thought and American institutions is developing rapidly through what amount to foreign colonies in this country. There is one such colony of more than a million in New York City. There are several such colonies, ranging in numbers perhaps from 50,000 to 250,000 in Chicago. Each is different from the other, and all are different from the American.

The men who founded this government were largely of one type. Either they had a background of self-government or they were possessed of a common purpose of self-government. Theirs was a common conception. The government which they organized and the nation which they launched, and which their children developed, was a mutual government and a self-contained nation. But the conception of government of the foreign peoples who have flocked here varies as greatly as their home governments vary, and is even more marked in its divergence from American thought.

The majority of them find it impossible to understand and support the fundamentals of American government. It is beyond their grasp because it has been outside the conception and training of their people for countless generations. The melting pot does not melt such material. They remain a foreign mass in many of our communities, thinking and living as their ancestors did before them, speaking their own languages, reading their own newspapers, following their own social customs, and invariably putting the home land above the new land in their heart allegiance.

Whoever heard of such a foreign group denying itself racial expression? Whoever heard of it petitioning our congress to bar out its nationals? Whoever heard of them in any group action except as a foreign group? Who has not heard of them decrying the efforts of American statesmen and American newspapers to keep this country free of invasion, for the greater good of Americans? Who has not heard of such instances as that chronicled a couple of months ago when the president of the United German societies in New York called upon 7,500,000 German-born residents of the United States to save Germany from France? In such an appeal there was no thought of consequence to the United States. Who has not heard of such harangues as that of an Italian politician accusing his people in this country of a lack of patriotic cohesion because in a certain election they failed to do as much as might have been done toward forcing this government to grant easier immigration facilities to Italians?

A paragraph from Speranza along the same line illustrates the same thought: "The Album of the parish of St. Stanislaus Kostka in Chicago (the largest Roman Catholic Polish parish in America) describes one of its parochial institutions—the Zouaves of St. Stanislaus—as a society whose members are expected 'to be the guardians of everything that is divine and Polish in order to grow up to be real Polish patriots and defenders of the Christian faith.'" Note it says Polish patriots, not American patriots.

All that emphasizes the irreconcilable difference between the alien minded and the American stock. They are elements which cannot fuse in a generation. Naturalization means nothing to the majority of them except the vote, and that to be used for their own people, not for America. As they grow in numbers and votes without fusing they menace the very foundation of our American institutions. Seeing all that, the President's advocacy of a continued policy of immigration restriction, supplemented by selection at the source, is, beyond question, the only safe course for the nation to pursue.

ARBITRATION AND LEAGUE COURT.

The drive for adherence to the league of nations or to its judicial branch, the so called international court, relies much, as we have said before, on the assumption that there now exists no respectable machinery for the peaceful adjudication of international differences. The good will of the American people and their desire of seeing peace among men, are strong allies of any plausible proposal for setting up an institution for the administration of international justice and the avoidance of resorts to force. The attempt, therefore, is to present the project of the league and its court as our sole hope in this direction, and we are expected to forget what we have done and what we possess in the way of means for peaceful adjustment. This attempt got its first momentum from the disillusion of the great war, and we have been told that because existing methods did not prevent that catastrophe we must accept a new invention which we are assured will work.

Before we drop the bone we have to seize the reflection in this stream of theory, it is common sense to examine what we have and to compare it with what we are offered. And to begin with we need to meet with a few facts the ashamed Americans and their leader, Mr. Wilson—who accuses the nation of being ignoble and cowardly because it would not take the prescription—concocted at Paris in 1919.

The United States was the chief advocate of the existing system of international arbitration, and the permanent tribunal of arbitration established at The Hague. To effectuate this system the United States has entered into treaties of arbitration with virtually every government willing to enter into such an agreement. These treaties, with twenty-eight governments, or more than half the sovereign states of the world, are fully as inclusive as to the range and variety of subjects within the agreement of arbitration as the jurisdiction of the new tribunal. In fact, since they are binding within their scope they are more mandatory in one sense than the covenant, which does not bind its members to resort to its court. They may resort to a special tribunal agreed upon or to one stipulated in any treaty between the parties. They can do that now.

There is everything for our idealists to be proud of and nothing to be ashamed of in the role the United States has played in the movement for international conciliation and peaceful adjustment of differences. It is the proponents of the league or of the new court on whom rests the onus of showing in what respect our position would be bettered either for the defense of our own peace or that of the world.

In the judgment of the great majority of the American people, rendered at the polls, the league itself is a political organization dominated by a group of allied or affiliated governments, and as such is an agency for the enforcement of their interests, in which we have no concern. We need not go over that here, but when we are asked to enter an institution created by the same instrument that creates the league, for the purpose of carrying out the will of the league, an institution the membership of which is chosen by the league, it is advisable for us to examine the proposition with care and to demand clear reasons why we should assume responsibility for it or commit ourselves either legally or morally to its operation. It is advisable for us to know the nature of the new tribunal and what membership would commit us to. It is advisable for us to consider whether it is a more effective instrument of our will to peace than that which we now have in The Hague tribunal and our existing system of arbitration.

AMENDING THE CONSTITUTION.

A newly formed patriotic association, called The Sentinels of the Republic, makes an interesting suggestion. Its leading spirit, Mr. Louis A. Coolidge of Boston, reports that there will be over seventy propositions for amendment of the constitution presented to the present congress. "Unless something is done at once," he adds somewhat excitedly, "we shall face a legislation collapse." Our own guess would be that the congressional waste baskets are what will collapse. They are the destination of the seventy proposals, with an exception or two, perhaps. The President's recommendation, for example, of an amendment to permit national legislation against child labor we trust will be submitted to the states and adopted by them. We think the chances of another proposal at this session are about zero.

And yet, as our readers know, we are far from belittling the tendency which Mr. Coolidge and his Sentinels propose to resist. It constitutes a progressive threat to our system of constitutional liberty. The woods are full of impatient reformers who have no comprehension of the nature and value of that system and in their absorption in their pet evils and pet cures are ready to make our constitutions, national and state, the catchalls for their plans of reform. The Philadelphia Public Ledger asserts that in 136 years there have been 2,043 proposals of amendment. Their fate is encouraging. Nevertheless, if we are not to transform our constitutions from fundamental laws into conglomerates of statutes, this disposition must be resisted, and we wish the Sentinels well in their effort to rouse and organize resistance.

Meantime the suggestion above mentioned is deserving of consideration. If we are to have from now on a grist of proposals for changes in or additions to the constitution, the Sentinels demand an amendment requiring all future amendments to be ratified by newly chosen legislatures and made subject to confirmation by popular vote.

We agree that no amendment to our fundamental law should be possible without a full deliberation and a clear mandate.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

Close to the winter solstice and the short day of the year; close also to the last day and the final clip on the ticket; ready for frost to enter the ground and snow to cover it. With life dormant, man is most confident. This is the festival period of his greatest optimism, greatest belief in good and greatest serenity. He closes the record of a year, lays aside the last of the old tickets, exhausted of its days; and reaches for the new ticket of a new year with illusions bright in gray days and warm in the face of the north wind.

AMBASSADORIAL PRUDENCE.

The nomination of Frank B. Kellogg as ambassador to Great Britain has been confirmed by the senate and Mr. Kellogg soon will be on his way to London. His friends will caution him to take care of himself and watch his step. London is a delightful place, but Mr. Kellogg should keep away from Westminster Abbey. That great monument of British history may be fatal to an American.

Also Mr. Kellogg should keep out of the king's knee breeches. Congress ought to authorize the designing of a diplomatic uniform for state occasions, but if Mr. Kellogg must meet formal requirements he can design his own, something with a distinctive American touch. He can put on some war paint, a feather headgear, and a buckskin suit and go to parties as a Sioux Indian. If he thinks something typical of modern America would be more fitting he may paint the tip of his nose blue, wear a tall black hat, long black coat, black gloves, carry an umbrella, and go as the Statue of Liberty.

His imagination may suggest other appropriate court costumes which an American ambassador properly may use on state occasions. The East Indian princes get by in their native costumes and there is no reason an American ambassador can't.

FILIPINO INDEPENDENCE.

In our opinion congress ought to set a date for Filipino independence. The indefinite promises which make the islands restless ought to be given shape in a fixed time when American government will be withdrawn and the Filipinos given what they say they want, their independence.

The renewal of promises which come to nothing will increase the restlessness and may lead to trouble. Few Americans will relish the use of force to keep the islanders from being free as we have said they should be.

Proper regard for American rights, acquired under American control of the Philippines, would prevent precipitate withdrawal and would prohibit the giving over of Americans to any high handed procedures which a native government might want to use.

If Filipinos can make a go of their freedom Americans will be glad. Considerable effort has been devoted to preparing them and we hope it has not been wasted. If they do not make a go of it America cannot be held responsible. It is time for the United States to consider its own interests, and they are not served by maintaining this far frontier in the far east.

Our interests are in nearer waters and closer lands. It will do the United States good to give this illustration of its lack of imperialistic desire. It will do good in the western hemisphere for the United States to prove that it is a friend of liberty and does not want to deprive people of independence.

Editorial of the Day

THE "ALIEN-MINDED."

[Free translation from L'Italia.]

Secretary of Labor Davis and many others indorse Congressman Albert Johnson's idea that the immigration quota should be reduced from 3 to 2 per cent and even go so far as to approve the studied unfairness of basing that quota on the 1890 census; but nobody among those who make public declaration and none quite especially among the newspapers that indorse such restrictions, is showing such a pertinacious disparaging of the immigration from southern Europe as does THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

It is clear as daylight that this latest project has precisely the effect of favoring the Nordic immigration, to the detriment of that from the south. Now it is true, indeed, that the immigrants of British, German, and Scandinavian nationality are a good element; but that fact is no reason why any one should give himself up to orgies of defamation against those whose cradle did not happen to stand in northern Europe and who—aside from other positive qualities—are equally capable of becoming assimilated, equally deferent to the laws, and equally sound in mind and body.

There is none worse deaf than the one who does not want to hear, and it would indeed be an irksome task to change the frame of mind of the great Chicago paper in regard to the immigrants who hail from southern and eastern Europe. That paper has labeled them as mentally inferior, socially wormeaten, psychologically unfit, spiritually hostile, and now, moreover, as "alien-minded." What a subtle, what a picturesque expression of hate! To examine critically the assertion of THE TRIBUNE that the enormous contribution made by foreigners to American greatness is owed solely to the Nordic immigration—to refute once more that outburst of virulence—what good would come from such a work on our part? Those who have their minds set on perpetuating a silly tale would not be convinced by having us once more demonstrate to them what has so often already been demonstrated lucidly and convincingly.

The peril, whatever it may be, does not consist in the blind obstinacy of our opponents, but is contained, so we think, in the new classification which it is desired to bring into vogue. Such a slogan, however frightfully unjust it is, will focus sentiment mightily against the victims thus branded. It will not only exclude the immigrants but will stigmatize thousands and thousands of the best ones—we do say and mean of the best ones—of American citizens already naturalized.

OVERLOOKING THE LAKE.

Absent minded Prof. Smith had left his berth in the sleeper to find a drink of ice water and was hopelessly lost in the middle of the aisle. It was about midnight and the train was speeding through the country.

"Don't you remember the number of your berth?" asked the conductor.

"I'm—er—afraid not," was the reply.

"Well, haven't you any idea where it was?"

"Why, ah—O, yes, to be sure." The professor brightened perceptibly. "I did notice at one time this afternoon that the windows looked out upon a little lake!"—Judge.

YES, ISN'T IT.

"What are you studying now?" asked Mrs. Johnson.

"We have taken up the subject of molecules," answered the spp.

"I hope you will be very attentive and practice constantly," said the mother. "I tried to get your father to wear one, but he could not keep it in his eye."—Columbia Jester.

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

HOW ARMY WARRED ON ITCH.

THE impression given one who reads the army experiences with itch is that it makes little difference which remedy one uses, but the way it is used makes a great deal of difference. The way of using embraces the entire plan of treatment, including the application of the drug. The remedy is sulphur. There are a dozen preparations of it, each used effectively against itch. Most people use ordinary sulphur ointment. It is effective.

Those who do not care to use an ointment can use a solution of lime and sulphur as a wash.

This solution is as follows: Quicklime, 2; sublimated sulphur, 5; water to make 100. Add enough of the water to the lime to slack it. Add the sulphur; then the remainder of the water. Boil the liquid until the sulphur is dissolved. Add enough water to make 100. Pour into closed vessel. Allow sediment to settle. Pour off liquor. Keep in a porcelain dish and stoppered. Use a diluted [2 to 3] solution.

This wash penetrates the skin well and gets into the caverns in the skin in which lie the insects. It stains the skin it touches and, therefore, shows whether all the affected areas have been treated. Some add an irritant such as ichthyol or iodine.

The Danish itch remedy represents an effort to increase the penetrating power of the sulphur.

The report of the British army experience in the world war emphasizes the necessity of these procedures:

1. The preliminary washing with soap and hot water and scrubbing with a nail brush. The mouth of every insect tunnel must be opened up in order that the sulphur may get in and kill the buried parasite.

2. Every infested person must be freed from parasites else those who are cured will be speedily reinfested.

Applying this to civil life: if one infested member of a family or one infested child in school is not cleansed up when the others are, within a few weeks a good part of those cured will have relapsed.

3. Since the itch mite can live in clothing, the garments must be sterilized if any permanent good is to be done. This applies especially to gloves and undergarments. In army practice, the man under treatment undresses in one room, sends his clothes to the sterilizer and passes directly to the bathroom for his scrubbing and sulphur treatment. In civilian life it may not be necessary to go that far, but some of the attempts to get rid of itch fail because too little attention is paid to clothes. The parasites in clothes are easily killed. Washing in hot water will do it. It is not even necessary to boil them. Dry heat will kill. So will sulphur fumes.

In the army, toilet seats were washed with a 2 per cent solution of carbolic acid. It might be better to do that in a school in which the pupils were badly infested.

HE GOT MARRIED; THEN—

J. C. H. writes: I was married on June 6, 1923, and at that time weighed 134 pounds. Now I weigh 154 pounds. I was 56 years old this month. I attribute the gain to longer sleeping hours, milk and butter, eggs, etc. If it's "all wrong," guess I'll have to lay off of the eats for a while.

REPLY.

You do not give your height, therefore I have no way of knowing whether you are too fat or not. But if you are not, you soon will be if you continue gaining twenty pounds every six months. Overweight people are inefficient, subject to disease, and die early. If you keep up your present rate your wife will quit you unless she hangs on to get your life insurance.

BOY HAS ACID STOMACH.

Mrs. J. J. J. writes: My boy, aged 15 years, has an acid stomach. He complains of heartburn after every meal, and he thinks it is meat that causes it. He is growing very fast, and I feel he needs substantial food, and I really don't know what to cut out. Would you diet him?

REPLY.

A growing boy needs meat.

If he is constipated, overcome that. Constipation is the most frequent cause of heartburn. Rapid eating is another frequent cause. Have him eat very slowly.

Most cases of heartburn in young people can be overcome by these simple procedures.

ROSIN SOLVENTS MAY HARM.

L. writes: Will you let me know whether or not the odor of rosin being made into varnish base is bad for one's lungs?

It is very strong and seems to gag and irritate the throat.

REPLY.

The aromatics of pine trees, including rosin, is supposed to be soothing to the lungs. There can be too much of a good thing. This includes turpentine fumes in the air. However, if you are in any danger, the cause is liable to be the solvents employed and the organ endangered, some other than the lungs.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

Letters to this department must be signed with names and addresses of the writers.

HERE'S WHY.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—[Friend of the People.]—Will you kindly tell me why we cannot get our alley paved between Ashland and Justine and 63d and 64th streets, for which a majority of the property owners have signed the necessary consent? If the people want an improvement and want to pay for it, why is it that we cannot have it? This matter has been given to the board of local improvements a long time ago, and nothing has been done. Why? C. T.

An assessment was confirmed this fall for paving with concrete the alley in the block between 63d and 64th streets, Ashland avenue and Justine street. The work will soon be under contract, ready to start as soon as the weather will permit next year.
EDWARD J. GLACKIN, Secretary,
Board of Local Improvements.

SECOND COMPLAINT ABOUT SLEEP BREAKERS.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I wrote to you about a hop on Fullerton avenue which disturbed the sleep of the neighbors by keeping ducks, geese and chickens, also crowing roosters. For two nights after I wrote you the latter there was a cessation, which I thought was brought about by your good efforts, but after that time it was the same thing. If you can do anything to aid in this I shall appreciate it. If not, I shall break my lease and move, as I do not care to enter into any active controversy with them. J. L. J.

This matter was investigated by an inspector of the bureau of sanitation, who reported on Nov. 30 that there was no evidence of a nuisance sufficient to justify action by this department.
HERMAN N. BUNDESEN,
Commissioner of Public Health.

"KEEP ANYTHING FOR SEVEN YEARS."

Chicago, Dec. 11.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A school I formerly attended gave over its books to a collection agency to be audited and to have collections made. They have sent me a statement calling for $7.50 with $2.33 interest, for vocal lessons. Now I know I paid this bill when I left the school eight years ago. I cannot find the receipts at this late date, however. This is the first bill I have ever received from them. Am I forced to pay the bill again, just because I have not kept my receipts for all these years?
L. R. L.

The limitation period on contracts not in writing is five years. Even if not barred, it seems probable that you can defend on ground of minority.

ATTORNEY'S SERVICES NECESSARY.

Berwyn, Ill., Dec. 11.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A man died without a will in 1923. He had two brothers to whom he deeded his house and lot three days before his death. The two brothers are in Iowa. The hospital charges, nurse's fees and doctor's bill are unpaid. How can one collect if the brothers ignore letters? H. L. W.

James O. Haywarth, who was thrown from his carriage near Lincoln Park Dec. 4, died Sunday from his injuries. Mr. Haywarth was the son of Laurence Haywarth, who lived near Liverpool, Eng. In years past he was largely interested in the Illinois Central Railroad, and in connection of Mr. Potter, of the Grand Trunk (Canada) Railroad. Mr. Haywarth leaves a wife and three children to mourn his loss. Besides many friends and early acquaintances, he having resided in Chicago many years.

More than 800 bills were introduced into Congress yesterday.

The House of Representatives have voted to adjourn on Friday till after the holidays. They will convene again Jan. 8.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY (FACSIMILES)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 18.—President Wilson tonight formally withdrew his recent acceptance of honorary membership in the Military Order of the Carabao, composed of regular and volunteer officers of the army and navy who served in the Philippine islands during the four years succeeding the Spanish-American war.

Earlier in the day the president had ordered an investigation of various satires and travesties on the administration's policy toward the Philippines as portrayed at a banquet of the Carabaos in Washington Thursday night.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 18.—Victory for the administration forces in the first test of strength on the currency reform bill marked today's session of the senate. The vote, 40 to 35, tabled a substitute offered by Senator Hitchcock for section 2 of the administration bill proposing a system of four regional banks with a possible increase to eight, the regional bank stock to be owned by the public.

The defeat of this amendment practically insured the adoption of the Owen plan, which provides for from eight to twelve regional banks, with the stock owned by the national banks that become members of the respective regional banks.

New York, Dec. 18.—An absolute divorce for Hildegarde McKenna Putts, daughter of United States Supreme Court Justice McKenna, from John Leggett Pults to recommended in the report of a referee appointed to take testimony in Mrs. Pults's suit to the Supreme court here today.

The story from Washington that Roger C. Sullivan packed his grip and fled when he was warned that his activities in behalf of candidates for appointments were to be examined by the lobby investigating committee of the senate lacks indications of veracity. Roger could prove to any committee that he is out of politics and his influence is so small that he cannot even direct the actions of men on the Cook county board.

"Prince" Oldfield, Bar Harbor, "Billionaire" of the Manhattan cult of sun worshipers, yesterday was sentenced to six months in the house of correction and to pay a fine of $2,000. He was convicted by a jury last week age of sending obscene literature by express in violation of interstate commerce laws.

AMONG THE FOLKS IN HISTORY

SOLVING THE TRACTION PROBLEM TO ONE MAN'S SATISFACTION AT LEAST.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 10.—A study of the traffic conditions in Chicago by any one who will be real honest with himself and his neighbors will result in the only plan that will bring relief, and that is to "bust up the loop." Chicago is growing in population and growing fast, and the loop wants to "hog" all the trade, regardless of the cost to put it over. Subways, as they have been proposed, are a joke. They will turn over the traction fund to the bankers and investment brokers, who will get a commission for paying themselves money that they would otherwise lose, and the people would have a few miles of subway that would not be of benefit to the neighborhoods that need transportation.

Why should State street be uppermost in the minds of the so-called traction "experts." Why not think of the merchant who has been trying to build up a business in other parts of the city, but has been at a disadvantage, owing to poor transportation. Give him a chance and build up the city where it should grow. The only way to put over the present plan is to sound the bugle and round up Frank Vanderlip, Walter Fisher and the Harris Trust crowd. They are the ones that are needed in a time like this. Do you remember way back when some one from the Harris Trust told the mayor of Chicago that something terrible would happen to all of us if we refused to do a certain thing in reference to the street car company. Who wants the present plan on subway? Isn't it the bankers, the holders of the securities, State street and a few politicians? Why worry about bringing the crowds downtown. Is that the most vital question? Would the people die from grief if it was a hard task to take advantage of the "bargains" and the "below cost" sales? Rents are higher than they should be in the loop because it seems to be the fad to go downtown. The only way to clear up the traction question is to allow no street cars or elevated to enter the loop. Stop them a mile from State street on the west, Grand avenue on the north and Harrison on the south. C. M. CUMMINGS.

SURFACE CAR SERVICE.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—It is simply maddening to wait on street corners at junction points, Division and Clark or Devon and Clark, for either a No. 1 or No. 22 to finish trip to Howard avenue or streets between. We who live in Rogers Park are penalized for daring to live there. Here is a section containing, I am told, 100,000 people, given service that would discredit a community of half the size of Rogers Park.

What becomes of the high priced experts and of the aldermen who are always pledging service? Are they in existence?

When I see how quick action was accomplished by publication of a letter in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE by W. M. Lawson in reference to auto traffic regulations perhaps the publication of this letter may help to improve travel to Rogers Park on the surface lines.
MORRIS LYCHENHEIM, D. O.

LET'S HAVE FIGURES ON DEATHS DUE TO PEDESTRIANS.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—With regard to the recent crusade against unsafe driving conditions and all the publicity given automobile deaths, wouldn't it be fair to publish a list of the deaths in Cook county due to carelessness of pedestrians, children playing in the public thoroughfares, jaywalking, and the like? With all due respect to Chief Collins, why do large corporations, like newspapers, not excepting THE TRIBUNE, seem to be exempt from any of the ordinances against speeding, left turns, etc.? Why should the automobile be blamed for all the accidents that are caused by trains hitting cars, or fires, extreme carelessness by pedestrians, and various other ways the 600 odd victims of automobiles met their death? Why not make pedestrians obey the traffic signals and stop jaywalking?

Yours for better driving—and walking.
H. O. LEHMAN.

SOME TRAFFIC RULE VIOLATIONS TO BE OBSERVED.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—Reading the article in THE TRIBUNE this morning about Mayor Dever getting the police to enforce the auto laws is certainly good news to me. He is right about laws enough, but they are not enforced.

I hope those drivers who try to pass a street car when it is coming to a stop, those who insist on creeping along while a street car is discharging or receiving passengers, will be caught in this net. I had a friend who was killed by a driver of this type.

A woman that lives in the same building that I do was run down ten week ago and is now home again with very little improvement since the time of the accident.

This woman was always as careful as any person in Chicago, but she is suffering terribly through some one else's carelessness. The party responsible for her condition did not in all this time do as much as inquire as to how serious she was injured nor does he seem to care. But be sure is lucky it was not my wife he run down.

I certainly hope this type of law violator is taken care of.

I did not see East 67th street, near the Oakwoods cemetery, mentioned as a favorite haunt for speed maniacs as compares with any other car line in the city, as the autos use it as a regular speedway all hours of the day and night.
F. M. LINDEROS.

OPERA STUDENT ANSWERS OPERA GOER.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—The indignant individual who proudly signs himself Opera Goer can hardly, I should say, call himself Judge of Opera or Opera Lover, if his views on opera are along the lines he expresses. As to "Hansel and Gretel," a 50 cent to $3 opera, I would say great works in music are not judged by the price paid to hear them, any more than masterpieces in literature are thought of in terms of the price for copies of such works. I would remind the opera goer that Shakespeare and Emerson may be had in 25 cent copies, and one may hear the symphony play Beethoven and Wagner for 15 cents. From a performance of Humperdinck's fairy opera given years ago I remember the music was wholly lovely and always masterly music. The overture, incidentally, has formed a pleasant part of many of Mr. Stock's symphony programs. I can only conclude that Opera Goer's knowledge of fine things in opera is limited. To speak of the cast, I would remind our friend that the great singers of the company are not fitted for the roles of the fairy play because they cannot put forth the simplicity and the youthful spirit that the parts demand.

As for Polacco, more power to this artist, who is making opera grand for Chicago. A STUDENT OF THE OPERA.

THE EQUALITY ONE WOMAN WANTS.

Evanston, Ill., Dec. 10.—In answering the editorial in your Sunday's issue on "How Much Equality Do Women Want?" I feel I am voicing an army of worthy women that cry out from aching hearts, broken homes and very lonely lives. All the equality we want is a protecting law that will govern and punish men that are permitted to ruin, wreck and squander the finances of their wives, and desert them at will. To my knowledge there is no law on the books to cover that—enough for the wrong they do—let alone the harm. S. G.

...ORE TRAFFIC RULE VIOLATIONS TO BE OBSERVED.

Chicago, Dec. 11.—Reading the article in THE TRIBUNE this morning about Mayor Dever getting the police to enforce the auto laws is certainly good news to me. He is right about laws being rough, but they are not enforced.

I hope these drivers who try to pass a street car when it is coming to a stop, those who insist on creeping along while a street car is discharging or receiving passengers, will be caught in the net. I had a friend who was killed by a driver of this type.

A woman that lives in the same building that I do was run down ten weeks ago and is now home again with very little improvement since the time of the accident.

This woman was always as careful as any person in Chicago, but she is suffering terribly through some one else's carelessness. The party responsible for her condition did not in all this time do as much as inquire as to how serious she was injured nor does he seem to care. How be sure is lucky it was not my wife he run down.

I certainly hope this type of law violator is taken care of.

I did not see East 57th street, along the Oakwoods cemetery, mentioned as a favorite haunt for speed maniacs. It compares with any other car line in the city, as the autos use it as a regular speedway all hours of the day and night.

OPERA STUDENT ANSWERS OPERA GOER.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—The indignant individual who proudly signs himself Opera Goer can hardly, I should say, call himself Judge of Opera or Opera Lover, if his views on opera are along the ideas he expresses. As to "Hansel and Gretel," a 50 cent to $3 opera, I would say great works in music are not judged by the price paid to hear them, any more than masterpieces in literature are thought of in terms of the price for copies of such works. I would remind the opera goer that Shakespeare and Emerson may be had in 25 cent copies, and one may hear the symphony play Beethoven and Wagner for 15 cents. From a performance of Humperdinck's fairy opera given years ago I remember the music was wholly lovely and always masterly music. The overture, incidentally, has formed a pleasant part of many of Mr. Stock's symphony programs. I can only conclude that Opera Goer's knowledge of fine things in opera is limited. To speak of the cast, I would remind our friend that the great singers of the company are not fitted for the roles of the fairy play because they cannot put forth the simplicity and the youthful spirit that the parts demand.

As for Polacco, more power to this artist, who is making opera grand for Chicago.

A STUDENT OF THE OPERA.

THE EQUALITY ONE WOMAN WANTS.

Evanston, Ill., Dec. 10.—In answering the editorial in your Sunday's issue on "How Much Equality Do Women Want?" I feel I am voicing an army of worthy women that cry out from aching hearts, broken homes and very lonely lives. All the equality we want is a protecting law that will govern and punish men that are permitted to ruin, wreck and squander the finances of their wives, and desert them at will. To my knowledge there is no law on the books to cover that—enough for the wrong they do—let alone the harm.

DAUGHTERS USE LEITER GOLD TO UNSEAT CURZON

Feud Revealed by Gifts to Labor Party.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
(Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.)

LONDON, Dec. 15.—[Tribune Radio.]—Good Chicago money played an important part in the Labor victory at the recent elections. THE TRIBUNE learns that Lady Irene Curzon, daughter of Marquis Curzon and his first wife, who was Mary Leiter, subscribed heavily to the Labor war chest and worked for the Labor victory. She declared openly that she hoped the election would result in ending the policy of "good-during old gentlemen at the foreign office."

LADY IRENE CURZON.

Lady Cynthia Mosely, also a daughter of Lord Curzon, whose husband is a member of parliament for Harrow, worked there against the Conservative party, and is reported to have said rude things about her distinguished father and his policy.

Reveals Feud Over Fortune.

This openly reveals a feud between father and daughters which has been the subject of secret gossip for years. It is said to have arisen over the management of the fortune left the two girls by their mother. The father wished to control the administration, but the daughters on attaining their majority insisted on controlling their own money, and used most "hard-boiled" business methods with their father.

LADY CYNTHIA MOSELY. [E. & H. Photo.]

Lady Irene is now one of the leading candidates for one of the higher court appointments under the labor party. A number of these appointments are always made by the party in power, such as queen's mistress of robes and ladies of the bedchamber, and there is keen competition among the labor women for honors.

Commoners Also Seek Jobs.

It is said that Miss Dorothea Jewsen, daughter of a rich boot manufacturer, who is labor member of parliament for Norwich, has offered to give up her seat in favor of Arthur Henderson, secretary of the labor party, who was defeated at the election, on condition that she obtain a court appointment.

Another candidate is Mistress Methick Lawrence, whose husband beat Winston Churchill at Leicester, and who is also a woman of wealth.

Of course Lady Warwick, socialite, scientist, is prominently in the running. She was a prominent figure in the court in the gayest days of King Edward.

Labor Men Seek Peerages.

There is also an amusing situation over Labor peerages, which, it is claimed, must be created in order to carry on the work of government in the house of lords. The aspirants are gravely discussing whether they should be made earls, or viscounts, or simply barons. Many of the older Labor leaders are not unpleased at the prospect of translation to the upper house, where they will be relieved of the trouble of elections.

It is now certain that there will be no Liberal-Conservative coalition. David Lloyd George put the lid on this plan in an article published today and the radical wing of the party is determined to sanction nothing but a friendly attitude to the Labor party.

CORRESPONDENT FOR TRIBUNE IN ROME IS VICTIM OF GRIP

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

ROME, Italy, Dec. 15.—Vincenzo de Santo, who served as correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in Italy for several years, died suddenly today. He was a victim of grip. Mr. de Santo spent several years in the United States, serving as an instructor at an eastern university. He was a close friend of Premier Mussolini and furnished THE TRIBUNE with several important "inside stories" when the Fascisti dictator seized the government of Italy.

TEACHERS HIT PLATOON PLAN FOR SCHOOLS

The Chicago Teachers' federation yesterday started its fight against an introduction of Detroit's platoon system of school management in the local schools, following a report of a special committee of the federation which has been in Detroit inspecting the plan. The platoon system was characterized by Miss Margaret Haley, president of the federation, as "a circus, with one main show and a dozen side shows."

The action of the federation follows the decision of the board of education to build two schools in Chicago which are to be constructed on the platoon plan.

According to the committee's report, the children in Detroit make a general shift in the morning and go to small buildings for special work. Each teacher handles more than 600 students daily and keeps none of them for more than half an hour, the committee said. The students, on the other hand, go to at least seven teachers in the course of a day, and often more.

The findings of the committee, which are all unfavorable to the platoon plan, will be presented to the board of education in its study of school conditions, Miss Haley indicated.

VETERANS OF U. S. WARS HONOR GEN. L. M. BRETT

American soldiers and sailors who had served in wars and rebellions since '61, a number of the world war veterans hobbling in on crutches or carrying arms in slings, gathered last night in the Auditorium hotel to greet Brig. Gen. Lloyd M. Brett, retired commander in chief of the Cook county council of the department of Illinois, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The meeting was held in honor of Gen. Brett and the disabled veterans of the last war. Disabled men from hospitals at Great Lakes, Aurora, Speedway, Jackson Park, and Mooseheart attended.

KIDS' FAITH AT YULE DEFYING POVERTY'S GRI

Mother Appealed to th Good Fellows.

Their belief, their faith in the Chri[st]mas story is too strong. It cannot be broken. It cannot be downed.

They will hang up their stockings anyway.

Good Fellows—

That message of the children is offered for your study this Sunday morning. Give it a moment's thought as you sit in your comfortable chair smoking the old pipe and reading the paper. Picture the kids, if you can. Visualize them tacking up their toy stockings on Christmas eve.

Children's Faith Strong.

A mother wrote a letter to THE TRIBUNE yesterday.

"My three children have been making preparations for this Christmas day," it read.

"They have scorned their own stockings. Too small, they say. They have asked me for mine.

"Santa Claus is going to bring a big load, they say. They must have got big stockings. I haven't had the heart to tell them yet, but perhaps I should. Santa Claus cannot come to our house—I haven't an extra nickel to spend on toys.

"O, what shall I do? It breaks my heart to hear them talking about Christmas and see them making plans for the hanging up of their stockings.

"What shall I do?"

So There You Are.

There you are, Good Fellows. A poor mother, deserted perhaps by faithless husband, listening to the Christmas story as told by her children. She has in her letter a suggestion, better days, a suggestion of a good education. Why she is how pennile she hasn't explained.

What difference does the reason make? Cause has but little to do with Good Fellows; it's the effect that counts.

This woman is poor. Her purse is empty. Yet she has three children who are filled with the hopes of Christmas. They are going to hang up their stockings anyway.

There are hundreds of similar cases in this city. Hundreds of children are going to hang up their stockings, and unless the Good Fellows do the trick those stockings are going to be nothing but disappointments on Christmas morning.

KIDS' FAITH AT YULE DEFYING POVERTY'S GRIP

Mother Appealed to the Good Fellows.

Their belief, their faith in the Christmas story is too strong. It cannot be broken. It cannot be downed.

Good Fellows—

That message of the children is delivered for your study this Sunday morning. Give it a moment's thought as you sit in your comfortable chair, smoking the old pipe and reading the paper. Picture the kids, if you can. Visualize them tacking up their torn stockings on Christmas eve.

Children's Faith Strong.

A mother wrote a letter to THE TRIBUNE yesterday.

"My three children have been making preparations for this Christmas day," it read.

"They have scorned their own stockings. Too small, they say. They have asked me for mine.

"Santa Claus is going to bring a big load, they say. They must have good big stockings. I haven't had the heart to tell them yet, but perhaps I should. Santa Claus cannot come to our house—I haven't an extra nickel to spend on toys.

"O, what shall I do? It breaks my heart to hear them talking about Christmas and see them making plans for the hanging up of their stockings. "What shall I do?"

So There You Are.

There you are, Good Fellows. A poor mother, deserted perhaps by a ruthless husband, listening to the Christmas story as told by her children. She has in her letter a suggestion of better days, a suggestion of a good education. Why she is how penniless, she hasn't explained.

What difference does the reason make? Cause has but little to do with Good Fellows; it's the effect that counts.

This woman is poor. Her purse is empty. Yet she has three children who are filled with the hopes of Christmas. They are going to hang up their stockings anyway.

There are hundreds of similar cases in this city. Hundreds of children are going to hang up their stockings, and unless the Good Fellows do the job those stockings are going to be nothing but disappointments on Christmas morning.

That's It—Clip Coupon.

Clip the Good Fellow coupon. Send it in THE TRIBUNE. Or early tomorrow morning go to the Good Fellow headquarters, 11 South Dearborn street, and personally select a poor family to your liking. The names, addresses, ages, and all particulars are there—all you have to do is ask for them.

It was announced yesterday by Frank F. Mulkey, an official of the Chicago Association of Manufacturers' Representatives, that all of the resources of men and money are to be thrown into the Good Fellow work. This association will care for scores of families.

The members will make up baskets, deliver them to the poor children, and receive as their reward the smiles of the boys and girls. Could there be any greater reward?

The Good Fellow department received a donation of $179 from THE TRIBUNE composing room yesterday. The degree of Good Fellow is hereby awarded to every printer, line-o-type operator, make-up man, and proof-reader of the composing room. Good for them.

The Silent Christmas Spirit.

The above mentioned gift is exceeded by only one this year, and that one came anonymously. A cash donation of $260 was received yesterday. The name of the donor is not known. His gift will spread much joy among the poor kids of the city.

A donation of $88 came from the Kimrock Athletic association. The money was raised by a handball tournament staged yesterday by the members and Harry Gilmore and Paul Seidel, partners and managers of the association. Eighty-eight dollars will make a lot of kids happy.

The Good Fellow will have a rich reward Christmas morning when he knows that several score of children have been made happy by his gift.

Bandit Goes to Call on Girl and Meets Death

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 15.—Arthur Brown, Canadian bank bandit, who escaped after a gun fight with local police here late yesterday, was shot and instantly killed by William Meehan, a city detective, this afternoon as he went to call on a girl.

PITTSBURGH PLUS HEARINGS ENDED AFTER 4 YEARS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—After taking testimony for twenty-three months, the hearings in the famous "Pittsburgh plus" case before Special Examiner John W. Bennett of the federal trade commission came to an end here today.

The final witness was H. E. White of Minneapolis, traffic analyist of the Associated States Opposing Pittsburgh Plus, the organization of thirty-two states enlisted in the fight on this steel pricing practice.

Mr. White offered comprehensive figures and charts showing that the deductions made during the last week by three famous economists, Profs. John R. Commons of the University of Wisconsin, Frank A. Fetter of Princeton, and William Z. Ripley of Harvard, were correctly reflected in what actually took place in the country's steel market.

They also showed that in the brief periods when "Pittsburgh plus" was not in effect there was an answering downward trend of prices.

The case has been before the commission altogether for four years. The evidence contains nearly 8,000 highly complicated exhibits, and approximately 50,000 typewritten pages.

CITY TO HONOR LAST OF BOSTON TEA PARTY MEN

Ceremonies Set for Today at Lincoln Park.

BY JOHN KELLEY.

Today being the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Boston "tea party," members of patriotic societies will visit a grave in Lincoln park to pay homage to the memory of David Kennison, who was the last survivor of that historic incident.

A granite boulder with a bronze tablet, which records the memorable deed of the man buried there, marks the last resting place of the old soldier near the Wisconsin street entrance to the park. At the time of his interment Lincoln park was a cemetery.

David Kennison (also spelled Kinnison) was 115 years old when he died in Chicago in 1852. He came west in 1845, and for two or three years after his arrival he was lecturer at a museum in the Commercial building, 72 Lake street. "There he spoke volubly on the wax figures and "the wonders of nature, the beauties of art, and the relics of antiquity." At each performance he also briefly described the Boston "tea party." In 1848 he became manager of the museum.

Joins Political Club.

Born at Old Kingston, in the district of Maine, in 1736, Kennison grew to manhood in his native state, which was then a part of Massachusetts. About the year 1760 he removed to Lebanon, Conn., and settled on a small farm. He was of one of seventeen young men who formed a political club which held secret meetings.

The club was organized about the time the English parliament laid a tax on tea of 3 pence per pound and attempted to make the people of this country (then an English colony) purchase the article in the same quantity as before taxation. This was in 1767.

In 1770 England sent a ship load of tea consigned to Boston merchants who sided with the home government. The incensed citizens would not permit the tea to be placed on sale, and it was taken back to England in one of John Hancock's vessels, freight free.

Invitation to Tea Protest.

In November and December, 1773, three boat loads of tea with a total of 340 chests arrived in Boston harbor. England was going to make us drink that East India company tea even if she had to pour it down our throats. On the day following the arrival of the first cargo a circular was widely distributed, which read:

"Friends, Brethren, Countrymen! That worst of all plagues, the detested Tea, shipped for this Port by the East India Company, has now arrived in this harbor. The hour of Destruction, or manly Opposition to the machinations of Tyranny stares you in the face. Every friend to his country, to himself and to Posterity, is now called upon to meet at Faneuil Hall at 9 o'clock this day, at which time the Bells will ring, to make a united and successful resistance to this last, worst and most Destructive measure of administration."

Insist Tea Go Back.

This notice brought a vast concourse of people from Boston and surrounding towns, and resolutions were passed that the tea should be sent back to London.

On Dec. 14 another meeting was held at the old South church. The captains in charge of the vessels with the tea aboard were ordered to sail at once for London. They refused to do so.

Two days later another meeting was held at the same place. The church was packed. About 6 o'clock in the evening, or "candle lighting time," thirty or forty men dressed as Indians marched into the meeting. Their faces were painted and they carried tomahawks.

Getting Ready to Fete.

"To Griffin's wharf! To Griffin's wharf!" shouted the bogus Indians, flourishing their tomahawks.

It was at Griffin's dock that the boats loaded with the tea were moored. With a war whoop the "Indians" left the meeting house and sped toward the pier. They scrambled aboard the vessels and made prisoners of those in charge of the tea.

Every chest was thrown into the waters of the bay, after the marauders had smashed them open with their hatchets.

David Kennison was one of those who took part in the destruction of the tea, as the tablet over his grave, erected by the Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution, attests.

The sturdy old patriot served all through the revolutionary war, and was one of the first to enlist at the breaking out of the war of 1812, although he was past 75 years of age.

He died Feb. 24, 1852, after a brief illness. His funeral was held from the First Methodist church. It was the most imposing military pageant ever seen in Chicago up to that time.

Recall Officer for Part in Bergdoll Kidnap Plot

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—Because he allowed himself to become implicated in the attempt to kidnap Grover Bergdoll, the draft evader, Maj. R. P. Harbold has been relieved from duty with the graves registration service in France and ordered to return to the United States. Maj. Harbold is said to have allowed the use of an army automobile by those who attempted the kidnaping.

Judge Friend Reaches Court Late; It's a Girl

Court attachés, lawyers, and litigants in Judge Hugo M. Friend's Circuit courtroom yesterday morning looked at the clock on the wall in surprise. The judge, usually more punctual than any one else, was a half hour late. At that moment he hurried in, a happy smile on his face.

"It's a girl," he said.

Mrs. Friend and the baby are doing well at the Washington Park hospital.

HIRAM'S STATE COMMITTEE PLAN NOW IN DISCARD

Small Issue Apparently Too Big an Obstacle.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Senator Hiram W. Johnson's plan of having an Illinois committee to handle his campaign in this state apparently has gone into the discard.

More than a month ago, while in Chicago, he announced that he would have such a campaign organization and that William Wrigley Jr. had consented to act as chairman of the committee. But Wrigley's name is the only one that has been announced and inquiries concerning the rest of the membership have been futile.

"That matter is entirely in Mr. Hitchcock's hands," said Wrigley, referring to Frank H. Hitchcock, who, after the Illinois committee plan was announced, was appointed national campaign manager for Johnson. Hitchcock is expected back in Chicago to open his headquarters this week and soon thereafter, it is believed, there will be a statement that the committee idea has been dropped.

Where Difficulty Lies.

The chief difficulty in connection with the plan is said to have been discovered in the effort to keep the Johnson candidacy a "middle of the road" affair in Illinois. The senator's coming out party here and the hubbub that was raised when it was learned that Gov. Len Small was on the program with him convinced every one that the candidate was determined not to be listed on either side in the Small fight.

But when it came to picking the personnel of a state committee, according to the gossip, great difficulty was encountered in avoiding the big issue in the state. The first impression—that Johnson did not want to alienate the Small forces—raised the question whether there might not be some Lundin-Thompson people on the committee, and this is said to have led a number of eligibles for the committee to assume a hold off attitude.

The politicians predicted it would be impossible for Johnson to pick a workable committee consisting of friends and opponents of the governor, and they also said it would be difficult to find men who are not on one side or the other whose names would mean anything in the state.

The Next Step.

It is supposed that if the committee plan is dropped the next step will be to select some one to take charge of the Johnson campaign in Illinois—in other words, a state manager. And it is believed that Wrigley could not accept an appointment of that character. He does not pretend to have the intimate organization experience required and he is too busy a man to devote himself to such a grind.

The Service Men's league, through its Republican and Democratic committees, has been looking over the primary situation on both sides of the fence and is voicing a demand that war veterans be given places on the primary tickets. The Democratic committee has suggested a number of names, including that of Carter H. Harrison Jr., who is mentioned as good timber for the Democratic choice for lieutenant governor.

The Republican committee has gone to an extreme in proposing its material and has prepared a list of about sixty names which it says should be considered.

GROSS ELECTION FRAUD CHARGED; RECOUNT ASKED

Recount of ballots cast in the judicial election of Nov. 6 is sought in a petition filed yesterday in the Circuit court by representatives of the Better Government association. The petition charges gross frauds on the part of election officials.

Emphasizing particularly the case of Emanuel Eller, who was declared elected on the official canvass, the petition, filed before Circuit Judge Ira D. Ryner, asserts that a recount of the votes would show Eller to have been defeated.

Hits Three Men.

Eller, the petition alleges, received 15,000 less votes than were declared to have been cast for him. The same allegation is made as to Frederick R. De Young and William Lindsay, declared elected by the official count. The three men occupied the lowest places in the list of successful candidates when the final count was announced.

A recount also will show, the petition declares, that Howard Hayes, Marvin Barnhart, and Thomas Marshall who headed the list of defeated candidates, should be credited with 10,000 more votes than they were given.

When these results are obtained, the petition sets forth, Eller, De Young, and Lindsay will have been shown to have been defeated. Hayes, Barnhart, and Marshall, under the same reasoning, received sufficient votes to give them a place on the bench.

Gives Details of Error.

Specific instances of fraud, error, and omission, perpetrated by judges and clerks of election, are set up in the bill.

In many precincts, it is alleged, the judges and clerks had before them a large number of straight Democratic ballots, the voter intending that the twenty Democratic candidates each should receive a vote.

In tallying these ballots, the bill alleges, the clerks gave a vote to nineteen Democrats omitted the other and gave his vote to Eller instead.

In other precincts the vote was estimated—not even counted, and favored certain candidates, the petition asserts. In fourteen precincts of Eller's home ward, the Twentieth, he received by the clerks' count, 6,906 of the 7,276 votes cast. The ward is strongly Democratic and Eller ran on the Republican ticket.

Politicians Ran the Polls.

Similar conditions occurred in other wards, the bill asserts. Some polling places were run by precinct politicians instead of judges and clerks, it charges.

The petition, which was filed in the names of Thomas E. D. Bradley, president of the Better Government association, and Charles E. Coleman and R. C. Brown, opens the way for Hayes, Barnhart, and Marshall to join in support of the demand for a recount.

PROUD OF PRIZE CAT

Mrs. O. F. Heslar, whose home is in Indianapolis, Ind., is proud of her undefeated Persian cat, Princess Bondella, which won a championship at the pet stock show yesterday. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

POULTRY SHOW, PRIZES GIVEN, TO CLOSE TODAY

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Who's who in the poultry yards of the middle west has been written on the exhibit cages at the fifteenth annual exposition of the Great Midwest Poultry and Pet Stock association, which closes tonight.

More than 2,500 visitors passed through the aisles of the Coliseum yesterday.

Leads the Persian Cats.

All the awards have been made in the pet stock division of the show which is being held in the Coliseum annex. Champion Princess Bondella, the undefeated silver shaded Persian cat, owned by Mrs. O. F. Heslar, Indianapolis Ind., retained its title in fast competition.

The poultry, rabbits, and cavies, including all the prize winners, will remain in their exhibition cages until 10 o'clock tonight.

Frank Platt, editor of the American Poultry Journal, declared last night that he never had seen a better exhibition of birds in the middle west.

Reveal Poultry Secrets.

In rounding out the program, midwestern agricultural college experts have given amateurs a chance to make a closeup study of the blue ribbon birds. Short courses have been conducted on the selecting, feeding, breeding, and managing of flocks. A. G. Philips, chief of the poultry department at Purdue university, has had charge of the lecture courses.

"I didn't know a thing about handling poultry when I began attending these lectures three years ago," R. Notsold, 6834 South May street, said. "The fact that I'm getting a premium price—$1 a dozen—for eggs from my hens shows how much good I'm getting out of such courses."

Theodore Hewes, manager of the show, said there would be more extensive lectures next year.

SUPREME COURT ASKED TO ANNUL NITTI HANGINGS

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—The Illinois Supreme court today was asked to set aside the death sentences of Mrs. Sabelle Nitti Crudelle and her husband, Peter Crudelle, convicted of beating the woman's first husband to death and throwing the body in the Des Plaines river. Arguments were made by Attorneys Rocco de Steffano and Thomas E. Swanson, who are seeking a reversal of the conviction. The court took the case under advisement until the February term.

A substantial defense fund for the Italian woman and her lover, whom she married shortly after her first husband was slain, has been raised by Chicago Italians. State Representative Michael Durso, who was instrumental in raising the fund, accompanied the defense attorneys to Springfield today.

Scholle's Good Furniture for Christmas

YOU know, of course, that you can't give anybody a more welcome gift than a nice piece of furniture or a rug, especially if you give it to somebody who really needs something "extra" for the home.

A gift that folks live with; that's useful every day; that adds to the beauty and attractiveness of the home; that continues to last and does these things for years; such a gift is ideal.

The chief reason, we believe, that more Christmas gifts are not bought in a furniture store is that you may feel that with all the loved ones to be remembered at Christmas you can't afford to give quite so much to any one of them as a fine piece of furniture or a beautiful rug would cost. And maybe that's a good reason.

But we have many things here suitable for such gifts that are really quite inexpensive. You might be surprised to find how many nice things we have that even a modest appropriation would cover.

We're always at your service to show these goods; and if, afterward, you find that what you bought doesn't quite suit the recipient, or for any reason you just "wish you hadn't," it may be returned for something else, or for the money back.

Our guarantee of satisfaction knows no seasons; it's always in operation.

VARIOUS LIQUORS FLOODING U. S. AS HOLIDAYS NEAR

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

New York, Dec. 15.—[Special.]—With Christmas fast approaching wet goods for the holidays are streaming in by land and sea. Smugglers have redoubled their operations along the Canadian border and quantities of Scotch made in the dominion are getting through, as well as some real stuff from the government liquor shops in Montreal and Quebec.

It seems that a few bottle of Scotch or Canadian Club have come to be a conventional souvenir of a Canadian trip, even among our most respectable circles. A prominent New Yorker, one of the highest types of citizen, in commenting upon booze smuggling as one of the accepted arts, the other day became introspective.

Resents Infringement on Liberty.

"When I go to Montreal," he said, "I tuck a couple of bottles in my pockets and bring them home. I'm scared of the stuff sold here. Before prohibition we rarely had liquor in the house. I don't know what the exact psychology is, but many resent what they deem an infringement upon personal rights guaranteed by the constitution. They don't drink because they think it is smart to break the law or defy it; they don't buy expensive stock simply to be ostentatious, although doubtless some do it to make a show of wealth, but they have taken to getting a case now and then largely to show their adherence to the principle of noninterference with the fundemental rights of men."

Plea to "Best People."

The law enforcement people are apparently coming to the same way of thinking. Roy Haynes, prohibition commissioner, a few days ago said there was practically no real stuff in New York, which was stuff and nonsense, as any visitor from the west who had gone in search of a snort might have told him. He was quoted likewise as saying that nobody is talking about prohibition these days, whereas instead it is the great topic whenever two men meet, especially along the "White Way." A few days ago when Jack's place had $100,000 worth of liquor restored by the courts passers by put on a great ovation when the red vans were backed up to the restaurant door. Traffic was blocked and the police had to break open the jam. Gen. Haig probably never had a warmer reception in London than Haig & Haig had on its reentry into Jack's.

Since then this eating house has had a great run of business from customers who cherish the hope that some day some of that old stuff may be put in circulation.

But this year's crop of town purchasers is said to be the most skeptical and hard boiled since 1920, and a bootlegger needs some credentials of reliability before he cuts hard into this business.

LOONEY ORDERED SENT TO ILLINOIS COURT FOR TRIAL

Santa Fé, N. M., Dec. 15.—United States District Judge O. L. Phillips late today ordered John P. Looney of Rock Island, Ill., removed to jurisdiction of the federal court in Peoria, Ill., to face a charge of violation of the Dyer automobile theft act, preferred against Looney by the federal grand jury in Illinois.

Henry McCarthy of Rock Island, Ill., asked that he be "given full protection" when he was called to testify in Looney's hearing today.

"I was told by Dennis Bennett to watch what I said as I might be found dead in Santa Fé," McCarthy announced to the court when he was called to the witness stand. Bennett is a Rock Island police detective.

McCarthy also said that Assistant United States District Attorney W. B. Schroeder of Illinois, who is assisting United States District Attorney George Craig in the case, told him "to be careful what you do, as you know what you are up against."

The hearing brought from Looney a positive denial that he knew anything about the presence of an alleged stolen automobile in a garage in Rock Island, and a statement from McCarthy that, despite previous testimony before the federal grand jury in Illinois, he now believes he was mistaken in saying that Looney was in the automobile when it was driven to the garage for storage.

Daughter, Granddaughter Get R. M. Sullivan Estate

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—The will of Richard M. (Dick) Sullivan, Illinois Republican leader, who was killed in the Twentieth Century Limited wreck at Forsythe, N. The estate now goes to a daughter and granddaughter, the latter the child of Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Sturwan, who were wreck victims.

BANK WAS NOT A BANK, CLAIM IN SMALL CASE

State Takes Depositions in Chicago This Week.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Cross examination of Harry B. Luehrs, former assistant state treasurer, by Attorney Thomas D. Masters, counsel for Gov. Len Small in the $2,000,000 treasury interest suits, occupied the greater part of today's session before Master in Chancery Charles G. Briggle.

Springfield hearings were adjourned indefinitely today and the case will be transferred to Chicago next Wednesday to take depositions of Chicago witnesses, including bankers and the packers to whom $10,000,000 of state funds were loaned by Small and his banking associate, the late Senator E. C. Curtis.

Says Bank Was Fictitious.

In these early stages the attorney general says he expects to establish his claim that the "Grant Park bank" did not exist, that stationery of the alleged fictitious institution was ordered April 21, 1917, the same day that the first transaction was made with the packers.

The "business" of the "Grant Park bank" was of such character, it is claimed, that it had no blank checks for customers' use and was not listed by the American Bankers' association.

The hearing today was marked by frequent clashes between Attorney Masters and Charles W. Hadley, of the attorney general's staff.

"Brundage has no national reputation as humorist," Masters declared.

On cross examination Mr. Masters asked about certain practices that existed in the treasurer's office prior to Small's last term as treasurer.

Objects to Question.

"I object," exclaimed Mr. Hadley. "Just because other persons might have violated the law didn't justify Small in doing it."

Testimony today developed that interest earnings on funds in the "safe" account, which was created for the purpose of handling the $10,000,000 packer loans, received the special attention of Mr. Small, although Mr. Luehrs was familiar with transactions made through the vault account with several hundred bona fide banks.

FORFEITSMORON'S BONDS; 14 GIRL VICTIMS IN COURT

Judge John Richardson in the South Chicago branch of the Municipal court yesterday ordered the $4,000 bonds of Alex Kasingis, 11331 Langley avenue, forfeited when he failed to appear in court to answer serious charges made by four girls, whose ages ranged from 6 years to 11 years.

Shortly before the case was called, ten other victims of similar ages walked into the courtroom and were ready to testify against Kasingis, who was arrested on Nov. 29. His bonds were set at $4,000, and were signed by Samuel Kaplan of 806 North Oakley avenue.

Accompanied by Father Kehoe of Holy Rosary parish, a number of settlement workers and city nurses, the Rev. John P. Brushingham, secretary of the city's morals commission, was in court to press the charges.

Claims to Have Invented 360 Miles an Hour Airplane

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 15.—[Tribune Radio.]—An airplane, capable of traveling at a speed of 360 miles an hour is claimed to have been invented by M. Melot, who has already constructed fast freak machines. The new type has no propeller, getting propulsion through suction, like a fish taking in water in its mouth and expelling it through the gills. Special gas burners operate through big long horns, creating a partial vacuum.

RADIO LOOMS AS VAST FACTOR IN LIFE OF NATION

4 Big Corporations Act to Simplify It.

ing set is no good unless there is something to receive.

The Radio Corporation of America, occupying the whole eighteenth floor of the Woolworth building, New York, with imposing offices, is the darling infant of radio. It controls all wireless communication between ships, and between ships and shore, and also transacts a large business in trans-oceanic wireless. Too, it has two New York broadcasting stations.

Bit of the Radio Corporation.

Thus the Radio Corporation, as it is briefly called, has three kites on its string: Wireless telegraphy, broadcasting, and a third; this a dandy; it is the selling agency for all products of the Westinghouse and General Electric.

It is only fair to say that the American Telephone and Telegraph is not active in the Radio Corporation. It has withdrawn all financial interest, retaining what may be called a moral flavor. But there they are, A. T. & T., General, Westinghouse, and Radio Corporation. It is interesting to trace radio from its beginning through its present history and peer into the bewildering future.

(This is the first of a series of articles on the national radio situation.)

Chase & Sanborn Men to Gather for Dedication

Executives of Chase & Sanborn from all over the United States will attend the dedication on Dec. 17 of the company's new building at Wells street and the river. The convention will also celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of the founding of the business. The new structure extends from the Chicago river on the south to the Northwestern railroad on the north.

ITALIAN BOY'S TRANCE MYSTERY TO SCIENTISTS

Youth Proves Best in Psychic Test.

New York, Dec. 15.—[Special.]—The Scientific American found tonight the most promising contestant to date for its $2,500 prize for a medium producing genuine psychic phenomena. This medium is Nino Pecoraro, an Italian boy, who gave his second sitting in the magazine's law library.

At the end of the seance, J. Malcolm Bird, chairman of the Scientific American investigating committee, announced the committee was practically convinced the manifestations produced by the medium were either genuine psychic phenomena or the result of subconscious fraud.

"We regard this case as unusually interesting and believe the medium does not practice conscious fraud," said Mr. Bird.

Scientific men who attended the sittings of Nino tonight and last Monday believe he goes into a genuine hypnotic trance and remains in it throughout the seance. There are two theories to account for this trance—one, that it is the result of self-hypnosis, the other that he is hypnotized by somebody outside of the black curtained unlighted cabinet into which he goes.

Nino, who speaks only Italian, and his manager and interpreter, Dr. Anselmo Vecchio, attributed tonight's phenomena to Mme. Palladino, the world famous medium, who died several years ago, and to another "spirit-control," Mannie, Nino's dead brother.

The investigators believe that if the medium produced his phenomena by conscious fraud he did so by edging his chair from one side of the cabinet to the opposite side, where stood another chair from which came the noises of a megaphone playing, a tambourine playing, a whistle blowing, and bells ringing during the seance. He could move his free hand only a few inches, but that would have been enough if he got his own chair close enough to the other one.

TRIPLE BILL OF OPERA AFFORDS RARE CONTRAST

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Nothing less than a triple bill was offered opera goers at the Auditorium yesterday afternoon, with one of its items entirely new, another nearly so, and the third a standard work with an altogether uncommon performance.

The first in point of time was "The Snow Bird," by the American composer, Theodore Stearns. Since it had its first performance only last season, it was the almost new piece. Probably since Mr. Stearns has had the opportunity of listening to it as presented from the stage, he has learned several things to do in his next work. The most important would seem to be that continual distrust of sustained melody is not always wise. He has a decided melodic gift and knows how to write with color. The trouble is that contrast is lacking because of a multitude of details. At the same time there was som excellent singing by Forrest Lamont, and an even more charming performance by Margery Maxwell.

Highly Amusing Acting.

Then came Paer's "Maestro di Cappella," entirely new in the Civic opera's repertoire. It is an old time comic opera in one act, with pleasant old time music, the whole intended for the comic powers of Vittorio Trevisan. Simple in construction, it tells how an old music master has written an opera, acts and sings all the parts and imitates most of the orchestral instruments. If it had been in an understandable language, it would have been a good joke. As it was, it served to display some highly amusing acting by Mr. Trevisan, and excellent comic assistance from Mabel Sherwood and Lodovico Oliviero. Isaac Van Grove conducted both works, and made a first class job of it.

Raisa Thrills Them.

The final part was "Cavalleria Rusticana," with Rosa Raisa singing and acting Santuzza as though she was inspired. Never in all the times this work has been given here were there as many thrills as she put into it, including a headlong fall down the church steps that looked positively back-breaking. Splendid singing by Giulio Crimi, also by Giacomo Rimini and Irene Pavloska added other thrills, as did Pietro Cimini's conducting.

TRIO OF SOCIETY MAIDENS DIVIDE HONORS IN PLAY

Muriel McCormick Wins Praise.

Miss Muriel McCormick as Hansel, Miss Betty Fitts as Gretel and Miss Frances Oliver as the Cat shared honors as the stars of yesterday morning's performance at the Playhouse by the Junior League Theater for Children of the fairy tale, "Hansel and Gretel."

The first attracted the especial attention of the many "grownups" in the audience by her finished portrayal of the young boy, and all three delighted the children by their impersonations. Miss Fitts was as sweet a little flaxen haired Gretel and Miss Oliver as mischievous a pussy as one could hope to find.

Those in the Cast.

The others in the cast were Miss Louise Mitchell and Miss Carroll Elting as the father and mother of Hansel and Gretel; Miss Emily Bissell and Miss Sarah Spencer as the King and Queen; Miss Margaret Hambleton and Miss Helen Hoyne as the Princess and the Prince; and Miss Marousss Russell as the wicked Witch. The play will be repeated on the next three Saturday mornings at 10:30 o'clock at the Playhouse.

Some of the older people in the audience yesterday were Miss McCormick's mother, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, who was accompanied by Mrs. John Borden, and her father, Harold F. McCormick, whose companion was Col. Lasaref; Mrs. Charles F. Fitts, Miss Eleanor Holden, Miss Lydia Hibbard, Miss Marion Warner, Mrs. Thorne Donnelley, Miss Sarah Hinde, Miss Marjorie King, Miss Florence Harris, Mrs. Kenneth Carpenter, Mrs. Ezra J Warner, Miss Marion Farnsworth, Mrs. Nathan S. Davis III., and Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr.

Hull House Children There.

Among the children were a group from Hull House, and Betty Borden, Margaret Scholle, Ellen Bull, Louise and Buddy Blossom, Jean Anderson, Mary Jenkins, Virginia Purcell, Louise Miles, Katherine Collins, Virginia Amberg, Josephine Dennehy, Barbara Mitchell, Julia Follansbee, and Nora Jane Ryerson.

SEVEN SECOND COUSINS MAY SPLIT $6,000,000

Results of his search through thirty states for heirs to the $6,000,000 estate of Edwin B. Jennings, eccentric Chicago capitalist, were given yesterday before Assistant Probate Judge F. W. Elliott by Attorney E. B. Williams.

Jennings, a bachelor, left no will. He had no immediate relatives.

A search extending from Kansas to Vermont was described by Mr. Williams. Seven second cousins of Jennings are believed to be his only living heirs. They are John A. Jennings Jr., 8323 South Crawford avenue; Florence E. Brady, 5554 Kenwood avenue; Charles R. Jennings, 5554 Kenwood avenue; George H. Jennings, Glen Ellyn, Ill.; Norman C. Brissa, New York; Edna E. Quest, Louisville, Ky.; Sarah M. O'Carr, Simcoe, Ont.

MODERWELL TO HEAD NEW SCHOOL PLAN COMMISSION

Charles M. Moderwell, president of the board of education, was elected chairman of the recently appointed school plan commission, which held its first meeting yesterday. Homer Davis, former executive secretary of the advisory school plan commission, was elected secretary.

Miss Anise Slatery, president of the central council of elementary teachers, who was appointed on the new commission, declined to serve. She did not state her reasons.

Miss Slatery was chairman of a committee representing the Teachers' federation which recently made a study of the Detroit plan of school management and is known to be unfavorable to the platoon system. This, it is believed, was one of the reasons why she prefers not to accept the appointment.

CONFIDENCE.

Not one customer in a hundred—perhaps not one in a thousand—ever sees the principal owners or managers in a large business. The buyer depends upon the representations made by a salesman or other representative. If it is necessary for a customer to see one of the officers, it will be found that they will extend help or advice.

A customer should have an impression—perhaps built up little by little over the years—as to the standards of all the establishments he favors. If the firm has been built on the confidence of the people, it will be obvious—not in the spoken or advertised word—but in the record that is being made during the many years of business existence.

Notoriety for a firm or individual does not accomplish anything except as it is based on merit.

Real greatness lies in service.

$300,000 RAISED TO AID STARVING TEUTON CHILDREN

Need for Hurrying Rest of Quota Urgent.

BY LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

The Chicago committee for the starving German children, at a luncheon and conference at the Morrison hotel yesterday afternoon, discussed the imperative need of sending money to feed some 7,000,000 hungry little boys and girls.

To date, according to Otto F. Reich, chairman of general contributions, a little over $300,000 has been raised; $700,000 has still to be raised before Chicago will have reached its assigned quota of $1,000,000. Yesterday $20,619 was reported collected by the different team captains who are the moving spirit of the campaign.

Wieboldts Give $10,000.

The Wieboldt foundation subscribed $10,000. The woman's division of the American Welfare company gave $500, and from Miss Grace Reed, principal of the Willard school, Chicago, came $100. She gave it, she said, in memory of her mother who was the first teacher of German in the city schools, many years ago.

Similar contributions are reported each day by the campaign workers. But they are not enough. They must come in faster than they have, and in larger amounts, if Chicago is not to fall woefully short of its quota.

Need Is Urgent.

Kent E. Keller put it graphically when he said:

"We are working to save those who cannot save themselves. We are going to feed little children who are thin and white and undernourished and hungry all of the time. If Chicagoans really realized the desperate need in Germany today they would open their purses and let their hearts dictate what they should give. It is because the people don't understand. They can't conceive the horrors of a situation 3,000 miles away—a situation which is growing steadily worse every day, and more heart breaking."

Some Reasons for Speed.

Here are a few of the reasons for your sending a check, small or large, according to your purse, to the committee for the starving German children, 10 North Clark street:

"In some cities one-sixth of the school children are suffering from famine.

"At least 7,000,000 children are hungry most of the time.

"Mortality rate among babies during the last three months was 21 per cent higher than last year.

"One-half the babies are put into orphan asylums when born because parents cannot provide for them.

"They have no swaddling clothes for new babies. Bed clothing is insufficient. Food isn't to be had."

Gen. Charles G. Dawes is general chairman of the committee, and Herman Waldeck is treasurer.

KEEP YULE MERRY BY AVOIDING FIRES, CITY EXPERT WARNS

"Better a house of merriment than a house of mourning," declared Assistant Fire Marshal John C. McDonnell, chief of the bureau of fire prevention, yesterday in a warning against the use of "cotton snow" and candles on Christmas trees.

"Every year many children are burned to death and many homes destroyed by fires from Christmas candles. Do not celebrate Christmas by setting fire to your home."

The following Christmas "don'ts" were urged by the marshal:

Do not use lighted candles on Christmas trees.

Do not use cotton to represent snow. If you must imitate snow, use powdered mica or asbestos fiber.

Do not leave matches within reach of children. Candles are meant to be lighted, and if the children can get matches they will experiment by lighting them in order to imitate their elders.

Do not allow trees to remain within buildings after the holidays. The tree, when its needles have become dry, is easily ignited and burns fiercely.

SHOWER OF GOLD IS PROSPERITY'S YULE GIFT TO U. S.

New York, Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Something like $50,000,000 or $60,000,000, conservatively estimated, will flow into the stockings of the stockholders of big business enterprises of the country as Christmas presents this year through the payments of extra dividends declared during the last few weeks. These are, of course, in addition to the regular quarterly, semi-annual, and annual dividends.

In a number of cases where extra dividends were not declared, the corporations made arrangements for the payment of dividends deferred during the period of depression, which also is in the nature of a Christmas present to the stockholders.

Economists and statistical experts of Wall street attribute these payments to substantial, sound business conditions and a more generally profitable operation of business.

The first of these extra dividends was declared toward the latter part of November. When the month had run its course it was found that thirty-nine companies had entered the extra dividend rank, with a total of $21,638,583 to be disbursed. The Ingersoll-Rand company headed the list with $4,360,000. The Eastman Kodak company was next with $2,520,438. The Pittsburgh Plate Glass company was third with $1,656,745, and the Vacuum Oil company fourth with $1,200,000.

The amount for December has not been totaled, but in the first thirteen days of the month forty-five declarations of extra dividends were made. Some of these were by the larger companies and call for distribution of profits well up into the millions. Wall street experts say that before Christmas the extra dividends of December will reach at least $35,000,000.

Among the notable extras of the month was that of the First National bank of New York City, which will distribute 20 per cent as a "bonus." This is in addition to quarterly dividends of 10 per cent. The total distribution of the year is brought to 60 per cent of the capital stock, or $6,000,000.

LEGION NOTES

William McKinley post, American Legion, with headquarters at Archer avenue and 35th street, has elected the following officers: Gibson E. Gorman, commander; Andrew Gatenbey, first vice president; Benjamin Shields, second vice president; Arthur Graham, financial secretary; Herbert Waltermatt, historian; A. Alfred Anderson, chaplain, and G. Riley, sergeant-at-arms.

MINUTE MEN WIN FIRST FIGHT, THEY SHOW IN BOOKLET

Point to Victory of Holdom and Sullivan.

How the minute men of the constitution, an organization formed last spring with the avowed purpose of "building up respect for law and the constitution," won its first battle is set out in a pamphlet issued yesterday. The pamphlet also reveals that the organization of which Gen. Charles G. Dawes is chief sponsor, is growing rapidly, the membership having increased from 27,088 on Sept. 1 to 31,565 on Dec. 1.

As a foreword the objects for which the minute men are fighting are recalled as follows:

"To demonstrate that no other political issue is stronger in Illinois than that of good government and law enforcement.

"To bring weak-kneed politicians and officials to a realization that when they truckle to opponents of law and order a political penalty will be imposed by the majority of the people organized to protect the principles of their government.

Praises Labor's "Good Citizens."

"To bring a sense of the gratitude and admiration of all good citizens to those courageous American citizens in labor organizations who, in defiance of labor demagogues and enemies of law, support law enforcement and good government at the polls.

"To have settled once and for all in this state the question of whether the law is supreme."

It is set out that the organization is nonpartisan and the members are not concerned with individual candidacies, "except when the issue of good government is involved." Such a case arose at the November judicial election, the pamphlet declares, "when certain labor leaders pretending to represent the patriotic American citizens of organized labor attacked the candidacies of two upright judges because of their law enforcing record on the bench—Denis E. Sullivan, Democrat, and Jesse Holdom, a Republican."

It was then the Minute Men got into action, according to the statement, which reproduces a letter sent broadcast defending Sullivan and Holdom, in which it is stated that the candidates were "not opposed to labor organizations" and only issued the injunctions attacked by labor chiefs because the law compelled them to do so when a proper bill was filed.

Point to Their Victories.

Both former Judge Holdom, who was opposed by James F. Fardy, Democrat, and Judge Sullivan were elected. Concerning these victories the pamphlet says:

"In such country towns as the Minute Men had organizations and manned the polls, Fardy received only 18 per cent of the vote cast. In the unorganized country towns he received 24 per cent of the vote cast. Fardy's vote in the suburbs organized by the Minute Men was only 22.7 per cent of the Holdom vote. Fardy's vote in the unorganized suburbs was 31.3 per cent of the Holdom vote.

"For the nine Democratic Superior court judges elected, the country towns in which the Minute Men were organized gave an average vote for each of 14,152. The vote for Sullivan was 16,244, or 2,092 above the average."

The work of the Minute Men in the Fourth and Fifth wards of Evanston, "regarded as union labor wards," is particularly commended and the result there is held a "demonstration of the strength of the principle of law and order among union labor men, and that the claim of labor leaders that they control their votes is a pitiful pretense."

WED FIFTY YEARS

Three generations, including six children, nine grandchildren and two great grandchildren, assisted Mr. and Mrs. Peter Leufgen, 3419 West 13th place, in celebrating their golden wedding anniversary, Dec. 13.

Mr. Leufgen, who is 72 years old, is a veteran employe of the Liberty bank, Kedzie avenue and 12th street, and has lived in Chicago for more than thirty-nine years. Mrs. Leufgen is 71 years of age.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jameson.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jameson celebrated their golden wedding anniversary in their home, 106 South 6th avenue, Maywood, yesterday. Included in the large group of friends and relatives attending the anniversary celebration were six children, sixteen grandchildren, and one great-grandchild.

RICH TOGOLAND WASTES AS OLD ALLIES QUARREL

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

HO, British Togoland, Africa, Dec. 15.—[Tribune Radio.]—Commercial opportunity in the British Togoland under mandate of the league of nations exists on the basis of freedom and equality to nationals of all the old allies, but the opportunity goes begging. Not a single concession has been applied for or granted in the entire 12,000 square miles of acquired German territory since the mandate was handed to Great Britain in July, 1919.

Stagnation—another word for wait-and-see policy—seems the best word to describe the conditions prevailing today in the British mandate sphere, which nine years ago was the richest cocoa producing section of what Germany called the model colony of all her African possessions.

Not least among the several causes for this situation is the intense feeling of bitterness which exists between the English and French over the frontier that divides the old German Togo between them.

Prized by Germany.

The Togoland was the first pawn lost by any of the combatants in the great war. It was the first block to fall in the crumbling of the German empire. For twenty years imperial German governors had ruled and developed this 34,000 square miles of territory with its population of more than 1,000,000. The agricultural and commercial progress achieved from the date of the German acquisition in 1884 was pointed to with pride by Berlin as constituting proof that the German colony had been financially independent of the fatherland, and its possibilities in cocoa, cotton, and rubber was a source of particular satisfaction to Germany.

For several days before the outbreak of the war the acting governor of Togo, located at Lome, the capital, communicated with the governor of the British Gold Coast on the west and the French colony of Dahomey on the east proposing a combined neutral maintenance of their status quo in the event of hostilities.

British and French Oust Germans.

He pointed out that in Africa white men should show a combined front against the blacks and not strengthen the black opposition to white exploitation by fighting among themselves.

He proposed that the French, British, and German African native forces remain neutral and let the war be fought out in Europe.

France and England both refused the proposition, and on August 8, 1914, English forces from the Gold Coast closed the frontier and occupied Lome without opposition, while two days later the French forces occupied the other Togo coast town of Anecho, or Petit Popo, also without fighting.

The present dividing line was fixed by the French and English in an agreement in Paris, France receiving about two-thirds of the country and all the railroads, and the British receiving the remaining one-third, containing the richest agricultural sections and representing the colony's chief wealth.

England has the cocoa section, but the former German railroads which tap it are in the hands of the French, who have succeeded in draining all the production into their territory. This is quite frankly a sore point with the English colonials, who never have forgiven their diplomatic representatives at Paris who made them lower the Union Jack from the governor's palace in Lome.

This Tremendously Popular Style of the Famous Vocalion NOW $59

We have sold hundreds of instruments in this model at $135—and they were worth every dollar. Now being replaced in our new catalogue by a slightly different design, this style will be marked at $59, a clear saving of over one-half; it is still worth every cent of the former price—in tone, in volume, in appearance.

The Home Incomplete—Without a Vocalion

Not a quickly thrown together phonograph, made to sell for $59, but a carefully designed, beautifully built instrument that will be a source of pride to its possessor for many years to come.

Aeolian instruments are recognized as standard in quality throughout the world, and the Vocalion offered here is no exception. It is built sturdily along simple, graceful lines, of genuine mahogany, exquisitely finished. It is a full cabinet model and possesses the volume, the depth and richness of tone which distinguishes the Vocalion as the leading phonograph musically.

The Vocalion plays all standard, lateral cut records, and brings out their every beauty. It is equipped with the perfect-working Vocalion Automatic Stop and convenient and ample compartments for records.

It will be advisable to make your selection early, as only a limited number of these instruments will be placed on sale at this time.

SURPLUS VALUE

NO OTHER motor car offers you so large a surplus of value per dollar of cost as does the Wills Sainte Claire—

No other motor car offers you so much of luxury, comfort and dependability—

When you buy a Wills Sainte Claire you buy a long term investment in motor car satisfaction—

You purchase an indefinite number of years of thrilling, trouble-free service that will forever change your standard of motor car values—

The Wills Sainte Claire represents the most marked advance that automotive engineering and metallurgy have ever made—

Mo-lyb-den-um steel developed by C. Harold Wills, makes possible a car of moderate size and weight, yet of supreme strength and endurance—

Engineering skill and manufacturing precision of unapproached fineness make possible an operation of such velvety smoothness that riding comfort and ease of control take on entirely new meanings.

The Wills Sainte Claire is the lightest car in the fine car class.

It is the strongest, most enduring car in any class—

It has a greater factor of safety . . . more years of carefree service. . . . . Greater economy of operation. . . . A higher percentage of horsepower per pound of weight—

Lightness of weight and excess power make it easier to handle . . . give it greater flexibility . . . make it a more eager car . . . quicker in its response to the driver's will.

It offers you not only an entirely new experience in motoring luxury and comfort . . . but a greater number of contented, carefree miles per dollar of cost.

You owe it to yourself to see and investigate this remarkable car—Get down under its beautiful finish and learn the secret of its amazing performance—and its equally surprising economy. A demonstration will give you a new conception of motor car values.

Stopping the Power Leaks

1 The only power that counts in motor car operation is the power that reaches the rear wheels—

2 Power consumed by frictional resistance or in dragging around excess weight means nothing in motor car progress . . . It only increases the cost of operation.

3 The Wills Sainte Claire 60-degree V-type motor has overhead valves operated by overhead camshafts—

4 It is a high speed, high efficiency motor and represents the highest development in engineering practice—

5 It is operated by specially designed, accurately machined gears—and is entirely free from chains—

6 Its bearings built to limits of accuracy that do not permit a variation of one ten-thousandth of an inch are finished by a special process that greatly reduces friction and at the same time insures constant lubrication across the entire bearing surface.

7 The fan is of the highly efficient torpedo propeller type and is driven direct from the motor without belts or pulleys . . . Its automatic release at high speeds insures constant maximum efficiency and saves material power—

8 The specially designed thermo syphon cooling system operates without a pump, hence effects a further saving of power—

9 The pistons ground diagonally instead of straight around, as is usual, make possible closer limits of accuracy . . . more perfect lubrication and higher efficiency . . . and a still further decrease in frictional resistance.

10 All this means less power to run the motor . . . more power to run the car itself—

11 It means years of added life . . . freedom from trouble . . . greater economy of operation.

12 It explains to some extent the marvel of Wills Sainte Claire performance. . . . . The enthusiasm of Wills Sainte Claire owners.

13 Be sure to see this revolutionary car. . . . A demonstration will prove an inspiration to you.

Surprise the family with a beautiful new Wills Sainte Claire Christmas morning

YANKEES SPEND 100 MILLION FOR MAJOR SPORTS

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, Dec. 15.—[United News.]—This has been America's $100,000,000 sport year.

And that estimate is only a flying leap at the remotest approximation of the turf figures on America's bill for a good time since last Jan. 1. It can be multiplied by the inclusion of some incidental costs of sport which were left out of the calculation lest they burn the bearings of the adding machine.

For tickets to fight, games, and races, for sporting gear, not including clothing, such as golf knickers and suits, which range in price from $2.50 to $150, for caddy hire and club dues, and for other immediate costs of participation in sport, actively or passively, the people of this country paid at least $100,000,000.

Things Not Figured.

The estimates do not count the cost of the Yankee stadium, the Dartmouth stadium, or the concrete dish at Forest Hills, where the Davis matches are held. They take no account of the money newly invested since last New Year's day in suburban meadows to be converted into golf lands, such as the $300,000 purchase by the Sivanoy club of New York. Neither do they include the millions of gallons of gasoline consumed by golfers in visiting their favorite pastures. Nor the other millions that fouled the air of college towns when thousands of automobiles were on the move to the week-end football games. Railroad fares also are let alone as being too vague a total for authentic reckoning.

This counting of the change after the year's bill has been paid relates in particular to golf, tennis, baseball, football, racing, and prize fighting.

Hunting, polo, yachting, and trap shooting, four very expensive pleasures; track and field athletics, basket ball, college, and other amateur baseball, and fishing and winter sports, all of which involve investment in equipment or live stock, have cost this country enough in a year to paper the state of Texas with a three ply blanket of dollar bills.

Millions for Hunters.

But no attempt is made to announce the bill for these activities because it would be no better than a guess, anyway. As the American Game Protective association claims there are 5,000,000 hunters in the country, each spending at least $10 a year for ammunition and licenses, it might not be an exaggeration to tot up the bad news for the entire cost of all sports a half a billion.

Mr. Innis Brown of the American Golfer has been trying to count the cost of this now characteristic American weakness. When he got the bill up to $5,500,000 he went out to get a new 5 cent pencil—one that would last.

"Now, bear in mind that I am conservative in all my figures," Mr. Brown requested. "There are 1,000,000 people in this country who play at least ten rounds a year. There are 2,000 golf clubs with a low average of 200 members each, which makes 600,000 men, to say nothing about their wives and children, whose own scores speak louder than words. Then there are fifty or sixty public courses in the country, and if you have ever waited in line to tee off on a week-end or holiday at a free meadow you probably thought there were a million golfers on that course alone. O, I guess there are a million active golfers in America all right.

13,200,000 Golf Balls.

"Last year the department of commerce estimated that 12,000,000 golf balls were used in this country in twelve months. The department predicted a 10 per cent increase this year, which would give us a total of 13,200,000 golf balls this year at an average price of 75 cents. That's $9,900,000 for balls.

"Sticks—they're hard to estimate. McGregor & Spalding make a lot of them, and then the club professionals all make some by hand which are very expensive. I believe that new duffers, outfitting themselves for their first games, and old players, renewing their bags, spend an average of $7.50 each on sticks."

Ka, bang! Mr. Brown shot another $7,500,000.

Then he spoke of the caddies and dues and other things which brought the cost of roaming through green pastures up to $51,500,000.

Next Comes Tennis.

Ed Moss of the United States Lawn Tennis association laughed shrilly at Mr. Brown's estimate of only 1,000,000 golfers. Why, there must be several million tennis players, and what was this game of golf, any way, compared

EXAMINATION SHOWS CHICAGO SHY ON GIRLS WHO ARE PERFECT

THERE is no such thing as a physically perfect girl in Chicago, according to statistics taken from the 881 who have been examined for swimming and gymnasium classes during the last two months in the Central branch Y. W. C. A., 50 East Monroe street.

Out of 1,350 girls who registered this number, 881, have been examined and graded according to a scale, with a high mark of 20 points as the mark approximating physical perfection. None of the 881 girls made this grade, 15 points being considered very good and most of the girls examined averaging about 13 points.

Some of the disabilities found were:

Curvatures, postural and structural; flat feet, broken arches, bad tonsils, heart cases, questionable tuberculosis, overweight, underweight, neurosis.

Of the 881 girls examined there was a total of 984 feminine physical flaws, as some of the girls were charged with more than one ailment.

Millikin Nips Purple in Last Minute, 15-14

Millikin university's five spoiled the initial appearances of the Northwestern university quintet at Patten gymnasium last night by downing the Purple, 15 to 14, in a fiercely fought contest which provided excitement galore for 2,000 spectators. Rex Millikin, a nephew of the founder of the visiting school, clinched the victory by a basket in the final minute.

Tutored by Rollie Williams.

Coach Maury Kent's Purple warriors were midgets beside the husky Decatur youths. The Evanston boys put up a plucky battle, but could not match the prowess of the team tutored by Rollie Williams.

Millikin led, 8 to 7, at half time, largely because of poor basket shooting by the Purple. In the second period the Evanstonians pulled themselves together and on several occasions were within a point or two of the leaders.

Stegman Gets Most Points.

Besides Millikin, who played at left forward, Harlan Walley, the center, was the outstanding star for the victors. He contributed three baskets and a free counter. Russell Johnson and Capt. Walt Stegman were the leading performers for the Purple. Lineup:

ARMOUR, 18; MAROONS, 16

Missing every attempt at free throws, University of Chicago dropped its opening basketball game to Armour American Legion post, 18 to 16, last night at the Midway. The Maroons hold the advantage at the half, 12 to 10, but the tight guarding of their opponents permitted them two more baskets, while Armour forged ahead and retained the lead by keeping the ball out of Chicago territory. Smidl was the loser's high point man with five rings, and similar honors went to Dixon of the winners who tallied four baskets and three penalty tosses. Lineup:

IOWA BEATS BUTLER

Iowa City, Ia., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Iowa beat Butler in a fast game here, 26 to 23. Pat Page's men played the fast, hard game that had been expected of them and led the Hawkeyes, 10 to 8, at the end of the first half. Iowa took the lead in the second frame and the score seesawed until Laude shoved the Hawkeyes into the lead with three goals in quick succession.

Harrison	6	Austin	2
JUNIORS.

Senn High fished two city championships out of the waters of the University of Chicago natatorium yesterday, winning the Chicago prep school titles in both junior and senior divisions of the annual swimming meet. Englewood earned second in both classes, being outclassed in the midget department, but trailing by only 1 point in the older boys' division.

The program furnished a number of interesting and exciting races when several prep marks were washed off the records and new ones set up. In the senior division, Sankstone of Senn clipped three-fifths of a second off the old record in the plunge, Rob Baskind of Englewood established a new record of 1:14 4-5 in the breast stroke, and Ryan of Senn lowered the head carry record by three-fifths of a second.

Five Junior Records.

Kenneth Sinclair, Englewood's junior plunger, docked in with a :25 4-5 for a new record. Other records were by Dick Peterson, Lindblom, who did the head carry in :17 2-5, by Wellats of Senn in the century swim, by Rabens of Senn who was credited with :20 1-5 in the junior cross shoulder carry and by the Senn junior relay outfit.

Senn's senior victory was not decided until the final poll of points. Englewood took a slight early lead, but when the results of the life saving events were tallied Senn was shown to have the advantage. The contest between the two leaders was settled in the 100 and 220 yard crawls. The first of these was won by Crooks, Englewood's star, with Phillips, his leading rival, swimming a good second.

Had Crooks managed to garner another victory in the 220 Englewood would have been much surer of a win, but in this event Phillips assumed an early lead and cast anchor well in advance of the south sider.

Thrills in Relays.

The relay events furnished a number of thrills. The Senn junior sextet, composed of Ford, Edwards, Smith, Weilert, Heppe, and McNamara, won handily. In the senior division there was more of a battle, the contest finally being won by Frank Walker for Englewood, when that sprint star overcame a slight disadvantage and won by a kick. His teammates were Bailey, Lickstein, Lange, and Crooks. Summaries:

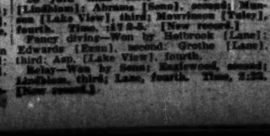
IN the WAKE of the NEWS

EDDIE COLLINS.

WITH public announcement made that the White Sox are willing to trade or sell Eddie Collins, we hope to see this baseball gentleman, this gentleman of baseball, placed in some managerial or other position which his great contribution to the national game merits.

Collins has given many of the best years of his baseball career to Chicago, playing the game for all that was in him. To The Wake it always has been a great pleasure to see Collins in action, especially his fielding, where his grace and speed made difficult chances look easy.

To his intimates it was no secret that Collins would have preferred to play in a city near his home in a Philadelphia suburb—on one of the



New York teams, for instance. Yet never a whimper came from him, never a question of his loyalty. He was one of the outstanding figures of the white White Sox in the black days of the 1919 world's series. He always has given his best to the city which he represented.

From what we know of Collins we think his pride will be hurt by the present willingness to trade him for other material. For his sake and the past services he has rendered The Wake, although a most ardent admirer, is reconciled to his departure—provided a change brings a connection as good or better than he has here.

A Radio Song of Love.

Twas long past midnight, nearing three—
He had listened to songs from Calgary—
When out of the air, quite suddenly,
He heard a voice sing tenderly
This old, old song, "The Rosary."

All breathless he turned the dial and hey,
To bring her closer, But drowned was she
And swallowed up in the air-wave sea
By a saxophone playing "Picardy"—
All this was in Nineteen Twenty-three,
This radio tale of love.

Full many a mess has passed since then,
For the years have wandered to three times ten,
But still you can see him trouble when,
At evening, in his radio den,
He flies from the laughing haunts of men
To try all stations from Minn. to Penn.,
The KYZ and the OGI—
But, ah, will she ever sing again
That radio song of love?

SKATING BODY TO FIX STATUS OF FETZ FRIDAY

BY FRANK SCHREIBER.

The board of control of the Western Skating association will meet Friday at which time the eligibility of Gus Fetz, Opal A. A. skater, will be determined, and the award of the Western and Illinois championship tournaments will be made. These announcements came from President Frank M. Kalteux yesterday.

The eligibility of Fetz will be of particular interest. The Opal A. A. racer has played professional football this autumn with the Chicago Bears, but has entered a plea that his participation in pro football does not necessarily make him a professional skater.

Opinions Differ on Fetz.

Several members of the association are of the same opinion, while many believe that the strict amateur rule as employed by the Amateur Athletic union should be enforced. The Western Skating association is an allied member of the A. A. U.

Milwaukee has entered a bid for the Western championship events on Feb. 10. H. S. Morgan, director of athletics of Milwaukee, has applied for the tournament and during the week will confer with the association racing board, made up of Kalteux, Secretary Frank J. Reilly, and Julian T. Fitzgerald.

The Elgin Skating association has applied for a sanction for the state championships for Jan. 12. The Elgin club promoted a successful tournament last year.

Ponds for Children.

Fire Commissioner John F. Cullerton has arranged for the flooding of skating ponds in all sections of the city for the children. Application for the flooding of ponds should be made to either President Frank Kalteux of the Western association or Capt. Martin J. Carlson in the fire commissioner's office, first floor, city hall. The sites for the rinks should be prepared, and official permission of the owner of the property secured, before application for flooding is made.

SLEIPNER A. C. DERBY

The Sleipner A. C. will hold its annual skating derby over a six lap course on the Humboldt park lagoon on New Year's day. The program, which will start at 12:30 o'clock, is made up of the following events:

One mile, class A; one mile, class AA; one mile, class B; one mile, class C; one mile, novice; boys under 14 years, one-half mile; boys under 16 years, one-half mile; women, one-half mile; girls under 14 years, one-half mile; and a two mile relay race, four skaters to a team.

Entries close on Dec. 25 with the Sleipner A. C., 3316 Beach Ave.

The Question.

Has Welker Cochran a chance to defeat Willie Hoppe for the 18-2 balkline title the coming week?

Where Asked.

At Bensinger's billiard hall, 29 West Randolph street.

The Answers.

David A. Luby, 815 Exchange avenue, publisher of the Bowlers' Journal—I would say that Welker Cochran has a chance, young man that he is. This is the opportunity of his life to become the champion. His youth ought to be one of the possibilities that should favor him needing the necessary amount of nerve.

P. J. Cusack, Harrison and Loomis streets, advertising—Yes, I think he has a chance. He is a comer, though he is young, and if he can keep from being nervous he has an excellent chance of winning the title.

Peter Hoffey, Bensinger manager—Cochran has a good chance to defeat Willie Hoppe on account of playing at the present time the best billiards of his career. In addition he has overcome the nervousness which handicaped him when he played last for the championship.

Fred Thoma, 3911 West Madison street, bowling and billiards—I think Cochran has a good chance. His game in practice the last several days shows he is playing top-notch billiards. The way he showed in the tournament at the Pennsylvania hotel, New York, was good, too.

John Lawlar, 5443 Kammerling avenue, insurance—I believe Hoppe has the big advantage in his having been through the mill and has the necessary nerve, which is a big advantage in a match of this kind. Although Cochran is a great player, experience is needed in this kind of a match.

GRANGE, MILLER, MALLORY, PFANN IN BACK FIELD

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

[Copyright, 1923, By The Chicago Tribune.]

As a result of the growing number of intersectional struggles played annually and considering the styles of play employed by the combating elevens, no section of the country can be said to have a corner on the sterling football players.

Time was when it was generally recognized that the best football was played along the Atlantic seaboard. In those years the larger institutions had established systems of coaching, and there was more than one teacher to drill the candidates in the various angles of play. Competition in the section demanded the development of teams which could successfully combat rivals of the section.

For a time the middle west tried to compete with the east, but with indifferent success. The eastern elevens were too well drilled in the rudimentary and finer departments of play, with the result most of the games of fifteen years and more ago were generally won by eastern elevens.

Middle West Improves.

The middle west, however, soon learned that different tactics must be adopted if teams of equal caliber with those of the east were to be developed. In many cases eastern coaching methods and systems were copied. Competent men were engaged to teach the game in the section and they were given able assistants. As time went on middle west football improved to such an extent that the east now has nothing on the middle west in football.

Practically the same situation existed for years between the middle west and Pacific coast. There was plenty of raw material in the coast universities, but, like the situation which existed for years in the middle west, it was undeveloped. Following the system of the middle west, men who knew football and knew how to coach it were engaged to develop the teams of the larger universities and colleges, with the result the brand of football played in that section is every bit as strong as that displayed in the middle west and far east.

South Makes Strides.

The south has made rapid strides in the development of the game and its teams have proven worthy opponents for the larger elevens of the middle west and far east. Centre college has played Harvard some interesting games and the same is true of Vanderbilt, recently awarded the southern title by a vote of newspaper men. Michigan won from the southern seven this past fall, 3 to 0, and in 1922 was held to a scoreless tie by Vanderbilt.

During the season just closed five great teams completed their schedules without being defeated. Yale and Cornell were masters of the eastern situation. They were great elevens, well coached, and strong in every department of play. Which would win if they met is an open question, but in justice to Old Eli, it must be said the Blue eleven played a much harder schedule, and for this reason eastern critics are prone to rate it a trifle above the Ithacans.

Consideration for Marquette.

In the middle west Michigan and Illinois duplicated the feat of Yale and Cornell. Wolverines and Downstaters tied for the Western conference title, and each team was composed of players far above the average. While Michigan and Illinois are tied for the Big Ten title, the fact must not be overlooked that Marquette also completed its schedule without defeat.

Nebraska and Kansas are generally considered as having tied for the title in the Missouri Valley conference. Neither eleven, however, was as strong as teams which have represented these institutions in the past, and each played rather inconsistent football.

On the Pacific coast California won the title for the fourth consecutive year.

Vanderbilt Wins in South.

As previously stated, Vanderbilt has been awarded the southern championship, although the Nashville eleven met up with an unexpected defeat by Texas early in the season.

Competition in football is becoming so keen that teams which now compete their schedules without defeat must be composed of some players who possess ability to do things in the face of stubborn opposition.

Mentality is just as big an asset in this present game of football as physical ability. The quick thinking player is always conspicuous and development of such players is a worthy reflection on any coach. The team which is coached not only to follow the ball but to fall on it whenever it is loose will win ball games. The team which is coached to always stop a runner regardless of whether a whistle or horn is blown will save itself from being beaten and the one which can block and tackle never will be beaten badly.

Twenty Teams Represented.

In the makeup of the three all-American teams, every effort is made to select the smart football player, the one who has been alert all season and who has been a factor in practically every game.

Every angle of offensive and defensive football has been taken into consideration so that such an eleven will not be weak in a single department.

Twenty universities and colleges are represented on the first three elevens and six of the eleven positions on the first team have been awarded to players of middle west institutions. The other five are from eastern institutions, while warriors on the second and third elevens have been selected from southern and far western universities.

The end positions have been given to Eklund of Minnesota and McRae of Syracuse. The former was easily the outstanding wing player in the middle west and was a powerful offensive and defensive asset to his team all season.

McRae Stars in East.

McRae was by far the best end in the east. He was fast and generally outran the defense to catch forward passes. He was an excellent smasher of interference and was ever mindful of the fact to turn the play to the inside.

Among other excellent ends of the season were Wakefield of Vanderbilt, Waite, Rutgers; Wernemont, Coe college; Irish, Wisconsin; Rokusek, Illinois; Berry, Lafayette; Clemens, Alabama; Stoltz, Navy; Supplee, Maryland; Henderson, Cornell; Tallman, West Virginia; Stephens, Pennsylvania; Swanson, Lombard and Jordan of Pittsburgh.

Milstead of Yale and Below of Wisconsin are placed in the tackle positions. The former, product of Wabash college of Crawfordsville, Ind., was about the best lineman in the east. He was hard to box and keep out of plays.

Below was one of the powerful linemen of the middle west. While his general play was not flashy, his presence was felt at all times. He was a natural leader of the aggressive type and a shining example for his teammates to follow.

Kris of Iowa, Shuster of Penn State, Spellman of Brown, Blair of Yale, Petcoff of Ohio State, Oberst of Notre Dame, Evans of Harvard, Gowdy of Chicago, Waldorf of Syracuse, Goodman of the Army, Carton of Holy Cross, and Diebie of Lafayette were among the other powerful tackles of the season.

McMillen of Illinois and Hubbard of Harvard are placed at the guard positions. The Illinois player, who led his team through a most successful season, was the equal if not the superior of any guard in the country. He was big and fast and never left his position until he was sure of where the ball was going. In many respects Hubbard of Harvard was a similar type of player.

Other Good Guards.

The other good guards of the year were Carney of the Navy; Baysinger Syracuse; Mittinger, Lafayette; Rohrke, Chicago; Farwick, Army; Gay, Minnesota; Brown, Notre Dame; Haley, Kansas, and Faville of Leland Stanford.

The center position is given to Jack Blott of Michigan, a player who is the nearest approach to Germany Schultz, the greatest center in Wolverine football history. This player won the Vanderbilt game with a place kick, and he also was responsible for the victory over Iowa. In the Hawkeye struggle Blott made a pass to Capt. Kipke for a drop kick. The ball was touched by Iowa, making it a free oval. Blott raced down the field and fell on the ball back of the Iowa goal for a touchdown, something remarkable for a center.

Lovejoy of Yale, Schutzis, Brown; Adams, Pennsylvania; Gray, Penn State; Ellis, Dartmouth; Claypool, Purdue, and Losborg of Kansas were other dependable centers of the year.

Stars in Backfield.

Backfield of the line one finds a galaxy of stars, but the half back positions are given to Grange of Illinois and Don Miller of Notre Dame. The former is, without question, one of the greatest sophomore players developed in any university in recent years. Fans knew too much of his ability for further comment, and he should be the unanimous choice of all critics for such an eleven.

Miller is nearly as shifty and elusive as his running mate. In fact the Notre Dame backfield was composed of so many star players that each other's work was overshadowed.

Mallory of Yale is placed at full back. The Blue warrior is the end running type of full back as well as a line plunger. He is also a field goal kicker and a player who can kick, run, or pass. In the Princeton and Harvard games he was the principal offensive weapon.

Pfann at Quarter.

Pfann of Cornell, a natural football player and able field general, is given the quarter back position. There was little about the position which this player did not know and could not do just a little better than others who played the position.

Dern of Pennsylvania; Dunn, Marquette; McKenny, Boston college; Robertson, Carnegie Tech; Lamb, Lombard; Terrill, Rutgers; Stuhldreher, Notre Dame; Grahan of Minnesota, and Cullen of the Navy were other dependable quarter backs.

Among other great backs of the year were Tyron of Colgate; Koppisch, Columbia; Stevens of Yale; Cheek, Harvard; Noble, Nebraska; Nardacci, West Virginia; Thomas of Pennsylvania; Boelter, Drake; McBride, Syracuse; Darling, Boston college; Wyckoff, Georgia Tech, and Taft of Wisconsin.

HARE GREATEST GRIDIRON HERO IN INDIANA HISTORY

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Although Indiana university has never been the factor of other teams in western conference football, the institution has been represented on the gridiron by some great players, warriors who would have made enviable reputations had they played with stronger elevens.

Hardly a season passes into history that some excellent players have not been developed, but the fact they played with weak teams deprived them of due consideration when honorary selections were made.

Such has been the case with most of the men who have played under Indiana colors. Still there was one player whose ability to do things even against odds won him fame in his day and that warrior was Frank Hare, a quarter back who played in 1905, just before the coming of the forward pass. There were others, but Frank's ability to do so many things and do them well entitles him to be honored as Indiana's greatest player.

Was Star Punter.

Although the present generation knows little of his ability, it must be stated Frank would be an even more valuable performer under the present rules. Hare was a small man and did not scale more than 150 pounds. Still he could do so many things well his services were invaluable. He was a marked man in practically every game. Still he managed to go through most struggles, the later stages on nerve alone.

During his playing days, Hare was one of the best punters in the conference. His attempts were high and far, generally well placed. He never stood more than six yards back of the scrimmage line and it was a common occurrence for him to boot the oval down the field from the quarter back's position. He was a side swinger, which made this trick easier than for the kicker who punts straight ahead.

From punt formations, Hare would circle the ends. In fact this was among the strongest offensive plays in Indiana's repertoire during the playing days of this great warrior. Once he got loose in the open, the Hoosier star was hard to stop. He ran with plenty of speed, could change pace and above all was one of the best in feinting a tackler one way and then running the other.

Valuable Field General.

Hare possessed excellent football judgment. This gridiron asset made him a valuable field general and it did not take him long to discover a weakness in an opponent's defense. Once he found this weakness, he pounded it relentlessly. In those days the ball had to pass through three sets of hands to make the plays legal. In feeding the oval to the backs Frank was extremely accurate and few fumbles happened during the days he directed the Hoosiers' attacks.

Like most quarter backs of his day, Hare was an accurate punt catcher. He gathered in the oval on a forward pass and generally brought the ball back a considerable distance. His defensive qualifications were in accord with his offensive ability. He was a deadly tackler, the sort who generally cornered his man before making his tackling lunge.

All angles of football considered, combined with the respect Hare commanded from opponents, he is rightfully entitled to be considered Indiana's greatest football player.

MONMOUTH JOINS MIDWEST GROUP; NO BAN ON FROSH

Admission of Monmouth as the third institution from Illinois and the adoption of a rule to prohibit football practice until Sept. 15 were salient happenings at the annual meeting of the Midwest Collegiate conference at the Hotel Sherman yesterday.

The application of Dubuque college was laid on the table until the next meeting.

The delegates in adopting the football practice rule stated that no practice of any sort, formal or informal, shall be held before Sept. 15, unless school is actually in session.

No action was taken on the freshman rule, although Coe and Cornell college have observed it for a number of years. The first semester rule, which keeps freshmen out of competition for four and one-half months, still is in effect and keeps first year athletes out of football and part of the basketball season.

It was voted to hold the annual track and field meet at Beloit on May 31. The officers of the conference, who are elected at the annual meeting in May, are: C. R. Keyes of Cornell, president; E. R. Jackson of Knox, vice president; and George B. Bryant of Coe, secretary.

SMALL COLLEGES VOTE TO ALLOW FROSH IN SPORT

Despite a recent ruling by the western conference to the effect no Big Ten institution shall have athletic relations with any university or college which does not observe the freshman rule, the Western Interstate Collegiate association yesterday voted to play freshman on its teams at its annual meeting at the Auditorium hotel.

There was a lot of discussion on the point, and the delegates asserted the Big Ten is trying to discourage athletics in the smaller institutions, instead of encouraging them.

It was voted not to enlarge the present membership of the association, which is composed of six colleges. Western State Normal of Michigan was not represented. It was voted that each member of the conference play three football games with others in the association and that six baseball and as many basketball games played with other members. In this manner a clean cut champion in all branches of sport will be determined.

The annual conference track and field games were awarded to Columbia college and will be held on May 17.

Robert Nohr of Lacrosse Normal was reelected president and W. P. Shadoan of Valparaiso was chosen vice president, while Father Sheehy, a hard worker in the success of the association, was reelected secretary and treasurer.

Fond Du Lac Quintet Beats Chicago Vikings, 38 to 9

Fond du Lac, Wis., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Fond du Lac Badgers defeated the crack Vikings of Chicago at basketball, 38 to 9, here tonight. After the Vikings had taken a 7 to 0 lead in the first three minutes, they secured but one more field goal. O'Connor shot seven baskets for the locals. Twenty-five hundred people jammed the Coliseum for the game, which was the first of a series of five for the midwest title.

For the visitors, Gorgas at center secured three counters, Marquardt gathered one, and Birkhoff launched a free counter. Bryan and Halladay were held scoreless. All are former University of Chicago and Northwestern varsity players.

EVANSTON FIVE TURNS TABLES ON SENN BY 17 TO 13

Evanston's heavyweight five turned the tables on Senn yesterday. Defeated, 9 to 5, at the Senn gymnasium on Wednesday, the north shore suburbanites dashed to the front last night at Evanston Y. M. C. A., defeating the city leaguers, 17 to 13. The Evanston ponies made the night complete by winning their half of the bill, 19 to 12.

Evanston was leading, 5 to 1, at half time in the main contest, but as soon as the final period opened Senn shot two baskets in a row and tied the score. Campbell and Cameron, the Evanston forwards, led the scoring, but the guarding of Phillips and Grimes was a large factor in the victory. Lineup:

ARMY FIVE DEFEATED BY COLUMBIA U. AFTER 32 CONSECUTIVE WINS

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 15.—Columbia university's basketball five defeated the Army today, 37 to 29, and broke the cadets' winning streak after thirty-two consecutive victories. It was the first defeat West Point had sustained since Dec. 17, 1921, when Pennsylvania conquered the soldiers. Army was handicapped today by the absence of Wood and Forbes, guards, and Rooema, star forward.

TODAY'S CHAMPS FIGHT SHY OF TITLE BATTLES

BY HARRY NEWMAN.

New York Dec. 15.—[Special.]—The fistic fans usually wonder why it is that certain obvious matches in the boxing game are never made. They are never put on, as a rule, to the many reasons advanced by the sidestepping and dodging fighter, who balks just the moment that some tough opponent is mentioned to him. The matchmakers at the various clubs could tell the public all about the artful kids who ease out of trouble at every turn. But, the matchmaker dare not expose the principals in run out for fear of offending them in the making of other prospective matches.

All you have to do is to stumble into Tex Rickard to get an earful about champions who will not fight unless they get everything in sight, and together with that their opponents must be of the soft variety. No tough ones go with the champions of today. Tex is dead sore at the whole mob and he would be tickled if the New York state athletic commission would force every one of the current day champs to fight.

Look for Setups.

Outside of one or two title holders the rest of the field is made up of champs who refused to work at their profession unless the manager and promoter can select a cripple for them in every start after they annex a title. No doubt the boxing bosses will take drastic action some day and make those fellows come out in the open. All the boxer of the present era is dreaming about is million dollar gates.

When winter comes along and some logical challenger is mentioned to them, they opine that it would make a better match outdoors and perhaps they had better wait for the outdoor season and get some real coin. Now, the whole situation is that Mr. Dodger never intends to meet that rough challenger. He is just resorting to the subterfuge of ducking out of a match. Even Rickard knows the gang and so does his matchmaker, Frank Flournoy. It is hard to realize that there are so many of these side stepping champions whom the fans worship without knowing how they back out of matches when they think the other fellow might make it disagreeable.

Different in Old Days.

How different it was in the old days. They never ducked out when a fight was in prospect. Old timers will recall how little George Dixon, probably the greatest bantam of all time, simply asked when it was to be held when they told him about a fight. Can you imagine any of the gang pulling that stuff today?

Of course, all the champs of today must not be condemned, but for the most part they are nearly all wrong. Jack Dempsey, we believe, would fight any man alive, but he sure has been held back to some extent, when the name of Willis is mentioned.

Remember Stanley Ketchell when he was middleweight champion? How that bird could go! How do you think he compares with the present gang in the middleweight division? The promoters have been trying to straighten out that middleweight muddle, but it wasn't until Harry Greb came along and beat Johnny Wilson that there was any sign of clearing in that class.

Jeffries Fought 'Em All.

It took several years with at least a dozen claimants to the title to untangle the situation. Stanley Ketchell would have straightened it out in ten days by fighting anything and everything that came along. Jim Jeffries, when heavyweight boss, took them all on as fast as they came.

There wasn't much dodging in those days. Nowadays Tex Rickard and nearly every promoter in the country is making efforts to bring the champions and their logical challengers together, but the champs hop off to the sticks where they engage in no decision affairs to protect their championships. What a fine piece of business with the fighting mob!

Others Who Don't Fight.

We may not be in on the know, but it seems rather strange to us that Pancho Villa and Frankie Genaro have not been brought together. Villa gets plenty of business to take care of but why isn't Genaro included in his opponents?

There are many others about whom we could ask questions. Bennie Leonard is a great fighter, but the fans do not get enough of him. Why is it? Bennie loves the stage and might make an actor some day, but for the present he is a boxer. We have it that he won't fight again until the summer comes around. Not so good.

Mickey Walker, the welter weight champion, won his title right here, but has never shown here since. Now Mickey is under suspension in New Jersey and that holds him off in New York. Better get that man Walker in action again. He's too good a fighter to remain idle.

And once more let us remark that the dodgers should be made to come right out and fight when they are challenged by logical contenders.

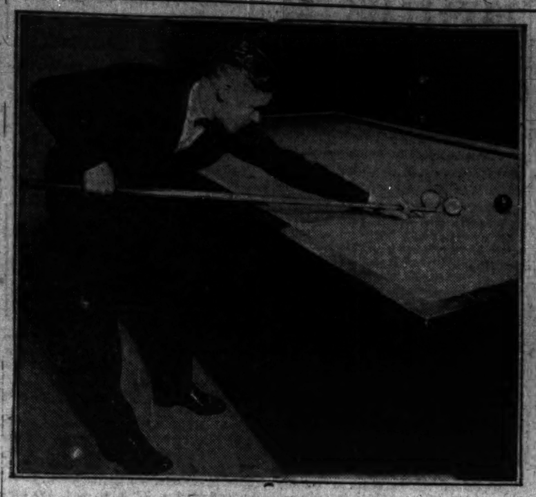
CUE TITLE BATTLE BEGINS TOMORROW



WELKER COCHRAN.

Champion of the 18-2 billiard world will defend his title in three games of 500 points each against the onslaught of the youthful Californian at Orchestra hall. The blocks will be played tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights.

WILLIE HOPPE.
[Kadel & Herbert Photo.]

Hoppe Slight Favorite Over Cochran for Title Playoff

BY JOE DAVIS.

The eyes of the billiard world will be focused this week on Chicago where at Orchestra hall Champion William F. Hoppe of New York and Welker Cochran of Los Angeles will contest for the international balkline championship at 18-2.

The match is at 1,500 points in three blocks of 500 each, starting tomorrow at 8 o'clock. J. Herbert Levis of Chicago will be referee.

Willie and Welker tied for first place in the recent international tournament at New York, and as it was impossible to secure a suitable room there for the playoff, the event was transferred here.

Tied in New York.

At New York, Cochran was the only player of the tournament to defeat Hoppe, winning, 500 to 230; but Cochran met with unexpected defeat at the hands of Erich Hagenlacher, the German champion, winning, 500 to 323, and this eventually brought about a tie.

Champion Hoppe needs little introduction to the billiard public, as for fifteen years, save for one lapse, he has been the greatest outstanding champion in any branch of athletics. He won his first 18-2 title in 1908.

Since that time, save in 1921 when Jake Schaefer annexed the crown, Hoppe has been supreme. He won the 18-1 title in 1913 and the 14-1 championship in 1913, and still holds them, although no competitions have been held for several years.

Cochran Studied Game Here.

Cochran, who was born at Manson, Ia., played as a youngster and then came to Chicago to study billiards under Lanson Parkins. He finished third in the tournament at New York in October, 1919, and the following year when he with Hoppe and Schaefer, played in the final event at New York, he tied with Schaefer, each winning one and losing three.

In the famous tournament at the Chicago Auditorium in November, 1921, Schaefer and Hoppe tied at five wins and one loss, and Schaefer won the playoff. Cochran tied with Roger Conti of France at three wins and three losses.

Hoppe made a clean sweep of the 1922 tournament at New York, winning five straight matches, while Cochran was off form and placed fifth, winning only one game.

Cochran redeemed himself this year when he tied with Hoppe at New York. Hoppe had a game average of 26 20-85, and high run of 170. Cochran notched 24 67-94, with high run of 146.

Hoppe to Be Favorite.

While Hoppe undoubtedly will start a slight favorite tomorrow night, Cochran will have a following. He is in the happy position of having two chances, for should he lose the playoff, he is first in line to challenge Hoppe.

Cochran can play well enough to win, but has done it only once. Welker has shown good speed in his practice matches here and Hoppe has done equally well in his preparatory work.

Hoppe arrived yesterday from Detroit, where he has been playing several days, and reports himself in good physical shape.

HUESTON TAKES 2 FROM McCOY

Richmond, Va., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Tommy Hueston of Chicago won both of his National Pocket Billiard league matches from James McCoy, local expert, here today. Hueston triumphed, 100 to 84, in thirty innings in his first game and took the second, 100 to 76, in thirteen sessions. Hueston had high runs of 21 and 20, while McCoy's best innings were 15 and 28.

Allen Wins Two.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Benny Allen ran up two more national pocket billiard league games to his total here today, defeating Pasquale Natalie of St. Louis, 100 to 70, in the afternoon and, 100 to 79, in the evening. The first game took nineteen innings and the second twenty-three, with the local player having runs of 27 and 22, while Natalie accumulated 38 in the night affair.

Loughran to Get Chance at Greb's Title Xmas Day

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 15.—Harry Greb, world's middleweight champion, will risk his title here Christmas day in a ten round decision bout with Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia, local promoters announce.

GOOZEMAN AND BUTCH FINISH DRILL FOR BOUT

Erni Gooseman, the coast featherweight, and George Butch of the west side, who meet in the main event of George Oswego's boxing show at East Chicago tomorrow night, finished the strenuous part of preparation yesterday. Each boxed with sparring partners, but they will engage in light workouts at the Arcade today to insure the making of 124 pounds at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Jimmy Gory of the Twenty-seventh Ward Democratic club, who is matched with Alex Trambitas of California, and Eddie Welch of South Bend, who meets Patsy Rocco of East Chicago, also put on the finishing touches of arduous work for their ten round bouts. All are in good shape, and according to Promoter Oswego, there will not be any last minute substitutions.

Two Bouts for Burman.

Joe Burman, local bantamweight, who will trade punches with Johnny McCoy of Cleveland at Blue Island next Friday night, closed two matches yesterday. Burman, who now is doing his own business, signed with Frank Mulkern of Milwaukee to meet Gooseman in the Cream city on Dec. 28. On New Year's afternoon Joe will take on Bobby Wolgast of Philadelphia in a ten round decision contest in the Quaker city.

McCoy is hard at work at the Arcade, and expects to make a strong showing against the veteran Burman. Other fighters on the card are hard at work, and Matchmakers Rice and Starr for the Island A. A. asserted the card will stand as announced, unless accidents overtake some of the boxers in training.

Socks Smith-Shade Go.

Davenport, Ia., promoters are angling for a match between Warnie Smith, the Oklahoma welterweight, and Dave Shade of California. According to Ray Alvis, manager of Smith, the match will be closed tomorrow.

Charlie White today will finish his local training for Tuesday's bout against Bobby Barrett in Philadelphia by going through a brisk workout at Ferretti's gym.

COCHRAN BEATS M'ANDLESS AT CUE

Welker Cochran made a clean sweep of the eight 18-2 balk line matches against Dave McAndless by taking yesterday's games at Mussey's Monroe room in easy style. The Californian won the afternoon block, 400 to 69, with high runs of 154 and 103, and captured the evening affair, 400 to 150. The first game went six innings and the second nine. The Californian's play last night did not measure up to his performance in the afternoon or in previous matches.

In the evening McAndless shot his best game of the series, accumulating 63 for high run. His high afternoon run was 27. Cochran's best in the evening was 144. During the four days' competition Cochran had a grand average of 54 14-59. Welker's high run of the series was an unfinished 299 on the second night.

Woods and Waters by BOB BECKER

FEEDING BIRDS WORTH WHILE.

WHETHER on the windswept farm, in the forest, or in the city, the feeding of birds during winter adds zest to life, helps the hardy feathered creatures, and provides no end of fun and entertainment for the one who is running the bird cafeteria.

Bird lovers are paying increasing attention to feeding throughout the country, and by December are usually attracting all kinds of 'em to various types of feeding stations. Nutmatches, chickadees, jays, and other species become regular visitants to such stations, while in the fields the quail can be soon tamed by grain dinners which are tossed out. Down east they make quite a stunt of this bird feeding, and when the snow has covered the ground and the bleak, cold winters have set in all sorts of shelves, tables, hoppers and boxes can be seen with the star bird boarders right on the job.

Although putting out food for the birds is nothing less than fun for any one interested, to the birds themselves it often means life or death. A heavy snow, followed by freezing weather which puts a crust on top, is what raises havoc with the quail and other species, and it is then that the person maintaining feeding stations gets a real kick out of his work. It isn't necessary to have a lot of expensive equipment to attract birds to the foods which you put out for them. Grain scattered on a cleared piece of ground or a few chunks of suet will bring around many hungry woodpeckers, jays, chickadees, and other birds. Suet is the cheapest and best food for insect eating winter birds. It is nourishing and does not freeze. Take a piece weighing about a pound and tie it to the branch of a tree, crisscrossing the string many times, so that some crow won't come along and make way with too large a chunk. Here is a trick to fool the crows, however. Tie the suet on the under side of the branch. In that position the chickadees, nuthatches (those upside down birds), and woodpeckers can reach it, but the crow will find it tough picking.

Some bird fans are now putting out hoppers for suet. Half inch netting is all one needs to make one. A good size is 6x6x2, tacked to a cleat which can be nailed to a tree. A piece of tin for a cover is desirable. This hopper should be put on the south side of a tree, away from the direction of winter storms.

The simplest form of feeding device is, of course, the food shelf. It can be of any size, but to prevent seeds being scattered by the wind a lath should be tacked around the edges and wire covered drainage holes put in it. A very simple food shelter can be made with just a few boards, a saw, some nails, and a hammer. Thirty inches wide, fifteen inches deep, and with a slanting roof about fifteen inches high at its highest point is a good size. In this a suet basket, a small grain hopper, and a tray for seeds will provide all kinds of good meals for the birds. The station should, of course, face the south.

Suet seems to attract more birds than any other one food. Screech owls, hairy woodpeckers, downy woodpecker, blue jays, juncos, nuthatches, chickadees, flickers, and red headed woodpeckers more than go after the suet. Bread crumbs are liked by quite a bunch of winter birds. The following have been known to eat crumbs at a feeding station. Tree sparrow, junco, cardinal, brown creeper, chickadee, and white crowned sparrow. Sunflower seed is a popular food with the blue jay, finches, nuthatch, and chickadee. Hemp and millet seed is great for the junco, vesper, white throated, tree, and other species of sparrows. Oats, whole corn, buckwheat broken nuts, cracked corn, and other foods are put out by the bird lovers, but such a variety is unnecessary. Suet, bread crumbs, and seeds make a fine combination which will bring a large variety of birds to your outdoor restaurant.

The most fascinating kind of winter feeding station, the one that provides a three ring circus for the bird fan, is the window station placed just outside a window of the home. With suet, crumbs, seeds, and other foods as attractions, the bird can be induced to visit such a place, while the bird fans, seated just a few feet from the window can occupy a ringside seat for the show. And it is nothing less than a show when the boarders get to scrapping among themselves for all the good thing to eat.

MANDELL MEETS SID TERRIS IN N. Y. TOMORROW

BY HARRY NEWMAN.

New York, Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Sammy Mandell, the Rockford, Ill., featherweight and Sid Terris are going to mingle for twelve rounds on the same program as the junior lightweight title bout in the Garden here Monday night. Mandell has gone over big here, and if he can beat the rough Mr. Terris there is no telling where he will stop.

Charlie White and Bobby Barrett are to go eight rounds or less on Tuesday night at the Arena A. A. in Philadelphia. This will be White's first fight since he boxed Pal Moran in the Garden here last fall. The Philadelphia rumpus will be a sort of comeback effort for the Chicago battler, who is anxious to atone for the knockout scored by Moran. To beat Barrett will be considerable achievement.

STRIBLING GAINS ANOTHER KAYO

Johnson City, Tenn., Dec. 15.—Young Stribling knocked out Eddy McDonald of Paris, Ky., in the fifth round of their scheduled six round bout here tonight.

GOOD FELLOWS NET $88 FROM HANDBALL MEET

Ralph Thorsen, one of the most efficient handball players in the city, defeated Jimmy Robinson for the Class A handball championship of the Kimrock A. A. yesterday. The match was played in the association courts in the McCormick building, and was seen by a large gathering of enthusiastic handball experts who contributed $88 to THE TRIBUNE'S Good Fellow Christmas fund. Thorsen won by scores of 20-21, 21-13, and 21-11.

It was one of the most interesting matches seen on the Kimrock courts this year, as the victor in the first two games came from behind to win. In the opening game, Robinson took his last serve four points behind, and by some excellent returns and placements managed to score enough points to nose out his opponent by one point. In fact, Robinson trailed all the way until he took his position for the last serve.

Thorsen Rallies to Win.

At the start of the second game it looked as if Robinson would be returned a sure winner, for he gathered eight points while Thorsen was able to score only once. Thorsen, after peeling off his shirt, settled down to business and gradually overtook his opponent. Ralph was perfect with a number of "kills" and placed his returns in such a manner that Jimmy was unable to get near the ball. After he had caught Robinson, Thorsen had little trouble garnering points.

Thorsen was master of the situation in the final and deciding game. He went into the lead at the start and passed his opponent repeatedly with well placed returns. His service also was unreturnable at times. Thorsen returned some difficult placements and numerous rallies brought forth rounds of applause.

Third Straight Win.

It was the third consecutive year Thorsen has annexed the title of the Kimrock A. A. in the Class A division. He is a member of the Thorsen & Sons Insurance Co.

As a curtain raiser to the main match, Avery Brundage of Chicago A. A. defeated Paul Geidel of Kimrock A. A., 17-21, 21-7, and 21-11.

The Thorsen-Robinson match was staged under personal direction of Harry Gilmore Jr. and Paul Geidel, proprietors of the Kimrock A. A., which boasts of one of the best equipped gymnasiums in Chicago. Numbers of former college athletes play handball every day and are placed in classes according to their ability.

Holland Boxer Smuggles Way Into United States

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 15.—Lambert Treakes, 23, claimant of the Holland light heavyweight boxing championship, was so anxious to show his pugilistic prowess to Americans that after four times failing to get legal admittance he risked his life to sneak across the Rainy river border waters on the night of Nov. 28, it was disclosed today by C. S. Remington, chief immigration inspector here.

BARRETT AGAIN ELECTED PREXY OF BUTTERFIELD

BY JOE DAVIS.

John F. Barrett, veteran Board of Trade man, who has been president of the Butterfield Country club since its inception, was reelected at the annual meeting last night at the Great Northern hotel. The other officers elected were:

First vice president—Fred Leutheuser.
Second vice president—J. B. Wantz.
Third vice president—F. Steffelin.
Treasurer—John Jedlan.
Secretary—John O'Connor, 208 Madison street, Oak Park.

Club in Fine Shape.

Directors elected for three years were:

Graham Reedy and John E. Gavin.

Reports of the officers showed the club had a fine season on its new course. The new clubhouse, completed last year, is one of the best houses in the Chicago district, and the course will compare favorably with any of the local courses.

Plans are being made to install shelters on the course and to construct a gateway at the entrance. The club now has a membership of 257.

Park Ridge Reelects Turnbull.

George L. Turnbull was reelected president of the Park Ridge Country club at the annual meeting. The other officers are:

Vice president—Harry F. Kipfer.
Secretary and treasurer—A. D. Hamilton, 451 Peoples Gas building.

The organization has approved plans for its new clubhouse which will be built next year.

Construction work on the nine hole putting course of the indoor school at the Evergreen club at 91st street and Western avenue is well under way. Two nets are being installed and will be open to the public Jan. 1. Jack Yorgan is in charge.

William Langford, who is constructing a new course at Key West, which will be the most southern course in the country, will leave Dec. 18 for Lake Worth, Fla., to open his winter office. He will remain there three months.

Gene Sarazen, the professional open champion, and Arthur Havers, the British open champion, will meet in two matches in California early next year. They will play at San Francisco and Los Angeles.

At the annual meeting of the women's auxiliary of the Lincoln Park Golf club Miss Nan Silliestrom was elected chairman; Mrs. H. W. Gorrach, master of events; and Miss Edna Hierman, Miss Geneva Hierman, and Mrs. F. C. Bradley were elected directors. The club had the best year in its history.

Jack Patterson of Midlothian, winter professional at the Chicago Beach Indoor Golf club, is preparing to celebrate the Yuletide with a delicacy imported by him from Auld Reekie. The piece de resistance at the Patterson domicile will not be English plum pudding, but the haggis lauded by Bobbie Burns. It takes a man of Jack Patterson's physical fitness to tackle this sinister dish, whose fearful and wonderful contents from time immemorial have been shrouded in mystery.

THE DAYS OF REAL SPORT

AMERICANS SPEND 100 MILLIONS FOR SPORTS

to the game of Tilden and Johnston and Anderson?

The priseight business, for all its vulgar talk of money, was the notion counter of sport this year. Tex Rickard's thirty-seven shows thus far in 1923 have drawn only $3,987,039, of which almost $3,000,000 was taken in at three riots—the Dempsey-Firpo, Willard-Firpo, and Willard-Johnson occasions.

Two fighters who draw well in New York but stand far from the championship of their division, enjoyed shares of large gate receipts. In three fights, Charlie White of Chicago participated in total "takes" of $103,000, receiving around 20 per cent of that for himself. In four fights Jack Bernstein, also a lightweight, played to gross receipts of $149,000, of which he, also, received about a third.

Dempsey and Firpo played to a house of $1,188,525; Firpo and Willard to $430,939, and Willard and Johnson to $350,027. Then Dempsey got more than $200,000 out of the Shelby fight with Tom Gibbons.

Then Baseball.

This year's world series brought more than $1,000,000 for the first time. During the season there were eight major league ball games a day for 154 days, a total of 1,232 games, at which the average attendance probably ran about 7,500. That would be 9,340,000 at, say, 75 cents a head. There's $6,930,000 and a cheap figure for the aggregate gate receipts of baseball's most prosperous season.

Race tracks in the metropolitan district charged $3.85 admission. That was the lowest price. Racing ran along all summer and the crowds varied between 1,500 and 15,000. In Maryland and Kentucky the minimum price is $1.50.

Football's receipts can only be hinted at. Harvard gives a clue with a total attendance of 240,000 at home games. Average $3 a head. Pennsylvania drew 321,000 and the receipts were $670,000.

Mutiply these returns by fifty and you may come within a furlong of the national aggregate football gate.

Is there an unemployed quarter in the house till pay day?

MARQUETTE ELEVEN TO BATTLE MIDDIES AT ANNAPOLIS ON OCT. 11

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 15.—[Special.] — Marquette university will meet the Navy on the gridiron next fall, according to announcement at the annual athletic banquet tonight. The game will be played Oct. 11 at Annapolis. Boston college will be met in Boston on Nov. 8; the University of Vermont in Milwaukee on Thanksgiving day, and North Dakota here on Nov. 15.

Lavern Dilweg, Eckersall's choice for all-Western end, was elected captain of the 1924 eleven at the banquet. Letters were awarded to twenty men.

OXFORD HARRIERS WIN.

ROEHAMPTON, England, Dec. 15.—Oxford university defeated Cambridge university in the seven and one-half mile cross country race today.

ELECTRIC CLUB WINS WEEK SHOOT HONORS

The second week of shooting in the Chicago Rifle association's tournament for the city championships and a leg on THE TRIBUNE trophy resulted in several upsets and a better grade of shooting than the previous week. That the new "off-hand" position is making the race a sporting proposition is proven by the way hitherto champions go sliding down the spilway on the standing position.

The premier achievement of the week was the Hawthorne Rifle club's score of 942, which sends them ahead of Centennial. G. R. Brown and E. D. Swanberg of Hawthorne tied at 197 for the best individual scores made this year, a remarkable showing at the new style position. W. T. Barrans, Hawthorne team captain, goes into fifth place and another teammate, H. A. Williams, moves up ten notches in the individual standing by turning in 193.

NET COMMITTEE LAYS PLANS FOR OLYMPIC TEAM

New York, Dec. 15.—Ways and means of selecting and financing an American international tournament tennis team; the barring of spiked shoes on turf courts, and the charging of sanction fees for all future tournaments were among proposals approved today by the executive committee of the United States Lawn Tennis association. They will be offered for adoption at the association's annual meeting in February.

A team of from seven to ten men and women players, besides a manager, to be selected by the Davis cup committee; and a fund of $18,000 to be raised by an assessment or subscription fee of 50 cents from each member of clubs in the U. S. L. T. A., were recommendations.

Team to Play in England.

The team, it was stated, would leave America about June 1 and would represent the United States first in the international tournaments at Wimbledon, England, and then in the Olympic matches at Colombes, France.

Complaints as to the damage done turf courts by spiked shoes during the 1923 season, led to the executive committee's recommendation relative to such footgear. It was stated that recent tests have shown that new crepe-rubber soled shoes furnish secure footing for the players except in rainy weather, and if the proposal is adopted, spiked shoes may be used only under such conditions.

Unlimited Ranking List.

In recommending a sanction fee for future tournaments the executive committee would have the U. S. L. T. A. permit retention of 50 per cent of the sanction fee by the sectional association, the remaining 50 per per cent to be forwarded to the national body.

The executive committee approved the national tennis ranking of 1923, as submitted by the ranking committee. The executive group decided that in the future the ranking committee shall be permitted to place as many players on the ranking list as it sees fit, a minimum of twenty being required. In the past the number has been restricted to twenty.

May Expand List.

If the committee has difficulty in selecting the players for the last few places on the list of twenty, the new rule will permit it to place on the list all of those whose ability appears to be about the same.

Radium Is Restoring Health to Thousands

The wonderful curative power of Radium has been known for years. However, the benefits of this health-giving substance have been past reach, only within the means of persons of wealth.

Since the invention of Dunn's Radio-Active Solar Pad, any man or woman, poor or rich, can afford the wonderful effects so much relief from suffering and disease.

Dunn's Radio-Active Solar Pad is worn next to the body day and night. It pours a constant stream of curative energy into the system while at work, play or sleep, helping to build up weakened nerves and tissues to stronger, healthy condition. It creates a vigorous circulation of blood, thereby relieving congestion, which is the cause of most diseases.

To prove just what this wonderful treatment can do for you, we will place our appliance on trial with the understanding that we will not charge you a cent if it fails to give satisfactory results. This offer is open to any person who has pain of any kind, nervousness, high blood pressure, stomach, kidney or liver complaint, bladder trouble or disease of the lungs or heart.

No matter what your ailment or how long you have had it, we will gladly let you try the appliance at our risk. Write today for free literature giving complete information. Radium Appliance Co., 373 Bradbury Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

GOLDEN SPURS BRING LIVELY JOCKEY FIGHT

BY FRENCH LANE.

Winter racing rivalry between the two associations at Tijuana and New Orleans has bobbed up again.

This time it is in the shape of a contest to determine which track shall produce the greatest jockey of the season, now getting well under way at both winter racing centers.

Despite the presence of Ivan Parke and his sensational feats at New Orleans, Jimmy Coffroth and his lieutenants at Tijuana have announced a plan which they think will give them a rider that may top the best effort of any boy performing in the Crescent city.

They have adopted the Epsom Downs system of offering a pair of golden spurs to the rider who makes the best record during the season, which closes late in March. The spurs are to be worth $1,500, and already much rivalry has developed among the lads under silks in Lower California.

Eastern Boys in Action Soon.

Petey Walls, Freddie Cantrell, Pablo Martinez, E. Barnes, N. Kennedy, Freddie Sharp, E. Legere, Willie Pool, J. Fator, T. Wilson, and G. Lavine are some of the lads who are making a good start in the chase for the coveted spurs, but some of the crack eastern riders are en route to the Mexican racing grounds and the fight for the leadership should be highly interesting right up to getaway day.

Parke is having things his own way at New Orleans and if he retains even a good share of his present form it is doubtful if any of the boys at Tijuana will be able to head him. But even Parke is finding the going not so easy lately as the northern colony becomes more acclimated to the going in Louisiana.

Good Boys at New Orleans.

There appears to be more class to the jockeys accepting mounts at New Orleans than at either Tijuana or Havana. Such boys as J. Wallace, Johnny Corcoran, McDermott, E. Glind, E. Martin, Eddie Petzoldt, J. Savic, and C. Lang are in action daily there, and other good ones will be on the job when the Fair Grounds meeting opens New Year's day.

The golden spur offer may cause New Orleans promoters to hang up a similar trophy and it might bring a like move in Cuba, all of which should help racing, for there has been a scarcity of good riders on this side of the Atlantic for the last half dozen years.

Jinx Track for Garner.

For several seasons a riding sensation has annually come out of the New Orleans meeting. The most notable of the lot was Earl Sande, who rode in his first race of importance there half a dozen years ago, then dashed on to a brilliant career that won for him the title "America's greatest jockey."

Johnny Corcoran was the hero of last year's racing, piloting home so many winners that he landed a rich contract with the Whitney interests early in the spring. He has a younger brother bidding for fame there this season.

Mack Garner, regarded by many as the best rider in Kentucky, is not at New Orleans. He never met with much success there; on the contrary, he has encountered considerable bad luck in New Orleans in the way of accidents and penalties, and now he calls it his jinx city. Sande is not among those present, and if he rides in the south at all it will be late in the season.

JOCKEY SANDE WINS $444,125 FOR NEW RECORD

New York, Dec. 15. — Earl Sande, premier American jockey, established a new money winning record in 1923 when he rode horses to victories that netted $444,125 to his employers, according to figures made public today.

Sande accounted for thirty-nine important stake triumphs in the east and middle west, but his most notable victories were astride Zev, Rancocas stable 3 year old crack. Sande had the mount on Zev in all but one of the colt's 1923 performances, including the $100,000 international race with Papyrus and the Kentucky Derby.

Sande and Zev met defeat twice, in the Preakness at Pimlico, Md., and the $50,000 championship stakes at Latonia, Ky.

All of Sande's winnings, however, were not in the colors of the Rancocas stable. He rode for several other eastern owners, including Rear Admiral Mary T. Grayson, whose colt, My Own, the jockey piloted to a number of victories.

L. McAtee and Mack Garner, pilot of A Memorian and other crack western horses, finished second and third in the winning list, with $113,795 and $105,465, respectively, the records show.

The Rancocas stable broke all previous records for money winning. Its horses gathered in $435,599 during 1923. Zev's 3 year old total of $261,908 is the most any American thoroughbred has ever earned in a single season.

ONE HAS TITLE—OTHER SEEKS IT

World's heavyweight wrestling champion and champion of Europe, who meets him Tuesday night at Coliseum. Rogacki, a Pole, is said to be the greatest of foreign mat stars.

LEWIS MEETS ROGACKI IN TITLE GO TUESDAY

Featured by the international heavyweight championship bout between Ed "Strangler" Lewis, world's title holder, and Jozef Rogacki of Poland, who claims the heavyweight title of Europe, the Midwest A. C. with Ed White and Joe Coffey as matchmakers will conduct an interesting wrestling show at the Coliseum on Tuesday night.

Not since the days of George Hackenschmidt, the Russian Lion, has a foreign grappler come to this country with such a clear claim to foreign wrestling supremacy. According to his credentials he has beaten the best men on the other side and is confident he will beat the American, who won the world's title from Stanislaus Zbyszko, a countryman of Rogacki, a few years ago.

Looks Like Zbyszko.

In fact, Rogacki appears to be a second edition of the mighty Pole, who, despite his age, is generally conceded one of the leaders in the heavyweight division. The latest Polish sensation is twenty years younger than his countryman and knows more holds than Stanislaus. He is a master of the Graeco-Roman style of wrestling and knows a defense for most of the holds of the catch-as-catch-can style of grappling.

The Polish champion, who arrived in Chicago last Friday, asserted the head lock as employed by Lewis is a Graeco-Roman hold. He also stated it cannot have any injurious results if applied without choking an opponent or pressing the knuckles against the sides of the head. In fact, Rogacki intends to see that a capable referee is selected, one who will not permit any throttling when Lewis secures the head lock.

Both Finish Training.

Both men finished the harder part of the training grind yesterday. They will do some walking today and tomorrow and then await the call into the ring.

Pat McGill, the Nebraska Harp, and Frank Judson, wrestling coach at Harvard, will meet in the semi-windup to determine the next opponent for Lewis. This will be a one fall match with no time limit. In the other bouts Reginald Siki will take on Paul Martinson and Fred Meyers, former National A. A. U. light heavyweight and heavyweight champion, will take holds with Mike Romano. The show will open at 8:15 o'clock.

EPINARD TO RACE IN 3 U. S. SWEEPSTAKES; ONE KENTUCKY START

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Epinard will oppose American thoroughbred stars in a series of three sweepstakes, but not in any match races, Pierre Wertheimer, millionaire owner of the present French 3 year old champion, declared tonight.

"The races will be sweepstakes in order to allow any American horse to compete against Epinard," said M. Wertheimer. "Two races will be run in the east and one in Kentucky, in deference to the racing public of the middle west.

"Epinard belongs to the public. That is my feeling. It is the feeling toward racing reflected by American sportsmen with whom I have come in contact. The steamship Paris will bring Epinard to the United States with his trainer and jockey early in July."

8 GAMES IN PEEL CUP SOCCER SERIES TODAY

Eight games in the first round of the Peel soccer cup competition will be played today. Most of the weaker teams have been eliminated during the preliminary rounds, and today's play accordingly will bring together some of the strongest teams of the city.

The Sparta Union-Olympia game will bring together the rival Bohemian elevens of the trophy competition, and should provide the feature battle. The game will be played at 27th street and Kostner avenue and should draw the largest crowd of the day. Both teams are primed for a hard battle.

Canadian club and Swedish-American A. A. will battle at Riverview Park in another important clash. The Swedish-Americans have been defeated several times during the season, but in every game have been without the services of one or more regulars. Today the Swedes will be at top strength and should give the Canucks a hard battle.

Following is the schedule, all games starting at 2 o'clock unless otherwise indicated:

PEEL CUP.

Sparta Union and Olympia at 27th and Kostner; Swedish-Americans and Canadian club at Riverview; Jugo-Slavia and Harvey at Sherman park; North Shores at Gary; Chicagos and Pullman at 79th and Drexel; Sture and British legion at Potomac and Laramie; Bricklayers and Y. M. H. A. at 35th and Wentworth.

DISTRICT LEAGUE.

McKinley Park and Indiana Harbor at 35th and Rockwell.

SONS OF ST. GEORGE LEAGUE.

Ivy-White Rose and Mistletoe at Hirsch and Laramie.

BEARS, BADGERS CLASH TODAY IN SEASON'S FINALE

With second place in the National Professional Football league at stake, Chicago Bears and Milwaukee Badgers, the latter led by the famous "Bo" McMillin of Centre college, will tangle this afternoon to undo a tie they played two weeks ago. Today's meeting will mark the end of the season's activities for the Bears, as well as the rest of the teams in the circuit.

Milwaukee's back field of McMillin, Erickson, Doane, and Conzelman is considered one of the fastest and most versatile in the league.

Badger Backs Strong.

Conzelman, McMillin, and Erickson are slippery open field runners, while Doane rarely fails on plunges. McMillin adds to the versatility of the visitors with his triple threat ability.

Since Joe Sternaman has been guiding the Bears at quarterback, the locals have developed a more varied offense which has not been hauled. Joe will direct the plays again this afternoon, with Dutch Sternaman, Red Bryan, and Bill Knopp forming the rest of the backfield. The Bears will present their regular impregnable line.

Here's the Lineup.

Following is the way the teams will start:

West secured eleven tricks.
These were only eight tricks in sight when the dealer looked over the dummy and his own cards—four hearts, two diamonds, and two clubs. He could, of course, establish two extra tricks in clubs if the cards of that suit were distributed normally, but the opponents in that case would be certain to switch to spades and secure in all six tricks.

It was probable, because spades were neither bid nor led, that south held five in that suit and north four, and that the ace and king were not in the same hand. A spade lead from the declarer's hand would have been very poor play, as the trick would be won by south, who might continue the suit, especially if he did not have another diamond.

The lead of the jack from dummy, however, had all the earmarks of a finessing play, and there was no reason for north to suspect that the declarer would not have four or five spades. Having a secondary defense in that suit, north, of course, could not lead another spade, nor could he continue his diamonds without allowing the ten to win in dummy.

South had already shown that he had nothing in the heart suit, and there was nothing left for north to lead but the jack of clubs, as the declarer had hoped.

After the fourth trick things were easy for west.

NEWPORT SAILORS WIN BOXING AND MAT TOURNEY

Newport, R. I., Dec. 15.—[Special.]—Newport won the internaval training station boxing and wrestling tournament which has been in progress here four days. The standing was: Newport, 11 points; Great Lakes, 2; Hampton Roads, 0.

As in the wrestling events on Friday, Newport won all but one boxing bout tonight. This defeat came in the heavyweight class, Walker, Chicago, outpointing Lewis, Newport middleweight.

Hampton Roads defaulted two bouts on account of injuries. The best bout was between Veasey, Newport bantamweight, and Smith, Great Lakes, which went to a decision in favor of the former. The other bouts were:

Hornburgh, Newport flyweight, won decision over Geale, Great Lakes.

K. O. Dorsch, Newport, featherweight, knocked out Mitchell, Great Lakes, in third round.

Burke, Newport, lightweight, knocked out Greer, Great Lakes, 15 seconds.

Layton, Newport, welterweight, won decision over Bisnoli, Great Lakes.

Motor Boats Form Extra Attraction at New York Show

Two Industries Battle to Remove War Tax from Product.

FOR the first time in the history of expositions in New York the automotive industries will make their appeal simultaneously in January, creating a situation of unusual interest to all who are interested in the motor car and the motor boat. The national automobile show will run from Jan. 6 to 13 in the armory on Kingsbridge road at Jerome avenue; and at the same time the national motor boat show will be presented in Grand Central palace.

Between the two industries there are many things in common apart from the fact that both owe their existence to the gasoline motor. To a great extent the accessories that are suitable for the one form of transportation also can be utilized by the other. In the matter of fittings and appointments each industry has been able in the past to gain valuable ideas from the experiences and experiments of the other.

Nearly all owners of motor boats are also automobile users, and motor car executive heads are among the leading enthusiasts in the development of high speed craft. Hence the conjunction of the two expositions will give the leaders of each industry a welcome opportunity to inspect the newer products of their friendly rivals. Each display will be the biggest of its kind to be held in the United States during the year.

During show week, motor boat and yachting organizations plan a concerted effort to place themselves on a parity with the automobile industry in the matter of taxes on sales of motor boats, yachts, and other craft. The present tax of 10 per cent on power boats, it is asserted by members of the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers, is oppressive and discriminatory, and has had a destructive effect on the industry. The manufacturers claim that the tax tends to discourage the use of power driven and sailing craft and will eventually wipe out the naval reserve force that was part of the navy during the war. It is maintained that the revenue from this tax is negligible.

A majority of the steam and power yachts over 40 feet in length were voluntarily turned over to the government during the war, and, in most cases, their owners also volunteered their services as part of the naval reserve force. It was understood that the government would pay the owners a sum sufficient to cover the cost of overhauling when the period of service ended. The allowance for repairs, however, was inadequate, in some cases not more than half what the expense would have been, and many owners did not undertake the expense.

The result is that most of these craft must now be sold for use in fishing or other commercial service. Their replacement means not only higher prices, because of the increased cost of production, but the payment of the tax of 10 per cent.

The motor boat industry is only one-eighteenth the size of the automobile industry, as regards the volume of invested capital, and employs only about one-thirtieth as many workmen. Notwithstanding this great disparity in the size of the two industries, the former industry's products are taxed at the rate of 10 per cent, while the corresponding tax upon automobiles is at the rate of 5 per cent.

While it is not contended that these industries are competitive in the ordinary sense, at the same time they both furnish the means for outdoor recreation and utility, and if the motor boat owner is prohibited by what he regards as an excessive tax upon his new boat he will by an automobile until such time as he feels that he can economically resume his recreation on the water. In this sense the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers maintains that the products are competitive, and the imposition of a higher tax on the motor boat industry is a serious discrimination.

Concrete Ribbon Connects Chicago with Pentwater

THE simple ceremony which officially opened the concrete road between Grand Haven, Mich., and Muskegon recently marked the completion of pavement from Chicago to Pentwater, Mich.—a distance of something over 200 miles.

The ceremony which opened the highway followed on the heels of the opening of the Dunes highway from Chicago to Michigan City. The Grand Haven-Muskegon road is a part of the West Michigan pike, "M-11," famous to tourists all over the United States. As a matter of fact, it is possible to go on good roads from Chicago over the Dunes highway and West Michigan pike clear to Mackinac, barring a stretch of road near Hart, Mich., which is now under consideration for pavement.

Opening of the Grand Haven-Muskegon road was attended by Muskegon and Ottawa county officials and good roads boosters. They gathered on the Muskegon-Grand Haven road and removed the last barriers. Among the officials was the Muskegon county road commission and the Ottawa county commission, the latter being headed by Senator William M. Connelly, father of the $50,000,000 Michigan good roads bill.

World's Best Doctor.

The statistician is out with the announcement that the span of life—if one keeps outside some of the safety zones—goes up eleven years as automobiles multiply. Back twenty years ago the average American lived 37.64 years, but in 1922 he had jumped to 43.66 years. Back in 1902 there were 10,350 automobiles in America. Now there are about 13,000,000—and the life expectancy has risen 7.66 years.

Solves Rail Problem.

An enterprising native of the state of Maine has solved the problem of what to do with an abandoned railway. Some months ago the Bangor and Aroostook railway discontinued service over its twelve mile branch running from Brownsville to Katahdin Iron works.

Henry Green saw his opportunity. He started with a small automobile and an idea. The idea was to fit the car with flange wheels and make it run on the unused rails. He rented the whole branch line from the railroad company at $100 a month and started business.

Now traffic is so brisk he is using a trailer behind his car.

Cleaning Tip.

In cleaning a car it is wise to begin from the inside and work out and from the top and work down. If the body is up it should be hosed or sponged and wiped dry. Gasoline or kerosene should never be used.

Start Your Motor Instantly In COOL Weather!

One stroke of the Imperial Primer—press your foot on the starter—like the crack of a pistol the spark catches the gas and away you go.

That is the wonderful convenience of it.

One or two turns of your motor, and you're off—with an IMPERIAL PRIMER. It always works—INSTANTLY! A few shots of quick-firing, vaporized gasoline, sprayed right into the manifold, gives that hot spark in your cylinder something to explode.

What is the cost?—$4.75 ($4.00 for Fords) and a small installation charge—unless you prefer to put it on yourself.

$4.75 $4.00 For Fords

Now Count What It Saves You

An Imperial Primer will double the life of your battery by eliminating the destructive strain of stubborn starting. It will save its cost in a month or so by saving your battery alone. Your storage battery has only about 50% of its efficiency in cold weather. Grinding away in a useless attempt to start a cold motor tears down the plates and soon ruins the battery.

Don't Ruin Your Motor With a Choker

You can absolutely ruin your motor by using a choker for starting. The choker now on your car simply shuts off the air supply to your carburetor, lets raw gasoline be sucked into the cylinders, run down into the crank case and thin out your oil. That means ruinous wear and tear on bearings and cylinders, and eventually a ruined car.

FORD OWNERS: Stop back-breaking cranking, jacking up your rear wheel and pouring hot water on the manifold as soon as cold weather comes. An Imperial Primer will start your motor INSTANTLY. No Ford should be driven without one. The Ford Special, $4 Complete.

GUARANTEED SATISFACTION OR YOUR MONEY BACK

We guarantee the IMPERIAL PRIMER to start your motor instantly, double the life of your battery, prevent thinning of crank case oil, and give you complete satisfaction. If it fails to do so, we will refund the purchase price.

Traffic Demands Double Width on County Highways

Frame New Road Program to Relieve Chicago Arteries.

BY J. L. JENKINS.

COOK county pays for 20 per cent of all pavements built in Illinois under the $60,000,000 bond issue plan—approximately 4,000 miles. Cook county has received about 2 per cent of bond issue pavements—approximately 117 miles. Forty of these miles are in villages and about seventy-one miles are paved.

Main roads leading out of Chicago carry as high as 407 vehicles an hour on weekdays and 1,000 an hour on Sundays. Next year they will be called on to bear greatly increased passenger and freight traffic, due to the increase in automobiles registered and in new bus lines operating in all directions from the city.

These facts, indicating a congestion problem for 1924 proportionately as great on country pavements as it is in Chicago streets, gave highway authorities pause last week. In the consideration of next year's highway building program county and state engineers and leaders of highway transportation development agreed that relief for traffic within a 100 mile radius of Chicago must become one of the primary issues of the 1924 building program.

There are two methods, according to engineers, which may be adopted as relief measures. The first and most popular plan calls for widening every main highway leading from Chicago to double its present paved width. The other calls for additional roads built to carry the traffic.

It is generally believed that the time has come for the adoption of an entirely new road program for Chicago and vicinity. Official traffic counts show that the pavements which five years ago were thought sufficient for all traffic needs are wholly inadequate today. Safety officials declare that eighteen foot pavements are but half wide enough to carry traffic to big population centers. They point out that transportation made Chicago what it is and that continued prosperity for both city and state lies in developing adequate highway transportation facilities at once.

In considering the problem, some of the traffic experts have made a study of the proposed $100,000,000 bond issue roads as well as the present, practically completed systems. They have found that, even if the designated bond issue roads are built around Chicago, and if the $60,000,000 system is completed, the pavement mileage in Cook county will not be doubled.

The first draft of a program which is likely to be adopted by transportation interests as their 1924 building platform includes the following suggestions:

That the state of Illinois build one mile of road in Cook county for each mile built by the county.

That traffic relief, either through building an additional 18 foot pavement or widening the present pavements to 27 feet, is essential on roads running from Chicago to Janesville, Rockford, Ottawa, Bloomington, Kankakee, Lafayette, Laporte, and Benton Harbor.

That the roads between Chicago and Milwaukee be widened to 45 feet, and that traffic density and not secondary highway connections be made the basis for the 1924 improvement program.

A survey of highways in Cook county last week showed, among other things, that there are at present 334 miles of paved highways in the county. A total of 107 of these run through villages. These roads are, for the most part, pavements built with county funds and with state aid funds. Only seventy-one miles of the total are state bond issue roads. None of these pavements exceed eighteen feet in width. They carry but two lines of moving traffic—one in each direction. During rush hours traffic is forced to move at less than ten miles an hour.

Here is what some of these eighteen foot roads are called upon to serve:

Roosevelt road—5,193 vehicles a day, 407 each hour; and 14,618 on Sundays.

Milwaukee avenue—4,084 vehicles a day, 379 an hour; 11,216 on Sunday.

Halsted street—3,826 vehicles a day, 188 an hour; 8,334 on Sunday.

Western avenue—3,468 a day, 236 an hour, 6,483 on Sunday.

Archer road—1,330 a day, 197 an hour; 3,055 on Sunday.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter," The Tribune, Chicago. For today's question W. D. Cummings, 312 County building, Chicago, was awarded $5.

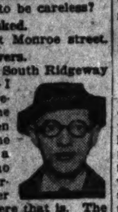
The Question.

What do you think of Mayor Dever's plan to revoke the licenses of automobile drivers found to be careless?

Where Asked.

Michigan avenue at Monroe street.

The Answers.



Manuel Miller, 1649 South Ridgeway avenue, insurance—I think if a driver is careless with his car he ought to have it taken away from him, and he ought to be put in a place where there is no chance of his endangering the lives of other people—you know where that is. The chances are that drivers do not realize what a dangerous machine they are handling.

J. J. Zahnler, 4866 Broadway, real estate—My plan for careless auto drivers would be to give them thirty days on the stone pile for the first lesson. Then if they didn't make good—that is, if they got caught a second time—revoke their licenses. At Sheridan road and Broadway I have seen drivers turn corners at fifty miles an hour.

Frank C. Sweeney, Great Northern hotel, postoffice clerk—After motoring for about nineteen years, I am convinced that a careful mental and physical examination of all applicants for licenses would reduce accidents materially. Mayor Dever's plan to revoke licenses would probably work a hardship on many a good but unfortunate driver.

Joseph McEnerny, 4447 Ellis avenue, assistant manager—I don't believe they should exactly revoke the licenses. The drivers should be given a chance, like all other people who break the law through error. The trouble nowadays is that too many people are driving cars who are not fit to drive. Some of them ought to be in Kankakee. And too many minors who ought to be going to high school are handling big cars.

N. W. Kiddell, 5 South Dearborn street, cigar salesman—If they got the right fellows, that would be all right. You will notice it is not the fellow with a big car who gets caught; it's always the poor guy who can only afford a low priced car. If they would treat rich and poor alike and revoke the licenses of the guilty, and only the guilty, then the plan would be a good thing—a very good thing.

Tourists from Mexico.

E. B. Pearson, "Col. Idaho Bill," rolled into the White House a week ago to present President Coolidge with a brace of wild bears. He had them with him, outside in a Dodge screen side car.

"Col. Bill" has long made his home in the west, moving further and further into the wilds as settlement has forced him from his preserves. He now lives down in the mountains of Mexico, where he captured the bears that he gave to the President.

President Coolidge enjoyed the presentation ceremony immensely. Known as a man who seldom smiles, he enjoyed the antics of the bears with all of the enthusiasm of a school boy.

There is no doubt about the bears being wild. They carry numerous marks of combat with horses and cattle in the wilds of Mexico. Their spirit has in no way been subdued by their motor trip across country.

Growing Business.

One thousand motor busses are now operated by more than 100 electric railways over routes totaling 1,500 miles in the United States and Canada, according to a survey recently completed by the editors of Bus Transportation. The figures indicate an increase of nearly 100 per cent in the use of busses by trolley companies since Oct. 1, 1922.

Latest Law Cuts Speed of Heavy Cars in Florida

TOURISTS planning to go to Florida are warned by the legal department of the Chicago Motor club of another auto law. The new law now in effect limits the speed of all motor vehicles with a gross weight of over 4,000 pounds to a maximum of twenty miles an hour.

H. B. Phillips, chairman of the Florida highway commission, excludes private cars from prosecution.

"I am very sure that the legislature did not intend to limit the speed of touring cars in any such manner," he announced. "What they were striking at was to limit the speed of trucks and heavy passenger busses. I do not think there will be any trouble in our state about this matter. If any one should be arrested for driving a pleasure car weighing more than 4,000 pounds under the terms of this law public sentiment would be so strong against such procedure that it would not be persisted in."

It is generally known or understood that the speed limit in Florida is thirty miles an hour. As a matter of fact, there is much driving at a speed in excess of thirty miles and our people do not get arrested, provided they are driving carefully and do not cause trouble."

The 1923 legislature also passed an act limiting to thirty days the reciprocal period during which time motorists from other states may drive on Florida highways without being required to take out a Florida license. Visiting motorists staying over thirty days may take out licenses for periods of two months each at a corresponding proportion of the annual license fee.

Chicago Appointment.

Another addition to the staff of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce was made last week, in the appointment of I. Walton Schmidt as district representative in the Chicago territory. Mr. Schmidt will make investigations for the industry on economic and market conditions. The new appointee was formerly assistant manager of the field department of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and was educated at Allegheny college.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

THE high grade motor car of today should be, and in most cases is, a ten-year car, Dayton Keith, distributor for the Willis Saints Claire in the Chicago territory, declared yesterday in reviewing the deluge of new models which will be featured during the coming national automobile shows in New York and Chicago. It is his belief that the era of radical changes in the appearance of automobiles is past and that manufacturers have come to realize the value of distinctive and permanent body and chassis design.

Carl Holdrege, Inc., 2218 Michigan avenue, has been appointed territorial distributor for the Yellow Cab express, a one-ton truck built by the Yellow Cab Manufacturing company, and the Cab Manufacturing line.

Rickenbacker motor stock has been oversubscribed and its sale has been discontinued, according to announcement made by B. F. Everitt, president. The company now has more than 10,000 shareholders and the only large blocks are held by active executive heads of the company.

An unusual winter display ushered in the long talked of six cylinder Essex model last week in the Chicago Hudson-Essex headquarters.

The new six cylinder companion car to the Peerless eight—a model which the company has been testing for more than two years—will be shown for the first time in the New York show, which opens Jan. 5.

Total automobile sales in California for the first nine months of 1923 exceeded the same period in 1922 by 87 per cent, it was announced yesterday. Buick sales increased 72 per cent and Ford sales jumped 60 per cent.

Make 'Em Cops.

One of the newest forms of punishment for automobile speeders in Kansas City, Kas., is compelling the offenders to serve as a traffic officer. Policemen are on hand on the busy corners where the victims are "doing time."

Label the Rivers.

"What river is that?" is a question which comes to the mind of the motor tourist frequently on his journeys, but rarely does he find an answer without making a special stop to inquire. It is the aim of the League of American Pen Women to make the nation's rivers better known to the public. Mrs. Grace Goldert, president of this association, is requesting the various state highway commissions to place markers at roadsides which cross famous streams informing the public as to the name of the body of water at hand.

In "Gas Alley."

A linseed oil soap is recommended as best. Almost the only legitimate time for using soap on the body is when there are lumps of tar to remove. Vaseline is splendid for softening the tar, although it may not always be effective. Having softened the tar with vaseline, and washed it away with pure water, there may be left some small grease spots which can best be removed by a sparing application of soap and water. If the tar has hardened, it is best to use some tar remover especially prepared for this purpose.

A REO for CHRISTMAS

SANTA Claus is Reo-wise this year! For his orders already hint that in hundreds—or thousands—of American homes a Reo closed car will constitute the big thrill of Christmas morn.

No gift can so completely express thoughtful generosity, nor so merit whole-hearted and sustained appreciation. In the whole scheme of useful and unselfish Christmas giving it is the gift supreme.

Studied propriety inspires it. For it suggests liberality without extravagance,—elegance without ostentation,—deep sincerity without superficiality. And remembrance of the gift will be as vivid during April showers and July suns as during the Christmas snows.

The particular suitability of Reo as a Christmas present is based on such important considerations as these:

Body Lines,—dignified but decidedly modish. Disc wheels and cord tires are standard.

Comfort,—marked by unusual roominess, superb upholstery and completeness of fitments.

Safety,—furthered by planned road balance, dual foot control and greatly oversized brakes. No car so compellingly appeals to feminine drivers.

Power,—unstintingly supplied by the famous Reo six-cylinder, 50 h. p. engine.

Mechanical correctness,—typified by the double-framed chassis, 13-plate clutch, frost-proof radiator, new improved rear axle.

Five Models on the High-Powered "Six" Chassis

Closed cars: Coupe, $1875; Sedan, $1985; Brougham, $2235. Open models: Phaeton, $1545; Touring, $1335. All prices f. o. b. Lansing, plus tax.

SHERWIN-WILLIAMS 36TH GENERAL CONFERENCE NEWS

World's Largest Paint and Varnish Manufacturers

Great 36th General Conference Starts Monday

CONGRESS HOTEL

More Than 600 Delegates in Attendance

When George A. Martin, President of the Sherwin-Williams Co., calls to order the company's thirty-sixth general convention tomorrow morning in the Gold Room of the Congress Hotel, over six hundred will be in attendance.

In this number are included directors, officers, department heads, the entire sales force and leading men in the export and subsidiary companies.

This is in direct contrast to the number present at the first convention in Cleveland in 1881. Only fourteen attended that meeting, six from the management and eight traveling representatives.

It is an unusual coincidence that two present at that first meeting will be on hand tomorrow. They are S. P. Fenn, Vice President and Secretary of the company, who has been active in the business for fifty-three years and A. W. Ballard, the oldest living representative, who although no longer on the active list, keeps in close touch with the company's activities.

Similar contrasts might be drawn all along the line. In 1881 the business was more or less local or sectional at best. Today it is international. At that time, one small plant was maintained at Cleveland and there was a resident manager at Chicago. Today the company owns and operates mines, smelters, a linseed oil mill and fifty-two manufacturing plants in various parts of the country and has warehouses so located that practically local service is assured dealers in every state. There are now but few active formulae and a handful of products. Today there are several thousand formulae and a constant flow of new and revised surface coverings and article manufacturable. Then Sherwin-Williams Products could be purchased in only a few stores. Today they are handled in practically every city, town and hamlet in the United States and have wide distribution in foreign countries.

At that time Sherwin-Williams was a small paint company planning and dreaming and hoping to become large enough to compete with some of the other paint manufacturers. Today those plans and dreams have been fulfilled and surpassed, the company being by far the largest and the outstanding leader in the paint and varnish industry. Moreover, it has extended its activities into many other lines being a very important factor in the manufacture of dyes, chemicals, colors, insecticides and coal tar products.

With such a background, it is little wonder that the company is planning an extraordinary convention at the close of one of the most successful years in its history.

Good conventions are traditional with Sherwin-Williams, some wonderful ones having been held in the past. The Golden Jubilee meeting held in Cleveland in 1916 at that time was considered the last word in sales gatherings. However, from all reports this year's conference will far surpass that and any other before staged by the company or the industry for that matter.

Months of preparation have been spent on it. A number of things never attempted before are promised as surprise features. The regular sessions will be thirty executions and will give the delegates a new and broader conception of the company and its activities. Some of the special events announced include an all day trip through the company's large manufacturing properties at Kensington, on Tuesday and a banquet that evening at the Congress Hotel with speakers of national prominence.

George A. Martin, President of the company, is General Chairman and H. D. Whittlesey, Vice President and Managing Director of Sales, Vice Chairman. The executive committee which has had charge of all arrangements includes C. M. Lemperly, Director of Publicity, Chairman; A. W. Steudel, Assistant to the President; J. R. Davis, Manager of Retail Sales; C. G. Bull, General Purchasing Agent; F. P. Collister, Manager of General Trade Sales; J. W. Burt, Manager of Architectural Sales, and A. W. King, Superintendent of Printing and Sampling.

The delegates, with the exception of the winners of the 1922-23 Prosperity Pageant Sales Competition, who with their wives were brought in two days early and specially entertained as a reward for their good work, will arrive by special trains from the various district and division points. All will make the Congress their headquarters.

Western District Plays Host

This is the first time the Western District has played host to a Sherwin-Williams Convention since 1910, when the meeting was held in the old Auditorium.

Noted always for their hospitality, the Chicago district, L. B. Quinn, district manager, are planning to outdo themselves this year.

Mr. Quinn, a native Chicagoan, is well known here. In fact, his name and Sherwin-Williams are almost synonymous in and around Chicago.

The Western District is one of the largest in area and population in the country. It is comprised most of Indiana and Illinois, western Michigan, the entire states of Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota and Montana, practically all of South Dakota and the eastern half of Iowa.

The district is divided into four divisions with as many managers in charge who report to Mr. Quinn. G. W. Jaap looks after the Chicago City Division and is located at 2353 South La Salle St. R. M. Carson, with offices at Kensington, Ill., is manager of the Chicago Country Division, with a territory extending into Wisconsin and Iowa, as well as Illinois. C. P. Trees of Indianapolis, manager of Indiana sales, and J. P. Coleman at Minneapolis has charge of the northwestern territory.

Fifty-eight representatives travel out of these division points. Warehouses are located in each of the division cities and in addition a new one has been recently opened in Des Moines, Iowa.

C. P. Trees is manager of railway and manufacturers' sales for the district. Among his customers are many of the largest industrial and railway paint consumers. Public relations propaganda work is handled by R. B. Cogswell, and W. K. Sawyer is manager of credits.

FOREIGN DELEGATES

Foreign representatives attending Sherwin-Williams Convention include: Pumiea, Egypt (India); G. Arguedas, Central America; J. M. Fontan, Porto Rico; T. V. Cannon, Cuba; A. A. Arnold, Mexico; H. Lawson, Brazil, and A. A. Humfrey, Alaska. H. L. Gemebrling is Director of Foreign Sales.

On the Sherwin-Williams Convention roster are 30 men with 25 years' service or more; 66 men with 20 years or more; 84 men with 15 years or more, and 147 men with 10 years or more. In addition there are many more veterans in the manufacturing departments who are not in attendance.

George A. Martin

George A. Martin, President of the Sherwin-Williams Co., gained his first business experience in Chicago at the age of fifteen after completing a grade school education, as a messenger in the stockyards. His first knowledge of paint came when he was promoted to the purchasing department where one of his duties was to buy paint for refrigerator cars. Leaving this work, he organized a small company locally which is said to have been the first to manufacture railway paints exclusively. It was at this time that Mr. Martin originated the plan for standardizing the colors of paint on all of the equipment of a railroad which later came into common practice in industrial concerns as well. In 1888, Sherwin-Williams purchased the Calumet Paint Co. and in 1891 Mr. Martin was induced to leave his own company to take charge of the Sherwin-Williams Calumet plant and manage the Western District which was developed into one of the largest in the company. He held this position until 1905 when he was transferred to Cleveland in charge of the Auxiliaries Department which under his management came to include lead, zinc and copper mines, smelters, linseed oil plants, paper plants and tin can departments. In 1916 he became Vice President and General Manager of Manufacturing and that year, 1916, was made Vice President and General Manager of the entire business. His election to the presidency came in November, 1922. For years Mr. Martin has been noted as the most popular man in the organization. Mr. Martin is an outdoor man, early and especially retained as a reward for their good work. He writes verse as a pastime and trains from the various district and division points. All will make the Congress their headquarters.

The First Can of S. W. P.

Pictured here we have the first can of Sherwin-Williams "ready-mixed" or prepared paint and the man who made it. Philip Steyer is still on the job every day supervising the manufacture of S W P, undoubtedly the world's best known and most widely used house paint. In another year he will have completed fifty years of continuous service. He joined the Sherwin-Williams forces when the company turned out over 12,000,000 gallons of paint, a world's record.

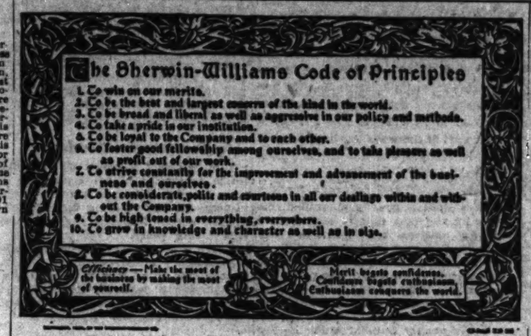
Walter H. Cottingham

Walter H. Cottingham, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Sherwin-Williams Co., was born in Ontario, Canada, in 1866. At the age of twenty-one he began manufacturing gold paint and other specialties in Montreal, having previously worked in a hardware store. Five years later he obtained the Canadian agency for the Sherwin-Williams Co. and later organized a paint and varnish company for the manufacture of Sherwin-Williams Products in Canada which was merged with the Sherwin-Williams Co. in 1897, at which time Mr. Cottingham was made a director of the company and manager of its Canadian business. The next year he was made General Manager of the entire company and transferred to Cleveland. In 1905 he was made Vice President and General Manager and succeeded Mr. Sherwin as President in 1909. Upon Mr. Sherwin's death Mr. Cottingham was made Chairman of the Board in addition to [illegible] both positions until November, 1922, when he resigned the presidency in order to devote more time to the English business. Without doubt, Mr. Cottingham is one of the outstanding figures in the paint and varnish industry.

John Burke, managing director of the Congress Hotel, who is acting as host to the hundreds of Sherwin-Williams delegates at their convention this week. Mr. Burke has made unusually elaborate preparations for this meeting which is one of the largest in the history of the Congress.

H. J. DOUGLAS

H. J. Douglas, Assistant Secretary and Comptroller of the Sherwin-Williams Co., was born in New York state. After graduating from high school and business college he took a private course in higher accounting before the subject had been introduced into any of the colleges and universities. In 1903 he came to the Sherwin-Williams Co. as general auditor and organized the General Accounting Department. In 1917 he was made Comptroller and a year ago Assistant Secretary. When not busy with figures, Mr. Douglas spends his time on his model farm near Willoughby, Ohio, or with his books in his private library.



Sherwin-Williams Household Guide an Unusual Service to the Consumer and a Great Step Forward in the Merchandising of Paint

On September 15th of this year the Sherwin-Williams Company announced the Household Guide which is said to be the greatest step forward in the merchandising of paint in [illegible] years.

Briefly, this is the idea of the Household Guide. It shows in handy chart form what to use to paint, varnish, stain or enamel the more common surfaces and articles around the home.

This does much to simplify the buying of paint by the ordinary consumer. No longer does he have to seek a paint expert to find out what about to use to paint the kitchen floor or to enamel the bathroom. The Guide serves as his expert for it gives him the same authoritative recommendations of Sherwin-Williams' technical men who are constantly studying the problems of surface protection and decoration. The man who has made a purchase with the aid of the Household Guide, finds it is like having an expert at his elbow for a neighbor whom you can consult at any time."

Much of the grief coming from unsatisfactory paint jobs is caused by using paint of the wrong product. For instance, a paint that might be ideally suited for outside work would be entirely unsatisfactory for inside. Because it would not dry properly or a varnish made particularly for decorative purposes as used on floors would not stand up on the floor where hard wear comes from walking. Yet persons unfamiliar with paint or varnish are likely to think of paint as paint or varnish as varnish and easily make mistakes of the nature outlined above. Of course, the sales person ought to make the correct recommendation. However, paint is usually sold in stores where numerous other things are handled and often by inexperienced clerks so that the customer is not always safeguarded from this source. Then, too, customers often merely ask for a quart of "green paint" and the clerk rather than to offend them by asking for more data to be used gets down the nearest can of green paint from the shelf with the result that the customer may get green house paint when he really wants green enamel for his porch chairs.

Such mistakes are eliminated by the Household Guide for it enables the customer to come into the store and ask for by name whatever he may need for the work in mind.

And the clerk will know about it, for he, too, has a Household Guide—in fact one for the window, one for the counter and one for the wall. The wall Guide is particularly helpful for the dealer and clerk because it illustrates by means of recommendations for the various surfaces and articles it has an indexed pad attached which tells how much paint, varnish, stain or enamel it costs and what other materials such as sandpaper, brushes, undercoaters and the like will be necessary. Numerous other features prevents the exasperation occasioned by getting all ready for some painting and then finding the job will run out all of the tools and materials on hand.

That the idea is sound and that there was a real need for it is shown by the hundreds of letters and commendations showing the Household Guide which have appeared in some of the leading trade papers and farm magazines this fall. Time after time dealers have reported that people have come in with Household Guides clipped from these magazines and made their purchases. A personal investigation made before the campaign was launched showed the same thing and evoked remarks such as these: "Just what I have been looking for"; "Funny nobody thought of it before."

Although the idea is only a few months old it has already gained great impetus and is going stronger every day simply because it gives the public something it wants. It's not merely advertising but an honest-to-goodness service of an authoritative sort.

In the Spring the Household Guide will be advertised to the public in The Tribune and forty-two other metropolitan newspapers in addition to the magazines and farm papers mentioned previously the message being directed to twenty million families.

PAINTOLOGY

By N. M. Collart
Decorative Expert for the Sherwin-Williams Co.

The other day a most interesting battle was staged by the General Electric Company. A giant steam locomotive, the most powerful ever built by man, was pitted against the latest word in electric locomotives. It was a thrilling test of brute strength, a tug of war that would have delighted any red-blooded man. No quarter was asked or given. The electric titan dragged his opponent back, at will, under full power, every point spitting steam, every drive wheel throbbing with power capable of moving the world's longest freight train. The last word of yesterday's engineering science surrendered to the latest word of today's achievement!

This battle is being fought out along every line of science, a merciless uprooting of the weak and the triumphant survival of the fittest. And do not think that paint and varnish are the only products which go through this process without the same ruthless test having been applied.

The longer do you buy a can of paint and expect to use it for everything from the wash tub to the silo, as grandfather did (by the way, did you ever see grandfather paint? No one paint can be best suited for protecting your house from wind and weather and at the same time for the floors, linoleum and interior woodwork trim, the baby's toys, etc. There comes to mind an actual conversation which took place several years ago between two mill hands, both of whom had been making fairly good wages during war-time production, and one of whom had invested in a piano. "How's the new pyanole, Sandy?" asked M. H. No. 1. "Dunno, yet," replies Sandy. "Whadda ya mean?" counters No. 1. "Paint ain't dry yet—gave 'er a coat of stove-pipe paint last night when they brought 'er in!" Our salesman was called in later to explain to Sandy why his "pyanole" didn't look up "the way she orter." Now, while the preceding did actually occur, the rank and file of us have a very definite understanding that paint is NOT just any old thing that is applied with a brush.)

"A place for everything and everything in its place," is a splendid motto for painters to live by, simply this: use the right finish for each surface, according to the kind of wear the surface will get.

But in one's zeal to select the most durable paint product to use, one should not overlook the effect of color, itself. It may be all right for your future father-in-law to wear brass plugs in the toes of his shoes—it would save them from wearing out—that way, but the very sight of those armored boots might be the keeping away of many a desirable "customer"! Just so, you will consider colors for painting the house; dark, heavy colors may recommend themselves as exceedingly durable, not showing the dirt, and all that, but you might be painting yourself a jail or a morgue or ruining completely whatever sales value the house might possess. Then again:

Your friends may all urge the practical value of natural-color woodwork and floors—don't show the dirt, scratches, bruises, etc., but after following all this good advice, when you discover that your new walnut and the mahogany furniture look like orphans in such a setting, you realize there's something wrong somewhere.

Fortunately, such a situation is not past mending. The first thing to do when you're up against such a problem is just to forget to worry about it. Turn the entire matter over to the Sherwin-Williams Department of Decoration, 601 Canal Road, Cleveland, Ohio, for them to work out, just as you call in the family doctor and turn over all the aches and pains for him to diagnose. The possibility of this comparison is not just the best one to make, because the Decorative Studio never gives you a bitter pill, but you probably get the idea we have in mind: just as your doctor directs you for your own personal welfare, so the Decorative Studio relieves you of every detail of your painting problems. This service is offered with absolutely no obligation whatever.

Probably it will interest every reader to know just what this famous Decorative Service of the Sherwin-Williams Company consists of. First of all, there is a staff of decorators who give each individual request their personal attention. If you have woodwork, furniture or floors to refinish, for example, booklets are sent you covering color and every phase of the work and the decorator writes you a letter explaining every unusual feature. Many a request comes in which can be adequately answered only by our lady decorators, while other purely painter problems call for the intimate "brush knowledge" such as the other decorators have gained through actual experience on the job. Then, again, there are those of the variety, extent and scope of these inquiries, received every day, simply amazing.

A prize winning, long-time plan we have for the decorating of the walls and ceilings along with a complete scheme for finishing the woodwork and floors, naturally, is but one way in which the inexperienced person can tell whether he is going to like a certain method of finishing or decorating, and that is to see some of it somewhere. To send you a prettily colored watercolor sketch of a room would be more of an aggravation than a help. True, such a sketch would probably give you ideas, very much as you get ideas from the illustrations in your favorite paper.

You would be perfectly justified in saying, this is all very pretty, but where, oh, where, can I get a painter capable of recreating this pretty picture, what paints should he employ and how? This problem was tackled years ago, by the Decorative Studio and was solved in the only satisfactory way possible.

The sketches sent you, prepared in the Decorative Studio, are not done in water color, but in oil for the paint you intend to use, the same actual paints and colors you will purchase from the store when you come to do the painting yourself. In many instances, a pretty bedroom wall. The working schedule tells you that the paint to be used is Sherwin-Williams Flat-Tone Cream. Well, some of this same Flat-Tone Cream was used in painting the sketch we send you. In addition, the sketch will show the color of your woodwork, arranged in exactly the same manner as you tell us it is in the room to be decorated. If the woodwork is to be finished, or refinished, the working schedule will tell you what stains, fillers and varnishes or enamels to use and how to go about each and every operation. Thus you will be able to tell your painter how you want the work done, from start to finish. This will save you money and insure satisfactory results.

Just how can the Sherwin-Williams Company afford to do all this for the man who buys their paints, you ask. To tell the truth, the company doesn't see how it could possibly afford NOT to give you this service. The chances are that every time you see a beautiful job of hand painted wall decorating you give a sigh and say to yourself, "That decorating must have cost Mrs. Russell's mint of money. I really envy her."

Mrs. Russell's decorating probably didn't cost her any more than any job of good wall-papering and when figured out by the year over the long time her walls will still be looking rich and beautiful, after the wall paper would have been faded, soiled and probably replaced, her painted walls were probably the best investment Mrs. Russell ever made in her beautiful, cozy home. This wonderful Decorative Service that the Sherwin-Williams Company can show you and all your friends how beautiful your home can be made, how you can secure that desired finish for your woodwork and floors, how correctly finishes are done so that it will be PERMANENTLY beautiful and not be a matter of continual expense to you, incorrectly finished floors will be, for example.

In the great battle for survival in the paint world, every product possessing the greatest degree of resourcefulness, backed by his brute strength, which survives. But when you go away from the sense practical over into the realm of civilized progress it is the person or the organization which offers the greatest service that survives and finds a steady demand for its wares. This is the secret of whatever success the Sherwin-Williams Company has enjoyed.

A Brief Outline of Paint and Varnish History

By W. R. Sieplein

The use of paint and varnish as a protective coating has come down to us from remote antiquity, even Noah "pitched the Ark with, in and without with pitch." In the book of Jeremiah appears, "Woe unto him that sayest, I will build me a wide house—ceiled with cedar and painted with vermilion." The use of paint for decoration began quite as early. For the walls of Babylon were covered with pictures representing hunting scenes and battles, and crude pictures have been found in caves inhabited by prehistoric men.

Many beautifully painted things were found in the tomb of King Tutankhamen, where they had lain undisturbed for 3,300 years, and in the British Museum are many mummies elaborately decorated. The oldest of these is that of Menkara, who lived about 4,000 years B. C. These references seem to establish the use of paint at least 4,000 years before the coming of Christ.

The art of painting developed much more slowly than did sculpture, probably due to the crude nature of the materials available; rather than to the skill of the artist. Greek sculpture had attained a high state of development as early as four or five centuries B. C., but the art of painting was not fully developed until the remarkable work of the Italian masters in the fifteenth century.

The paint pigments used by the ancients were probably all minerals, natural earth colors and organic dyes from plants. The earliest material about which we have definite information is White Lead, which was referred to by Theophrastus about 350 years B. C. as "cerussa," a native mineral carbonate of lead found in small quantities in Europe. He also described White Lead as prepared from lead and vinegar incorporated to dryness. Pliny, who lived A. D. 23 to 79, also mentions this. It is not known when the white lead of today was first made or to what country it owes its birth, but tradition assigns the method to the Dutch and to a man named Stratton. It must be over 300 years old, however, as a patent for a method like the Old Dutch process now in general use was granted to Englishmen in 1622.

Zinc White was first suggested by Curtois of Dijon, France, in 1782, but it was not until 1845 that Leclaire first found a method to use it for oil paints.

Blue, in one shape or another, followed the discovery of Petroleum in the United States when Col. Drake sunk his first oil well in Titusville, Pa., in 1859.

The first varnish gum used was Amber, and there was little else until the daring Portuguese navigators, at the close of the fifteenth century, brought home other gums from Africa and Zanzibar and following Capt. Cook's discovery of New Zealand in 1769, from which Kauri Gum was brought to England.

Shellac had been known to the natives in India for several thousand years and used as varnish gum for some centuries.

Up to the time the Sherwin-Williams Company entered the industry in 1866 progress in the manufacture of paints and varnishes had been slow, but with the revival of business after the Civil War came much development in the industry. In 1866 D. R. Averill invented a liquid paint which did not settle in the package, but he unfortunately mixed a liberal proportion of adulteration with the lead, zinc and linseed oil used and thus did not produce a paint of good quality. Although he had made a great discovery, but he was destined to disappointment, as he failed to make a paint as good as he might have done. He had many imitators who followed him closely, and thus there came to be a very well founded prejudice against prepared paint, but the way had been opened to a long felt want and gradually the older and larger manufactures began to turn their attention to making a liquid paint of reputable quality. The Sherwin-Williams Company in 1880 put their "Sherwin-Williams Paint on the market as the best liquid paint it was possible to produce. This claim has had abundant proof for nearly a half century and today Sherwin-Williams Paint Prepared is the best known and most generally distributed of any in the world.

Water colors first used as the vehicle for colored paints. Later this was mixed with animal fat or oil to lessen the inconvenience of heating the wax. For interior decoration, a size made with fish glue, vegetable gums or the white of yolk of egg were the favorite mediums used. The earliest mention of a drying oil as a paint vehicle is by Aetius, a Greek physician, at the beginning of the sixth century. This may have been Linseed Oil. In the library at Lucca is a manuscript of the fifth or ninth century giving a recipe for transparent varnish composed of linseed oil and varnish gum, probably amber. Oil paints had not been definitely established as a factor in A. D. 1100, though in an unsatisfactory form. In fact, the art of painting was very crude until the fifteenth or sixteenth century, when it underwent a transition from ancient to modern art.

China Wood Oil or Tung Oil, employed by the Chinese for centuries for finishing their junks and for lacquers, was introduced into the manufacture of varnishes only about 25 years ago.

Many other oils have been used, but during all these centuries Linseed Oil has been by far the chief oil for the paint industry.

Turpentine from European pine trees dates back for many centuries, but the American Turpentine we now know today was first developed by the early settlers in the southern states about 300 years ago.

MOTORDOM

Florida Boosters Pour $60,000,000 Along Auto Paths

Improvements Flung Over Main Roads in All Counties.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—[Special Correspondence.]—Florida is spending $60,000,000 in the state's greatest road improvement program, affecting practically all of the sixty-three counties. More than half that enormous amount was voted by the various counties since the first of the year. In addition to the road bonds passed by the electorate, other millions are being expended by developers who are opening up new estate sites throughout Florida and particularly on the west coast.

Activity at this time is centered on the main arteries leading to winter resorts in the state, over which roads thousands of motor cars will travel during the season.

The improvement program came about after two years of concentrated effort on the part of motor clubs and civic bodies in the state. They got solidly behind every bond election and were successful in having most of the issues passed by substantial majorities

In Pinellas county, where St. Petersburg is located, close to $5,000,000 is being spent in the establishment of new highways and in repaving and widening the old roads. Of that sum, $3,000,000 was voted for by the citizens of the county, while the remainder is being spent by developers. Pasadena, on the gulf, a restricted suburb of St. Petersburg, recently established, is spending $800,000 for new brick roads and stone pavement. Besides the extensive road improvements, the county and state are completing two new concrete bridges totaling $750,000 in cost.

Another bridge engineering feat, which, when completed, will be the longest of its kind in the world, is the Gandy causeway, costing $2,500,000 spanning Tampa bay, connecting this city with Tampa. This project will be completed late in the spring of 1924.

Roy D. Dew, president of the St. Petersburg Motor club, who has just returned to the "Sunshine City" from a survey of road conditions throughout Florida, maintains that the state had by Nov. 15 completed more mileage of hard surfaced roads than any other southern state, and more than any other state in the union with a similar population, even though the improvement program has just started.

LONDON STRAPHANGERS BOOST MOTOR BUS AT EXPENSE OF SUBWAY

MORE than 4,000 motor busses will be operated on the streets of London soon, as 3,500 busses are now running and more are being added at the rate of fifty a week, according to a survey recently made by the London representative of bus transportation.

During the first eight months of 1923 London busses carried 724,500,000 persons. This was an increase of 125,000,000, or 21 per cent, over the fares paid during the corresponding period last year. The underground railways, on the other hand, suffered a decrease of 15,000 000 passengers, carrying only 187,000,000 from January to August, 1923. One hundred and fifty-five routes are operated by the bus company, thirty-four of which do not make expenses, but are run at a loss for the convenience of Londoners.

Not "Pleasure Cars."

The state of New York officially recognizes automobiles as a necessity and not as a luxury. The state tax commission has changed its 1924 application blank for registering privately owned cars so that "pleasure car" now reads "passenger car." Also "manufacturer's year" is now used instead of "year of manufacture."

THANK YOU!

In the last fifteen years the United States has spent between $15,000,000,000 and $20,000,000,000 for passenger automobiles and trucks. More than $6,000,000,000 has been expended for improved roads.

Old Timers Clear Decks in Gotham for Greatest Show

PLANS are proceeding with dispatch in the huge task of preparing for the twenty-fourth annual national automobile show. With a lifetime of experience back of him in the conduct of such expositions, Manager S. A. Miles has all the machinery working smoothly in arranging the preliminaries for the big display of Jan. 5 to 12 in New York, and already a large part of the work has been finished and is ready for use when the time comes.

The task of getting ready for the show of 1924 is greatly magnified this year by the fact that it will be held in an entirely new location. The change, though it will add greatly to the comfort of the public in reaching and seeing the display, brings to the fore a host of major and minor responsibilities, most of them having to do with getting the motor car enthusiasts thoroughly familiar with the lay of the land.

The 258th Field Artillery armory, in which the show will be held, is situated on Kingsbridge road at Jerome avenue. It offers not only the largest unobstructed area of any building in the world for the display of automobiles, but it can be reached with as little or less difficulty by subway and elevated passengers as the former location.

Thirty minutes' ride from the hotel district downtown brings the subway passenger to the armory. No walking is involved, a feature that will be appreciated if January presents its usual weather.

Realizing that one of the biggest tasks of all will be to take care of the parking of motor cars during the week of the show, Mr. Miles is having a large tract of land at one end of the armory leveled off. This work, which will be finished in the next two weeks, will afford parking space for 3,000 cars at one time. A corps of attendants will be in charge of this space.

No Special Session.

Gov. Hyde of Missouri will not call an extra session of the legislature to pass some measure to provide more revenue for the speeding up and completion of the Missouri highway system in four years.

There is no emergency existing making necessary an extraordinary session, on the ground of lack of road funds, the governor declared, and asserted without reservations that he "will not call an extra session."

YES, MA'AM!

"Why didn't you stop? I held out my hand," said the young lady, whose fender had been smashed.

"Sorry, I didn't see your hand," replied the offending young man.

"Hm! I suppose I should have held out my foot!"

Gland Operation Tried on Chickens by Noted Surgeon

Experiments May Be of Great Value to Poultry Breeders.

By Frank Ridgway.

GLAND transplantation experiments in which chickens have been used by surgeons searching for basic facts to aid them in human therapeutics have opened a new line of investigation for poultry breeders. Investigations disclosing facts concerning innate peculiarities and powers of ductless glands in chickens have been made primarily to increase the egg and meat production. Knowledge of the properties of these organs may solve some of the problems in the field of human surgery. Further discoveries may lead to means of developing a more intelligent system of culling flocks. This might revolutionize the whole poultry industry and put production of layers and meat fowl on a more practical and scientific basis.

Experiments by Dr. Lespinasse.

Dr. Victor D. Lespinasse, a Chicago surgeon, has experimented with hundreds of chickens and ferreted out many interesting and far reaching facts about the relation of the ductless glands in chickens and the development of secondary sex characteristics.

His experiments so far indicate some startling things. They have developed many questions that might possibly be answered later by the scientific investigator in poultry husbandry.

One of the discoveries of practical importance to flock owners is that there is a direct and striking relation between the size of the gonads and the development of the comb, wattles, head, hackle, and tail feathers. This was shown when Dr. Lespinasse caponized six birds.

"When I removed the glands and compared them with the birds I found that the size of the head and the comb, the wattles, and other parts of the body varied with the size of the organs," said Dr. Lespinasse. "The birds with large gonads were much more vigorous than those with small ones. Here is a practical thing that poultrymen can use in culling their flocks. In selecting cockerels for the breeding pens they should pick out the birds with large heads, well developed combs and wattles, and hackle and sickle feathers, because this indicates that they have well developed gonads, which means an energetic and vigorous male that can transmit desirable characteristics and give maximum fertility."

Feed Influences Organs.

This opens up still another field of investigation. Dr. Lespinasse says that the development of these organs can be greatly influenced by the kind of feed given the birds. He has found that feeds rich in vitamine A, such as hard boiled eggs, butter and codliver oil, have a tendency to develop the glands, which in turn means stronger birds and better chicks.

"I have also found in my experiments that the gonads are more highly developed and are larger in the cockerels hatched early in the spring, February, March, and April, than in those hatched later in the season," Dr. Lespinasse said. "This is perhaps due to the fact that the early hatched birds have access to tender green grass and other young growing feeds rich in vitamines. For this reason the early hatched chickens are the best to save for breeders."

While Dr. Lespinasse has not attempted to make definite conclusions for the poultryman, he has at least shown that a more careful study of the relation of the glands, including not only the gonads but the other ductless glands—thyroid, pituitary, adrenal—would no doubt result in a better understanding of the relative productive ability of birds.

Six of the glands taken from experimental birds were grafted in a normal pullet which has since developed the characteristics of a rooster, including a large head, comb, wattles, hackle, sickle feathers on the front of the tail, a curved tail, and spurs. This female, transformed into a roster, has been on exhibit all week at the Coliseum Poultry show.

Another interesting experiment performed by Dr. Lespinasse was the grafting of an ovary in a hen. "Hens normally have only one ovary," he explained, "and that is on the left side. I have been successful in grafting an ovary on the right side, and the hen continues to lay. She is a 'scrub' and I have not carried the experiment far enough to determine what effect the extra ovary has had on production. I was only interested in making the graft. I would not attempt to say whether this would increase laying. If a hen can lay 300 eggs in a single year with only one ovary, how many eggs could she lay with two? That question has never been answered."

In this series of experiments he has been able to transfer an ovary from a hen to a cockerel.

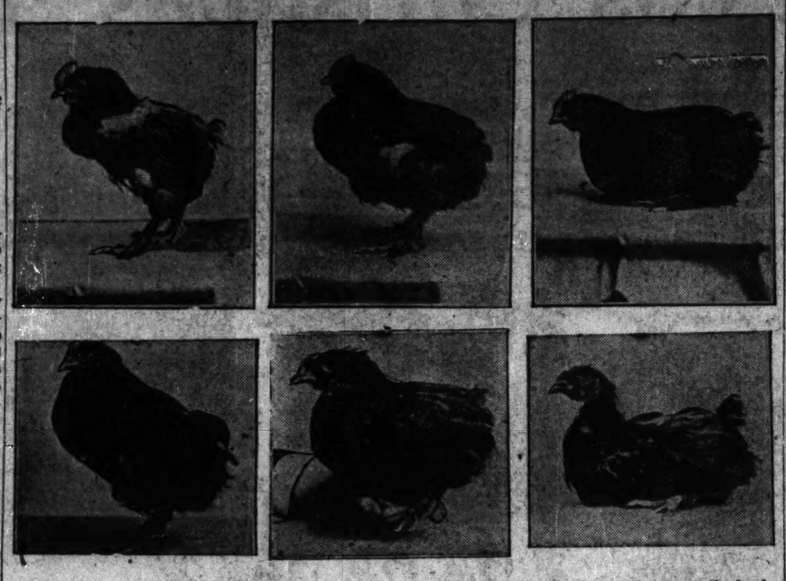
Operation Makes Cock a Battler.

Dr. Lespinasse in one of his novelty experiments transformed a fighting cock into a belligerent "Jack Dempsey" by taking a piece of gonad from an aggressive, high spirited game bird, and transplanting it into one that was less energetic when pitted against an opponent. The rejuvenated bird operated on last spring is now king of the poultry yard in the experimental flock.

Reversing the order of conducting the experiment carried out with the six chickens that were caponized, Dr. Lespinasse used three birds, all the same age, leaving one of them normal and operating on the other two. Practically all of the two gonads were removed from the second bird, leaving only one-eighth of the glands. The third bird was caponized in the ordinary way, removing both gonads. The size of these chickens and the development of their heads, combs, and wattles varied with the amount of glands left in the body. There is a marked difference in the size of their bodies. The normal bird has the smallest body, the one with a part of the gland left comes next, and the capon is the largest one of the three. The reverse is true with the heads, decreasing in size from the normal bird, which has the largest head, comb, and wattles, down to the capon, ranking at the bottom of the list.

The practical lesson in this, from the breeders' standpoint, is to select the male with the greatest development of comb, wattles and the one that has the most energy and the lustiest crow.

LANGSHANS USED IN FAMOUS EXPERIMENT



SURGEON DISCOVERS RELATION BETWEEN GLANDS AND SECONDARY SEX CHARACTERISTICS.—When Dr. Victor D. Lespinasse, Chicago surgeon and authority on gland transplantation, caponized these six Black Langshan cockerels, 2 months old, he found that the development of gonads varied with the size of the head and other features. The glands decreased in size, just as the size of the head and the development of the comb, wattles, and other cockerel characteristics vary, as is shown in the picture. Note the gradual decrease in the size of the head, comb, and wattles, beginning with bird No. 1, upper left, which had the largest gonads, down to No. 6, lower right, with the smallest.

Illinois Prepares for 1924 Cattle Cleanup Campaign

GREATER protection against bovine tuberculosis is assured the city of Chicago by the action taken a few days ago by the executive committee of the Illinois Agricultural association, which has farm bureau organizations in practically every county in the state.

A vigorous, active campaign has now been launched by the association to aid federal and state authorities in enforcing eradication laws, and the committee recommends the appropriation of $7,000 to be used in the 1924 cleanup work.

M. H. Peterson, formerly field secretary of the Lake County Holstein-Freisian association, is in charge of the campaign. The following ten counties are offering a reward under the coöperative plan between the state and county farm bureaus: Iroquois, De Kalb, McHenry, Rock Island, Will, Jo Daviess, Du Page, Crawford, Boone, and Whiteside. They will pay $100 for the first arrest and conviction of a bootlegger of tubercular cattle within the county.

Preparing Accredited List.

A list of areas where tubercular free cattle may be bought is being prepared by the association. Reliable selling agencies and accredited veterinarians will also be listed and turned over to farm advisers.

Through a uniform method of attack, coördinating the forces and efforts of all counties and agencies, an educational program will be worked out, giving the facts about the true situation regarding this plague as it affects both city and country.

The association's plan is to coöperate with authorities who have charge of eradication work medical associations, chambers of commerce, women's clubs, bankers' associations, milk dealers and railroads because the problem concerns every group.

Delay in Appointing Veterinarian.

Cook county dairymen have been seriously handicapped in getting their herds cleaned up in order to place them on the state farm bureau's list of accredited areas. Delay in the appointment of a county veterinarian is delaying the work.

Because of this dairymen fail to get their full share of the state and federal indemnity. They are anxious to have their herds put under supervision, and stand their part of the loss. Cook county's commissioners appropriated $1,500 last summer to hire a veterinarian, but their plan did not harmonize with the state-federal plan. Board members claim they could make an appropriation only for the current year, which ended Nov. 30, and the coöperative plan calls for the employment of a veterinarian for not less than a full calendar year.

TAX BUYER PAYS $15 TO CLOUD 100,000 TITLES

Torrens Examiner Tells How It's Done.

BY AL CHASE.

America's "best known and smartest" tax buyer has clouded the title to probably more than one hundred thousand pieces of property in Cook county at a total cost of not more than $15, J. Scott Matthews, chief examiner of titles for this county, stated yesterday. Preliminary to explaining how this well known tax buyer operates Mr. Matthews told something about the process of tax buying and what it means to the community and individual property owner.

J. SCOTT MATTHEWS.

"If all property owners in Cook county realized what it means to allow their taxes to become delinquent and their real property to go to tax sale," said Mr. Matthews, "there'd not have been 34,216 tax sales during the last year. For that realization would have meant a knowledge, not only of the penalties provided by law but also of the penalties added thereto by the legal ingenuity of the tax buyers.

Form a Powerful Element.

"It is needless to say that the orderly process of government is absolutely dependent upon the proper collection of taxes. With some individuals it would be impossible to collect if there were not a penalty attached. As the government can't afford to wait forever for its taxes, the tax buyers have formed and do form a powerful element in governmental affairs.

"Here in Cook county the business of buying property at tax sales has been in the hands of comparatively few men. The power of those men may be judged from the fact that when the legislature in 1919 attempted to reduce the penalty which the tax buyer collected to 6 per cent, it was quickly found that it takes money to run the government, and that, however much we may berate them, the tax buyers really are performing a public service which can't be dispensed with. The tax buyers promptly went on strike and the legislature was forced in 1921 to raise the possible penalty from 6 to 12 per cent.

48 Per Cent Penalty.

"Under the law this penalty may in fact be increased to 48 per cent. The property owner has two years from the date of sale to redeem, but the maximum penalty of 12 per cent only applies for the first six months. For the second six months the penalty is doubled, for the third six months trebled, and for the last six months of the period of redemption it is quadrupled, so that if property is bid in at the maximum penalty of 12 per cent during the last six months period of redemption given by law the penalty automatically increases to 48 per cent.

"But this is not in fact the only penalty which ignorance of the law or neglect in payment may bring about. If a property owner allows the two year redemption period allowed by law to go by without redeeming and a tax deed issues to the tax buyer he places it in the power of the tax buyer to enforce penalties which may be peculiarly the tax buyer's own.

"The minute that the tax buyer gets a tax deed to the property he may, and often does, deal with the title to the property at a minimum cost to himself and a maximum cost to the property owner.

"Best Known and Smartest."

"To illustrate what may happen: We have here in Cook county probably the best known and smartest tax buyer in the United States, represented by a lawyer who probably knows the tax laws of Illinois better than any other lawyer in this state. That tax buyer has a wife, two sons, two daughters, a son-in-law, a nephew, and a hired man. The family, together with the hired man, constitute what the tax buyer calls his 'company.'

"The residences of all of them are outside of Cook county, so that in a large number of cases it's necessary to send the summonses in a suit begun here in Cook county outside of Cook county for service. This, of course, increases the court costs where a property owner goes into court in order to set aside a tax deed in which the 'company' is interested.

Clouds 100,000 Pieces.

"By a system of transfers from one member of the 'company' to another or others, and of placing general trust deeds against tax interests held by members of the 'company,' it has been possible for the 'company' to further cloud the title to probably more than 100,000 pieces of property in Cook county at a total cost of not more than $15.

"This has been accomplished by placing of record during a period of twenty-one years last past fifteen general quitclaim deeds and six trust deeds affecting tax interests in Cook county held by members of the 'company.' The trust deeds in question purport to secure the payment of notes aggregating $290,000. Each of these quitclaim deeds and trust deeds is on the shortest possible form and the first twenty of the twenty-one documents were undoubtedly recorded for the former minimum fee of 65 cents for each document and the last document undoubtedly was recorded for the present minimum fee of $1.25.

"This would make a total cost of $14.25, and, allowing 75 cents additional for any possibility of any deeds having been charged a few cents more than the 65 cents minimum fee, would mean that the more than one hundred thousand pieces of property on which those deeds and trust deeds operated had their title clouded at a total cost of less than $15.

"These quitclaim deeds and trust deeds necessarily appear on every abstract affected by the tax deeds which form the basis for the quitclaim deeds and trust deeds. The cost of abstracting those deeds and trust deeds since 1902 has undoubtedly run up into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"The greatest penalty, however, to be paid by the property owner lies in the increased cost of litigation to have them removed as clouds on title. In the majority of cases practically all the members of the 'company' must be made defendants to any litigation. It is the usual practice to have each one of those defendants appear separately and to pay a separate appearance fee, thereby increasing the cost and trouble of litigation.

Reduced to a Science.

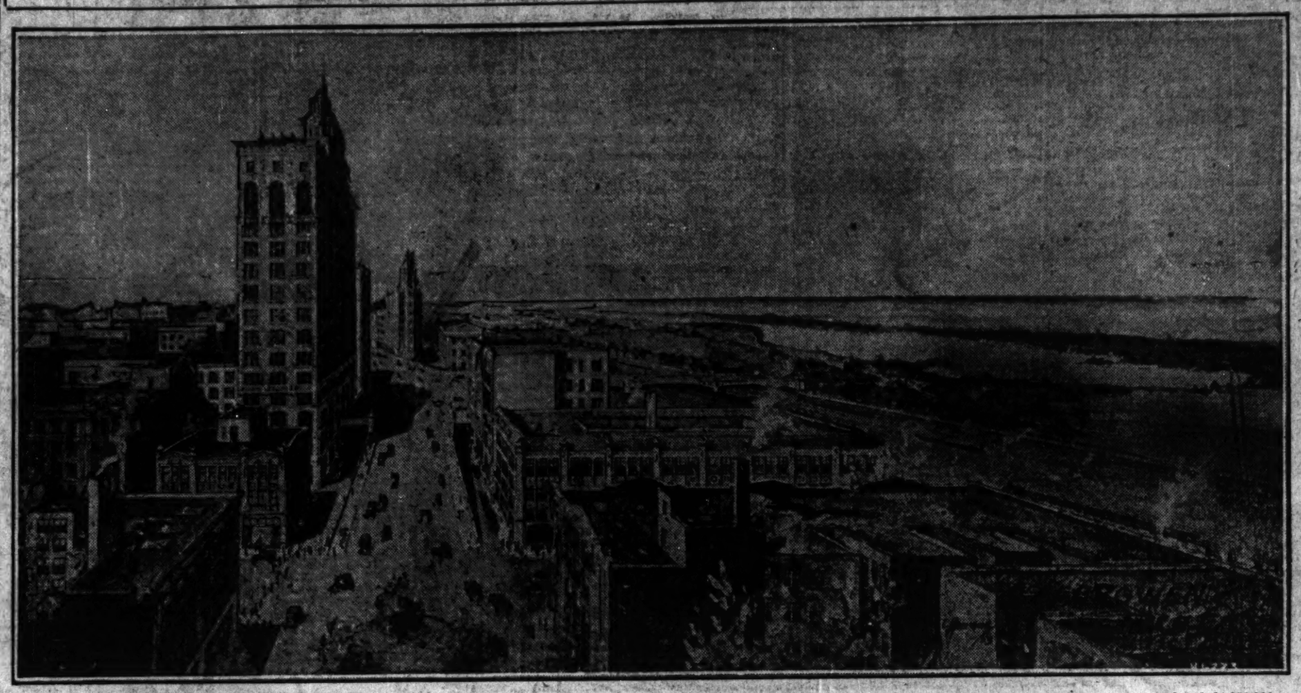
"What the cost and trouble of litigation would be the buyer has reduced to a science. Knowing the items of reimbursement which are allowed him by statute and which must be paid in any event, he adds thereto the probable costs of litigation, and makes that the basis for his estimate of giving a quitclaim deed and release deed from the 'company.'

"There are two usual methods of removing the foregoing deeds and trust deeds as clouds on the title. One is by a bill to remove cloud and the other is by an initial registration proceeding under the Torrens act. The vital difference between the two, which is bringing most of those cases into the Torrens system, is that in a bill to remove cloud the burden of proof is on the property owner to prove the invalidity of the tax deeds, while under the Torrens act the burden of proof is on the tax buyer to prove the validity of his tax deed.

Proof Shifting Important.

"This shifting of the burden of proof is a most important thing from the property owner's standpoint. The final reason for choosing the initial registration proceeding in preference to a bill to remove cloud on the title is that in an initial registration proceeding the outcome of the proceeding is a clean certificate of title, while in a bill to remove cloud on title the outcome may be only an abstract showing an excerpt of the proceedings on the legal effect of which lawyers may differ."

Birdseye View of Some South Central Improvements



Above is a view looking south on Grand boulevard, the new 128 foot parkway made out of the former narrow street known as South Park avenue, with the contemplated $1,250,000 Automotive club, designed by Architect Samuel N. Crowen, in the foreground. It overlooks the big plans to be formed by the intersection of Grand boulevard, 23d, the new diagonal street to 22d, and the viaduct over the I. C. tracks.

To the right of the club at the north end of the plans is an imaginary sketch of the contemplated skyscraper to be erected by the Continental Casualty company. The site of the proposed hotel is directly east of the club, also overlooking the plans. It has been suggested that the Fort Dearborn massacre monument at Calumet and 18th be moved to the center of the plaza and this space be known as Fort Dearborn plaza. More is told about these projects in a nearby column.

CELOTEX COMPANY TO QUIT LOOP FOR MICHIGAN AND ERIE

The Celotex company, makers of insulating lumber out of cane fiber, has leased for five years through the Bowes Realty company the Poole residence at the southeast corner of Upper Michigan avenue and Erie street, now occupied by Frank D. Chase, Inc., engineers and architects. The new tenant will move across the river from its present quarters in the Conway building around the first of the year.

It will use the old Poole residence for general offices and later will build a bungalow on the vacant south half of the property where Celotex will be exhibited.

Frank D. Chase, Inc., will move soon after Christmas two blocks farther north along Boul Mich and will occupy the entire ninth floor of the new Central Life building at Superior and Michigan. Mr. Chase was one of the pioneering architectural and engineering firms on Upper Michigan, having been at Erie and Michigan for nearly five years.

WORK TO START ON AUTOMOTIVE CLUB, $1,250,000

$1,000,000 Offer Made for Hotel Site.

Work is announced to start within thirty days on the $1,250,000 Automotive club, according to Architect Samuel N. Crowen. This structure, as announced last summer, is to overlook the Grand boulevard-23d street plaza. The 48x250 site was bought by Elmer Rich, president of the Simonds company, who is active in promoting the Automotive club. There are now approximately 400 members. The limit will be 1,000.

The new club will use all of the eighteen story building and will have 250 sleeping rooms in addition to a banquet hall on the top floor, a gymnasium, a tank, observation tower, etc.

The site at the southwest corner of 23d and Grand boulevard was acquired through the Bowes Realty company. This concern announces negotiations under way by a Chicago hotel firm for the site of the former McAvoy brewery, diagonally across the plaza. It is stated that $1,000,000 has been offered for the property.

If acquired, the hotel owners will erect a skyscraping hostelry and in addition use the air rights over the I. C. tracks for a garden, giving guests a view across the new shore park to the lake.

Mr. Crowen states the new Automotive club should be completed about Jan. 1, 1925.

$130,000 FOR HOMAN FLATS.

The twenty-four apartments at the southeast corner of Homan and Gladys have been sold by Seitz Morris to William C. Smith for a reported $110,000. Benjamin B. Morris was attorney.

FLOSSMOOR HAS TRIO OF LARGE ACREAGE SALES

Rapid Transit Plans Put Pep Into Suburb.

With the contemplated electrification of the Illinois Central suburban service getting closer and closer to an actuality, Flossmoor, sometimes called the "golf suburb" on account of the abundance of country clubs, has had a sudden spurt of activity in acreage deals.

Three big transactions were closed yesterday which it is expected will lead to considerable home building. In each of them the coming real rapid transit promised by the I. C. was said to have been an important factor in closing the deals.

Syndicate Buys 135 Acres.

The largest of the three was the purchase by a Chicago syndicate, composed of Newton B. Lauren, Francis Manierre and F. Hampden Wing, of the 115 acres north of the Flossmoor Country club and forty acres east of the club. The A. Hecht heirs were sellers.

The syndicate at once resold the 155 acres to the South Shore Land trust. John S. Phipps, Howard Phipps, and John A. Carroll, trustees, for a reported $115,000. The latest owners will have an attractive subdivision with winding roads, laid out by Hare, Frost, of Bennett, Parsons, Frost and Thomas, city planners.

Overlooks Two Clubs.

Contracts will be let as fast as possible for all necessary improvements. The property fronts south 1,040 feet along Flossmoor road, the northern boundary of the Flossmoor club. It faces east on the Dixie highway, overlooking Idlewild.

The syndicate will handle the sale of the forty acres stretched along the eastern boundary of the Flossmoor club grounds. There'll be twenty lots varying in size from one and one-half to two acres, fronting on a winding road to run north and south across the tract. The land is rolling and is traversed by the picturesque Butterfield creek.

Buy 2,100 Feet of Frontage.

Arthur H. Ryan and Robert J. Wells have bought from Bradford Wells and Mildred Wells Carton, his sister, 2,100 feet of frontage in various parts of Flossmoor along Brassie avenue, Bunker avenue, Lotte avenue, Western, Leavitt, Douglas, etc., for $35,000. Flossmoor, by the way, was laid out by the father of Bradford Wells, a strenuous type of golf fan for those days, which accounts for the unusual names of some of the Flossmoor streets. Some of the lots just bought look east over the Flossmoor golf grounds.

The same buyers also purchased a twelve acre tract on Tee street, extending along Sterling avenue, each front, and will lay out a subdivision with curved roads and lots from 50x150 to 100x150. E. C. Puhrmann was seller.

There are six golf clubs within walking distance of the Flossmoor station: Ravisloe, Calumet, Dixmoor, Flossmoor, Idlewild, and Olympia Fields.

Will Remodel Six Flats Into Business Building

Oscar Rubin has bought the six apartment steel construction building at 3717 Broadway, lot 50x150, from Edward Weiss, for a reported $40,000, subject to $13,300, and will remodel it into stores. Isador Ferguson & Co. represented both parties.

News of Architects

Word comes from Ann Arbor that practicing architects from Detroit, Toledo, Grand Rapids, etc., are attending the lectures by Eliel Saarinen, visiting professor of architectural design at the College of Architecture, University of Michigan. An informal dinner in reception was tendered Mr. Saarinen recently in the corridors of the College of Architecture. Mr. Saarinen will not return to Evanston until after the holidays.

Jacob Lewis has moved from 1118 Garrick building to larger quarters in suite 900, which he will occupy temporarily until larger permanent quarters can be obtained.

Some Leases

The Western Army Goods store has leased the double store at 24 South Wabash for five years from Jan. 1 to the Western Factories Fixture company, at a term rental of $35,000, through E. F. Koehler & Co., and will move to the Troost Theater building, 414 South State.

The Wabash Trunk and Bag company, now at 138 South Wabash, has leased the store and basement at 24 South Wabash, through Warren Cahn.

The Graff Motor Coach company has renewed its lease at 32d and Michigan, through Hefter, Wells & Bell, at $9,000 yearly.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

FLOSSMOOR HAS TRIO OF LARGE ACREAGE SALES

Rapid Transit Plans Put Pep Into Suburb.

With the contemplated electrification of the Illinois Central suburban service getting closer and closer to an actuality, Flossmoor, sometimes called the "golf suburb" on account of its abundance of country clubs, has had a sudden spurt of activity in acreage deals.

Three big transactions were closed yesterday which it is expected will lead to considerable home building. In all of them the coming real rapid transit promised by the I. C. was said to have been an important factor in closing the deals.

Syndicate Buys 155 Acres.

The largest of the three was the purchase by a Chicago syndicate, composed of Newton B. Lauren, Francis E. Manierre and F. Hampden Winston, of the 115 acres north of the Flossmoor Country club and forty acres east of the club. The A. Hecht heirs were sellers.

OAK PARK'S LARGEST FLAT BUILDING TO HAVE 111 SUITES

Work is now under way on what is claimed will be Oak Park's largest and finest apartment building—the Oak-Erie chateau. There'll be 111 apartments—fifteen with five rooms, ninety with four rooms, and six have three rooms and kitchenette.

Michael P. Morrissey, owner, has a site at the southeast corner of Oak Park avenue and Erie street, 212x203. This is just north of the Christian Science church.

The rooms will be good sized, with living rooms averaging 12x20 and dining rooms 12x17. The bedrooms will be 10x14. The lobbies will have large brick fireplaces. Completion date is set for May 1, 1924. H. O. Stone & Co. have made a $625,000 7 per cent bond issue. The architect is Roy F. France.

Brokers' Notes

Arthur W. Johnson, associated with Albert H. Wetten & Co. for many years, operating in central business property, has formed a partnership with Edward J. Sherlock and will conduct a general real estate business with offices in the Chicago Trust building, under the firm name of Johnson & Sherlock. Their phone is Dearborn 2358.

Sam Geltner, Max Geltner, Aaron Schneider, and Theodore D. Weiss announce having formed the firm of Geltner, Weiss & Geltner. General real estate offices have been opened at 5234 Lake Park avenue. The new firm's phone number is Midway 0695.

Hooker & Slosson, composed of John P. Hooker and Frank S. Slosson, will succeed to the business of John P. Hooker & Co. on Jan. 1. Merrill Humphrey, formerly with H. H. Harper & Co., now is with Hooker & Slosson, specializing in south central property.

Bolz & Southman, with general offices for several years at 61st and Calumet, have opened a south shore branch at the northeast corner of Stony Island and 71st. Leo A. Cotter, for the last four years with Frank H. Lang & Son, will be resident partner and manager.

John T. Axtoumis has moved his office from the second to the first floor at the southwest corner of Clark and Division.

Subdivision Notes

Alton N. Huttel, acting for a syndicate composed of himself, Solomon Kesner, Charles W. Gray and others, bought seventy acres on the north side of Dempster street, just west of the Northwestern, from the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee for an undisclosed seller. It is understood this was Insull property. The purchase price was $161,500, subject to $55,000.

W. W. Walters & Co., have bought 112 acres in North Elmhurst, bounded by Lake, West End and Larch, for a reported $75,000, and have opened it as a subdivision.

George M. Collins has bought fifty acres at the new Villa Park station of the Northwestern, between Ardmore and Villa avenues, for a reported $42,500, and is subdividing it. He also purchased forty acres near Elmhurst, west of Stratford Hills, north of the I. C. and south of the "Third Rail," for $30,000.

McJunkin & Sayre have bought from Edward G. Pauling the ten acres south of Kirk, between Florence and Dodge, Evanston, and have subdivided it for business and residential purposes.

Realty Items

CATHEDRAL CHIMES TO BE INSTALLED IN STRAUS TOWER

Four heavy bells, a counterpart of those in the Metropolitan tower in Gotham, will be hung at the base of the dome of the new Straus building. They will be 450 feet above the Boul Mich sidewalk. The Straus building will be 475 feet to the tip of the tower.

Cathedral chimes will sound "Cambridge Quarters" every fifteen minutes and in addition to playing this famous Handel melody the full hours will be sounded on the large bell. This latter will weigh three and a half tons. The other three will be graduated proportionately. They will be played by electricity.

Hyde Park Lot Sold Three Times This Year at Profit

Last February Ruth Reichmann and Mary Drucker bought the old one story studio building just west of the Windermere hotel, which it is understood netted the seller a good profit, for $29,000. The lot fronts sixty-eight feet on 56th street. They sold it to Isaac Cohen for $36,000 a short time later and now Mr. Cohen has resold it to Robert H. Langston for $38,500. The latest owner intends to remodel the premises. The O'Hern-Frear company handled all three deals.

Ridge Boulevard Flats in Evanston Sold: $224,000

Louis J. Carow of Michigan City, Ind., paid an indicated $224,000, subject to $164,000, to Sidney C. Edenberg for the thirty-six flats at 2747 Ridge, Evanston. John C. Bowers & Co. represented both parties.

CHANGE IN FARM CROPS HINGES ON READY MARKETS

BY SCRUTATOR.

The farmer has been advised to diversify. Some of this advice has come from sources which are urging a change in American tariff policies predicated on international finance—in other words, that American tariff policies should no longer be based primarily on the idea of securing advantages to American industries, but should aim to secure a world wide economic equilibrium. "Help Europe" is the main idea. It is a laudable object, and we have been helping Europe right along.

It ought not to be overlooked, however, that it is useless to advise the farmer to diversify unless he is going to have a market for the sort of crops that diversification implies.

Such markets can be made available to him only by the fullest industrial development of the United States. It is no accident that the one crop areas in this country are almost invariably found in those regions in which there is the least mining or manufacturing.

Diversification was preached to the southern farmer, white and black, for fifty years. The preaching was worth while. It accomplished much. But there was a reason for the slow progress made.

Let Richard Edmonds of Baltimore tell why: "Forty-two years ago the writer made a trip through some portions of the south. He had written a good many editorials for a commercial paper, urging diversified farming at a time when the central south was concentrating all of its agricultural work on cotton.

"But on that trip of personal study he found, for instance, in the valley of Virginia, that eggs were selling at 10 cents a dozen when they could be sold at all, and the best butter at 10 to 12 cents. In the little villages and towns through that rich valley were practically no industries whose employés were buyers of farm products . . . Even worse conditions existed in the cotton regions.

"The farmer could not diversify, and to some extent this is still true, because he has no adequate home market for his chickens and eggs and butter and fruits and vegetables.

In a study of this kind there came a full realization of the fact that in the industrial development of the south alone could there be found salvation for the farmers from the poverty due to lack of a market for diversified products.

"For every bale of cotton they raised a market could be had, even at an unprofitable price; but for hogs and cattle and sheep and fruits and vegetables they could find no local market. The farmers, therefore, had no stimulation whatever to change from cotton growing to diversified products."

This same thing has been true of every new agricultural land opened up by pioneers in all the continents. The reproaches leveled at the early settlers in this country for their "reckless mining of the soil" have failed to take into account that the only way they could get by was to produce as great a quantity of nonperishables as possible in the least time. Land can only be nursed profitably near great centers of population.

American farming can only prosper as American mines and factories multiply and as the means of transportation are improved to cut down distribution costs.

Refrigeration and rail improvements have immensely widened the market of the people Mr. Edmonds visited forty-two years ago, but higher distribution costs in recent years have shunted the pendulum backward a bit, too.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

Trading in the local unlisted securities market again embraced a wide range of stocks. Prices generally continued steady, with additional gains in a number of issues.

On a heavy turnover McCord Manufacturing common advanced from 3 to top sales at 4. Stock was offered at 3¾ at the close, however, with buyers at 3¾. Fairbanks Morse was also active, and the closing quotation of 53¼ bid, 53¾ asked, reflected a net gain of 1¼ points. Elgin National Watch sold at 47¼ and 48—up ¼ point. Channell Chemical "A" stock continued strong, the closing quotation of 68 bid, 71 asked, representing a gain of some 4 points.

The bid price for Chicago Railway Equipment moved up 1 point to 34, without bringing out actual offerings. Bucyrus common on a light volume of trade gained an additional point at 45¾ bid, 46½ asked. National Grocer common showed fractional improvement at 7⅞ bid, 8 asked. The preferred, carrying the January 1 semi-annual dividend of $3, was wanted at 86, with little interest on the selling side.

A sudden demand for Motor Products carried this issue from 165 to a close of 174 bid, 177 asked. Ford of Canada moved up 2 points to 396 bid, 400 asked. Paige-Detroit was erratic, advancing 1 point to 23, then reacting to a close of 21¼ bid, 22 asked. Rickenbacker Motors again sold at 8¾ and 9. Timken Axle relinquished ¾ at 6¾ bid, 7 asked, while Motor Wheel gained ¼ at 10¼ bid, 10½ asked. Federal Truck was weak and some 2 points lower at 23 bid, 23½ asked.

Bids of 15 for Standard Cap and Seal again failed to attract possible sellers. Butler Brothers, while fairly active, was again confined to sales between 34½ and 34¾. Kellogg Company was off 1 point at 23 bid, 24 asked. Burroughs Adding Machine was 1 point lower at 124 bid, 127 asked. Fractional improvement was noted in Beatrice Creamery at 61 bid, 62½ asked. By-products was under pressure, breaking some 2 points to 41 bid, 42½ asked. Northwestern Yeast was without change at 193 bid, 195 asked.

The sugar shares were erratic and generally lower. Godchaux preferred broke some 10 points, stock being offered at 50, with little interest on the selling side. Sales of Columbia ranged between 6¾ and 7. Holland-St. Louis was quoted 4⅞ bid, 5¼ asked, with little stock changing hands. Some few trades of Michigan Sugar were reported at 5¼ and 5¾. Utah-Idaho was neglected at 3½ to 3⅝.

While the public utility shares were quiet, moderate gains were general throughout the list. American Light and Traction common sold off 3 points to 114, but advanced sharply in the late trading to 119 bid, 121 asked. Illinois Traction moved up an additional 6 points to 63½, closing at 62½ bid, 63¾ asked. Illinois Power and Light, ex-dividend, 1¾ points, was also 1 point improved at 85⅝ bid, 86⅜ asked. Northern Ohio Electric preferred was in good demand, climbing from 17 to a close of 20½ bid, 21 asked. The common scored an upturn of 1½ points at 6½ bid, 7½ asked. Commonwealth Power Railway and Light common was strong, closing at 36¾ bid, 37¼ asked—up 1¾ points. Commonwealth Power Corporation preferred was also ¾ point improved at 70 bid, 71 asked.

Further advances were made in a number of bank stocks. National City was up an additional 10 points, selling at 190, on the announcement that this institution would shortly merge with the National Bank of the Republic. This gain was partially relinquished, however, closing at 182 bid, 186 asked. National Bank of the Republic gained some 6 points—bids of 209 failing to bring out definite offerings. Continental and Commercial National was some 5 points higher at 305 bid, 310 asked. Northern Trust was wanted at 360, with little interest on the selling side.

PRODUCE MARKETS

A good business was on in all lines of produce, with supplies ample and prices unchanged throughout the greater part of the list. Dressed poultry moved better. Potatoes were held at former prices, with arrivals 50 cars and 107 cars were on track.

RAILROAD NOTES

Freight traffic on lines operating east from Chicago and St. Louis has been maintained at a big volume, although not quite so heavy as in November in some instances. Compared to a year ago, the present volume of business shows up well and in most instances there were decided increases. The movement of cotton in the south is of fair proportions, and there has also been a good run of general merchandise reported by officials of the southern lines.

The Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railway, Henry Ford's railroad, has asked the interstate commerce commission for permission to construct forty-three miles of road between Wansseon, O., and Dearborn, Mich. The carriers also sought authority to issue $5,000,000 5 per cent first mortgage bonds to be sold to Mr. Ford for construction, the cost of which was placed at $4,000,000.

The New York Central has applied to issue $31,510,620 capital stock, the proceeds to be used in construction and extension of its facilities. The Monongahela railroad asked authority to issue $2,650,000 of first and refunding mortgage bonds to be pledged as collateral with the director general of railroads for certain notes amounting to $1,900,000. The Lake Superior and Ishpeming railroad asked authority to issue $1,428,000 of capital stock, which will be used in exchange for stock of other companies.

During the first ten months this year the railroads handled the greatest freight traffic in their history, according to the bureau of railway economics. Traffic amounted to 386,027,846,000 net ton miles, an increase of 21.5 per cent over the same period in 1920, the previous high mark. The total for the 1923 period was an increase of 84,495,488,000 net ton miles or 28 per cent in the first ten months last year.

Receivers of the Arkansas and Louisiana Midland railroad were authorized to pay $95,257.53 to settle claims against the railroad while it was in government control.

SUGAR MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—SUGAR—Easier feeling prevailed in the local raw sugar market with prices 1-16c lower to the basis of 5¼c for Cuban cost and freight, equal to 7.41c for centrifugal. Sales included 10,000 bags of Cuban December shipment to local refiner at 5¼c cost and freight, while an outport refiner purchased 25,000 bags for December shipment at 5¼c, cost and freight. 25,000 bags for first half January at 5½c, and 50,000 bags for all January shipment, price to be fixed according to shipment. Raw futures opened to 6 points lower, under scattered liquidation, owing to declines in raws and refined and more optimistic strike news from Cuba, but firmed up on covering and renewed buying for outside account, closing 9 to 9 points net higher. January, 5.30c; March, 4.70c; May, 4.75c; July, 4.80c. Refined futures, easier. Prices 5 to 15 points lower to basis of 9c for fine granulated. Refined futures nominal.

COFFEE MARKETS.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—COFFEE—Futures quiet, but ruled generally higher on further scattered covering on reports of firmer Rio exchange rates. The market opened at an advance of 7 to 8 points. There was one sale of December at 10.15c, or 3 points net lower, but other months held steady and closed was 3 to 10 points net higher. Sales were estimated at about 12,000 bags. Closing quotations: December, 10.28c; March, 9.41c; May, 8.75c; July, 8.58c; September, 8.34c; October, 8.33c; December, 8.22c. Spot, quiet. Rio 7s, 10¾c to 10¾c; Santos 4s, 14½c to 15¼c. No fresh offers reported in cost and freight markets. Official cables showed advance of 1-32d in Rio exchange on London, with decline of 100 reis in dollar buying rate. Rio market 225 to 400 reis lower and Santos 375 reis lower to 150 reis higher. Rio cleared 4,000 bags for New Orleans and Santos 40,500 bags for San Francisco. Brazilian ports receipts, 48,000 bags; Jundiahy receipts, 13,000 bags.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Week-end profit taking in yesterday's brief session of the stock market failed to halt operations for the rise which was particularly pronounced in the oil and chemical groups. Realising sales were most effective in the motors, sugars and equipments. Movements in the railroad group were mixed with fractional changes the rule.

Corn Products was the individual feature, being pushed up 5½ points to 153, a new 1923 top. United Cigar Stores, which had a sensational 18 point rise on Friday; dropped back four points. Trading in the socalled pivotal shares—United States Steel, Baldwin, Studebaker and American Can—was lighter than usual, the closing prices showing little or no change on the day. American Chicle preferred, American Radiator, Barnet Leather, General Baking preferred and Woolworth rose from three to six points. Manhattan Elevated dropped nearly 2 points and Hupp Motors yielded 1½.

Oils were again heavily bought, Maryland, Pan American B., Condon and Standard Oil of California rising a point or so while Pacific moved up 2¼, Tidewater 3¾ and Houston 3½. The strong spots in the chemical list were Allied Chemical, American Agricultural Chemical common and preferred and Virginia-Carolina Chemical preferred, up 1¾ to 2¼ points.

The time has come in the stock market when many people who have carried stocks since the early part of 1923, 1922 or even 1921 can sell and "break even." Such selling was one of the big factors in the market last week, and aided in bringing about some of the unsettlement that developed.

The New York stock exchange rules that the common and first and second preferred stock of the Reading company be not quoted "ex" the right to subscribe to the stock of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron corporations, on Dec. 17, and not until further notice, and that all deliveries after that date be accompanied by a due bill.

Mexican secretary of the treasury says petroleum taxes are insufficient to cover the first payment of $15,000,000 under the Lamont debt agreement. Funds will be available from other sources and the total amount will be forwarded between Dec. 20 and 25.

Baltimore and Ohio holdings of 606,650 Reading rights will not be disposed of at present, according to officials of the former company. The warrants evidencing the rights will not be deliverable until after the first of the year, and owners of these warrants will have two years in which to decide between exercising the ownership or selling.

It has been decided that payment for stock of the Pan-American Western Petroleum, the Californian subsidiary of the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company, may be made in four installments on Feb. 15, April 20 and July 20 and Oct. 20 next year.

The American Sugar Refining company, Arbuckle Bros., Warner Sugar Refining company and the National Sugar Refining company all reduced the price of refined sugar 15 points to 9 cents per lb.

Resumption of operations in five more departments of Amoskeag Manufacturing company, Monday, will employ 600 operatives, bringing the total to 12,750.

There were 455 commercial failures in the United States last week, according to figures compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., compared with 423 in the preceding week and 396 during the corresponding week last year.

Our Holiday Anniversary Gift Lamp Offer

AS THE season of 1923 draws to a close Cochran & McCluer Company finds itself both older and younger—older because it has added another year to its investment experience (founded 1881)—younger because during the current year it has greatly enlarged its circle of investors and friends and at the same time developed its organization and facilities so that never before was it better able to serve their needs.

It is because we wish to commemorate our 43rd anniversary and because we appreciate the fact that our clients come to us direct unsolicited by salesmen that, for a limited time, we will give to each investor who purchases a first mortgage bond either for cash or on the payment plan a beautiful Multi-Lite Electric Lamp. This lamp gives any degree of light from faint glow to full intensity by the operation of an inconspicuous switch, a feature found in no other lamp.

Call, phone or write your name in the margin of this advertisement for full particulars of this offer and list of choice 7% offerings—Bonds in denominations of $100—$500 and $1,000. No salesman will call.

Yellow Cab Express

(A New Type of 1-Ton Truck)

Distributed by

Carl Holdrege, Inc.

2210 South Michigan Avenue

CALumet 5336

For a long time business firms and individuals have demanded a truck capable of duplicating the remarkable performance of the famous YELLOW CAB.

YELLOW CAB EXPRESS is presented in fulfillment of an obligation we recognize. It is a 1-ton truck with identically the same kind of a chassis as revolutionized the taxicab business. Any type of body will be furnished.

YELLOW CAB EXPRESS is especially adapted to the requirements of economical merchandise transport. It embodies every fundamental learned from 14 years of taxicab operation. There is nothing like it on the market today. From radiator to tail light it is distinctively a YELLOW CAB creation.

No mere description can reveal the inherent ruggedness of YELLOW CAB EXPRESS. Into it has been built practical experience, and back of it are the resources of a $40,000,000 corporation.

Users of motor trucks for any purpose, who are interested in reducing their hauling costs, are urged to call and inspect the YELLOW CAB EXPRESS.

The standard YELLOW CAB taxicab chassis is also available for both passenger and commercial purposes. Ask about it.

Applications from dealers in this territory should be addressed to Carl Holdrege, Inc., 2210 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago.

WHEAT FIRMER DESPITE EARLY BREAK IN CORN

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A firmer undertone prevailed in the wheat market. With commission houses buying of May on resting orders around $1.03½, an early break in corn had little effect, and the finish was at net gains of ½@¾c. Cash houses sold December corn, putting it to 2½ under May at the last after showing 3½c under at one time, and it lost ½ while deferred futures gained a fair amount. Oats were unchanged to ¼c lower and rye unchanged to ½c higher.

Wheat prices held within a relatively narrow range during the last week, with December acting a little tight and gaining ⅜c as compared with a week ago, while the deferred deliveries were ½@¾c. Corn was on the down grade with December in the lead. Net losses for the week were 1½@2¼c. Oats were ½@¾c and rye ½@¾c lower.

Wheat Action Puzzles Trade.

Action of the wheat market in holding up so well in the face of the depressing news is an unsolved mystery to the trade, and there was short covering on the early dip of around ¼c by those who feared to go without evening up over small lines open over Sunday. The Northwestern Grain Dealers' estimate of 429,000,000 bu for the three Canadian provinces, while 34,000,000 bu in excess of their previous figures, suggested that the official returns were 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 bu too large, but failed to induce any material buying or selling.

Private reports from the seaboard indicated there was a better export demand from abroad, with small lots being sold, but the day's business was finally estimated at only 200,000 bu. Manitoba and some durum.

The final government estimate on the 1923 crops will be given to the trade after the close on Monday, and a dull market is expected until after the report is out of the way.

More Pressure on Corn.

With cash corn around a delivery basis hedging pressure on the December is increasing and, with inadequate support prices dropped to a new low, touching 70c. There was influential early selling of May; but houses with country connections absorbed the surplus in the pit around 72¾c, and the finish was at 73¼c, while December was 70¾@70⅞c. Cash corn was off ½@1c with the trade looking for still lower prices despite the continued refusal of the farmer to sell his grain. There were intimations that export business might be put through at any further decline.

Oats closed about the bottom after a range of ¼c. Many of the local bulls have given up efforts to advance prices in view of the heavy undertone in corn and are content to look on for the time being.

A light trade was on in rye, with the action of wheat the main influence. Nothing was heard regarding export business.

Provisions were somewhat unsettled, breaking early on commission house selling only to rally sharply from the low point and close with net losses of 5@10c on lard with ribs unchanged to 2½c lower and bellies 5c lower. Cash demand was less active. Packing of hogs at Chicago for the season to date is 1,553,000 against 1,198,000 last year. Prices follow:

WHEAT FIRMER DESPITE EARLY BREAK IN CORN

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A firmer undertone prevailed in the wheat market. With commission house buying of May on resting orders around $1.08⅛, an early break in corn had little effect, and the finish was at net gains of ⅛@⅜c. Cash houses sold December corn, putting it to 2¼c under May at the last after showing 3½c under at one time, and it lost ¼c, while deferred futures gained a like amount. NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—RUBBER—Smoked ribbed sheets, spot, 26¼c.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Final returns on crops for the year will be given by the government report due in Chicago at 3 o'clock Monday. There will be a revision of last year's figures, which is the system of late years. Preliminary figures with comparisons, the last three ciphers being omitted, follow:

	Preliminary 1923.	1922.	Revised 1921.
Winter wheat	588,336	536,204	600,316
Spring wheat	213,351	270,000	214,589
All wheat	761,327	556,211	814,905
Corn	3,039,000	2,890,713	3,068,560
Oats	1,302,000	1,215,496	1,078,341
Rye	64,774	93,467	61,678
Barley	199,251	186,110	154,946

W. N. Eckhardt and George S. Bridge, who are active in the opposition to private wires, say that reports of a petition to have the proposed amendment withdrawn are untrue. They are active in pushing the measure to a vote of the Board of Trade association on Dec. 28.

The grain trade at the close was inclined to look for lower prices of wheat, while in corn there has been so much liquidation of December contracts that they are disposed to go slower on the selling side, with the price around 70c. Larger deliveries of wheat and corn are looked for this week, and a liberal run of corn from the country is also expected. It is said the short interest in most trades has been increased.

Sir Henry Thornton, chairman of the Grand Trunk railway of Canada, was on the Chicago Board of Trade Saturday. "I have always wanted to see the board in action," he said, "and I am pleased with what I have seen and heard about the way it does business. Asked as to the condition of business and the outlook in Canada, he said: "Whenever there are as large crops, business is good, and prospects are favorable. The Grand Trunk is having a large traffic as a result of the big wheat crop in Canada. Everything comes from the earth, and I am inclined to think that it goes back to the soil."

"Three quarters of Canada's marketable wheat was moved from the farms in the first three months of the season," says Clement Curtis & Co. "We have disposed of more than 80,000,000 bu of our small surplus. It is thus easy to imagine that during the spring months the wheat situation will appear just as strong as it has appeared weak this fall. We continue to feel that all grains should be bought at this level and held for higher prices."

It is possible and probable that the wheat markets of competing countries will soon enjoy a turn for the better, which will be amply reflected here," says Thomson & McKinnon. "We rather believe that the initial effect of an increased movement of corn will afford a good buying opportunity and we expect offerings to meet a good industrial demand that will permit burdensome accumulations."

Minneapolis messages said that unless there is more buying of their May it will work closer to Chicago. The spread last night was almost 4c.

There was buying of December and selling of May wheat in Winnipeg at 6c difference. Some traders believe that this spread is wide enough and that the demand will narrow it.

A wheat crop of 429,000,000 bu was raised this year in the three Canadian provinces, according to the Northwestern Grain Dealers' association's report. While this is 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 bu less than suggested by the government returns, it shows 34,000,000 bu in excess of the Grain Dealers' previous figures. Manitoba raised 29,000,000 bu, Saskatchewan, 238,000,000 bu, and Alberta, 174,000,000 bu. Oats crop of the three provinces is 451,00,000 bu and barley 51,000,000 bu. Last year the government report made wheat 375,000,000 bu, oats 289,000,000 bu and barley 53,000,000 bu.

Charters have been made to take out 26,000,000 bu wheat from Vancouver during December, January and February. About 75 per cent of the grain will go to Europe and 25 per cent to the Orient.

CASH-GRAIN NEWS

Export sales of 200,000 bu Manitoba and 50,000 bu durum wheat was reported at the seaboard, and messages from there indicated that the demand would probably be slow until after the holidays. There was some inquiry for corn with exporters asking for refusals over Sunday.

Chicago handlers sold 5,000 bu wheat, 80,000 bu corn, and 75,000 bu oats to the domestic trade. Deliveries here were 45,000 bu wheat, 8,000 bu corn, 30,000 bu oats and 20,000 bu rye, while at Winnipeg they were 486,000 bu wheat, 189,000 bu oats and 8,000 bu rye.

Offerings of cash wheat here remain small and the basis firm at 5½@6½c over December for No. 1 hard. No. 2 red was 5@6c over. Receipts, 18 cars. Outside markets unchanged to 1c lower.

Cash corn showed relatively more strength than the December. Demand showed improvement, and while prices were off ¼@1c as compared with sales of the previous day, the basis was better at 1¼@1½c over December for No. 2 mixed and 1¼@2¼c over for yellow, with No. 3 mixed ½c under and No. 3 yellow December to ½c under. Receipts, 212 cars. Outside markets unchanged to 2c lower.

Demand for cash oats was only fair, with No. 2 white 1¼@2¼c and No. 3 white ⅛@1¼c over December. Receipts, 80 cars.

5,000	Dec. 31, 1927	5,000	Dec. 31, 1930	5,000	Dec. 31, 1933

River Forest, population (1920) 4,358, one of the most attractive residential suburbs of Chicago, is located twelve miles west of the Chicago loop district, immediately adjoining Oak Park. It is connected with Chicago by the Chicago & Northwestern Railway, the Chicago Elevated Railway, and by three lines of the street railway. River Forest is a high class residential suburb, containing attractive residences, handsome churches and schools, including two colleges.

Bonds issued for paving eleven blocks of alleys in residential section. The property is over 90% improved with homes, and ranges in value from $30 to $80 per front foot, exclusive of improvements. From a personal inspection we appraise the property taxed for the payment of these $45,000 bonds, in excess of $2,000,000. Bonds are payable from taxes levied under County Court confirmation upon the property benefited, which taxes are a lien prior to a mortgage or any other encumbrance, save general taxes.

The total tax, approximately $3 per front foot, is payable through ten years, so that the average tax to retire principal and interest of these bonds amounts to about 40 cents per front foot annually, and, being payable serially, the margin of security, ample to begin with, increases each year.

River Forest has an assessed valuation of $2,612,902 and a total general bonded debt of $125,500, and based on a school census has a present population of 5,631.

Legality approved by Teiman, Sexton & Chandler, attorneys, Chicago.

Slightly smaller hog receipts and the largest week's shipping orders since February caused a steady to strong week end session, with the top at $7.25, equaling the highest in ten days. All buyers favored the better grades, forcing the average up to $7.00, the highest since Dec. 4, when the average at $7.10 was highest since early in November. The demand for weighty "packers" was lacking in barely steady prices. Outsiders absorbed about a third of the fresh arrivals, with 4,000 estimated in the pens at the close. The average price on the corresponding day a year ago, at $7.95, was lowest in December, 1922.

Last week's hog receipts at 270,600 were 38,100 below the previous week's arrivals, which were the third largest on record. Offerings last week stand 23,600 larger than a year ago, 30,700 larger than two years ago, and 45,400 above the ten year average. The estimated average weight of hogs at 235 lbs equaled the previous week, and also a year ago, but was 9 lbs heavier than two years ago and 19 lbs heavier than the ten year average. The week's average price dropped 20c at $6.70, standing $1.45 below a year ago and $3.60 under the ten year average.

Demand for Cattle Lacking.

With a demand for cattle lacking, the market closed in an unsatisfactory condition, sharply below the recent high point. Killing quality was poor, more than a third of the 1,000 week-end offerings consisting of Canadian feeding cattle. Barring choice yearlings, which were scarce, most prices reflected 50@75c declins since a week ago, with the week's average for good beef steers at $9.50, standing 15c below previous week and 25c above a year ago. Fancy yearlings, bought for Christmas trade, reached $13.25 Wednesday, the highest of the year. The corresponding week a year ago yearlings at $14.00 were highest in 1922.

Lambs Sharply Lower.

The largest week's sheep receipts in six weeks, at 107,900, caused sharp breaks in all branches of the trade. Handy weight lambs closed 25@50c belgw a week ago, with short fed and heavy kinds off 75c@$1.00. Increasing numbers of clipped lambs met extremely dull outlet after midweek, "spread" in prices showing a tendency to widen. Aged sheep were 25c lower, with yearlings off 25@50c for the week. Feeders were dull at uneven declines.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 24,000 cattle, 75,000 hogs, and 27,000 sheep, against 25,197 cattle, 32,423 hogs, and 26,415 sheep a week ago and 22,443 cattle 46,812 hogs, and 14,595 sheep a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 65,000 cattle, 250,000 hogs, and 85,000 sheep, against 60,221 cattle, 210,310 hogs, and 63,328 sheep a year ago.

COTTON MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—COTTON—Violent price fluctuations were on, with renewed liquidation by foreigners and a break of 100 points, or $5.00 per bale, from the extreme high point of the day. A rally came at the last, due to shorts taking profits, yet net losses were 56@72 points. Spot cotton was held firmly. There has been a drastic decline in the last few days, and the fundamentals are said to be favorable to holders. New York certified stocks are 75,000 bales. Heavy shipments have been made from the south to New York. Prices follow:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. close.	Last year.
December	34.15	33.76	33.85	34.40	25.47

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Answers are based upon information which THE TRIBUNE believes correct, but beyond care in securing it THE TRIBUNE assumes no responsibility.

Good Management Important to Investors.

Investing is putting your money to work. You work to earn it—then you put it to work to earn more. If you put it into your own business it is working under your direct supervision, and it is your responsibility to safeguard it and to see that it is utilized to the best advantage.

If you invest your money in the securities of some other institution, it still is working for you, but under the supervision and direction of some one else. In that case it is of great importance to know that it is in the hands of those who will carefully manage it so that it will be safe and will yield you a proper return for its services.

A strong company may be ruined by incompetent management, whereas a weak company, put under efficient and experienced management, may be built up into a successful and profitable concern.

Too many investors ignore the personal element in a business. Nevertheless that element may make the difference between profit or loss for the company and the investor.

Much stress is laid by securities salesmen on the property and assets in back of a security and the potential earnings of the issuer. And these factors, of course, are of large importance. They are essential elements in the strength of the security, but they are not all. A high degree of security of principal and a wide margin of safety for interest and maturity, as represented by earnings, should be present. But these may not make the investment a sound one if the management is dishonest or incompetent. These two elements, coupled with the right kind of management, are essential to a sound investment.

Don't put your money to work in incompetent hands. Know that it will be well managed before you invest.

The New York Times.

New York, Dec. 15.—[Special.]—All of the markets ended the week with the uncertainty which is apt to prevail when sweeping movements in one direction or another have come to a halt, have been followed by reaction, and have then left the trend to be determined by something new in the situation.

The stock market today was indecisive; a few industrial shares moved up somewhat rapidly under heavy, concentrated buying, but the rest of the market was practically motionless. Even the changes for the week showed rather striking lack of uniformity. In the foreign exchange market sterling advanced a full cent for the day, while francs lost ground slightly and the German mark and the Italian lira hardly changed.

British Election Not Disturbing.

In the week, as a whole, sterling has advanced 2 cents. It ended the week 5¼ cents above the rate at which it sold a few days before the British election of last week, which would seem to be fairly good evidence that financial markets have received the news imperturbably. Even the British government bonds are only a fraction below their preelection prices.

So far as sterling is concerned, it must be remembered how great a part was played, in the long decline from September's rate of $4.84 to November's $4.36, by the talk of "inflation policies" for England and of a "rupture of the Anglo-German entente." The election has distinctly laid at rest both of those rumors—which were never political possibilities.

Cotton Prices Again Decline.

The cotton market sold down again, losing ¾ cent a pound for the day and reaching a spot price almost exactly the same as that of the day before the agricultural department's last estimate of yield. The decline caused some surprise in the cotton trade; but the speculator's idea of relative values has been severely shaken by recent experiences, making him much more disposed to caution.

Furthermore, today's week-end cotton statistics showed the week's total exports to have decreased 42 per cent from the week before and exports to England 55 per cent. Probably that is a measure of the decrease in orders placed when cotton prices were in the clouds. Our own northern and southern spinners, however, increased their purchases.

Tax Payment Goes Smoothly.

Banking arrangements incidental to the quarterly tax settlements are reflected in this week's statement of the New York clearing house banks, but the changes were not especially noteworthy. Loans increased $31,307,000 and net demand deposits rose $32,214,000, these sums being smaller than the previous week's decrease in the same time. There was an increase of $5,409,000 in time deposits. The surplus reserve was $7,980,930 lower at $17,565,940. Details of the statement follow:

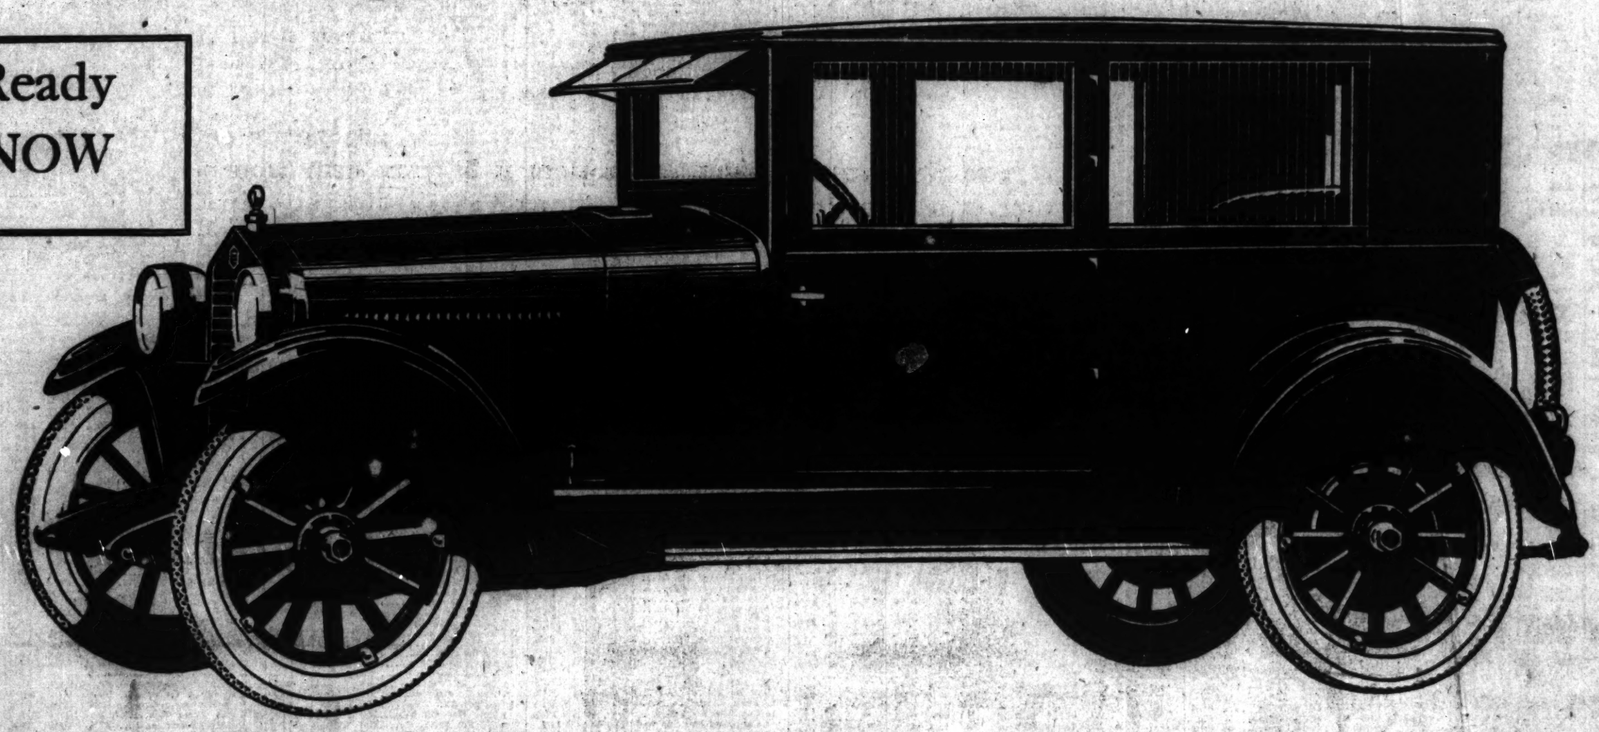
The New ESSEX
A SIX
Built by Hudson under Hudson Patents

Ready NOW



A 30 Minute Ride Will Win You

Essex closed car comforts now cost $170 less than ever before. Also with this lower price you get an even more attractive Coach body and a six cylinder motor built on the principle of the famous Hudson Super-Six.

It continues Essex qualities of economy and reliability, known to 135,000 owners. It adds a smoothness of performance which heretofore was exclusively Hudson's. Both cars are alike in all details that count for long satisfactory service at small operating cost.

You will like the new Essex in the nimble ease of its operation. Gears shift quietly. Steering is like guiding a bicycle, and care of the car calls for little more than keeping it lubricated. That, for the most part, is done with an oil can.

The chassis design lowers the center of gravity, giving greater comfort and safety, at all speeds, on all roads. You will be interested in seeing how this is accomplished.

Greater fuel economy is obtained. The car is lighter, longer and roomier. You will agree that from the standpoint of appearance, delightful performance, cost and reliability, the new Essex provides ideal transportation.

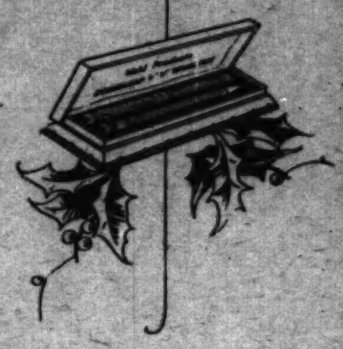
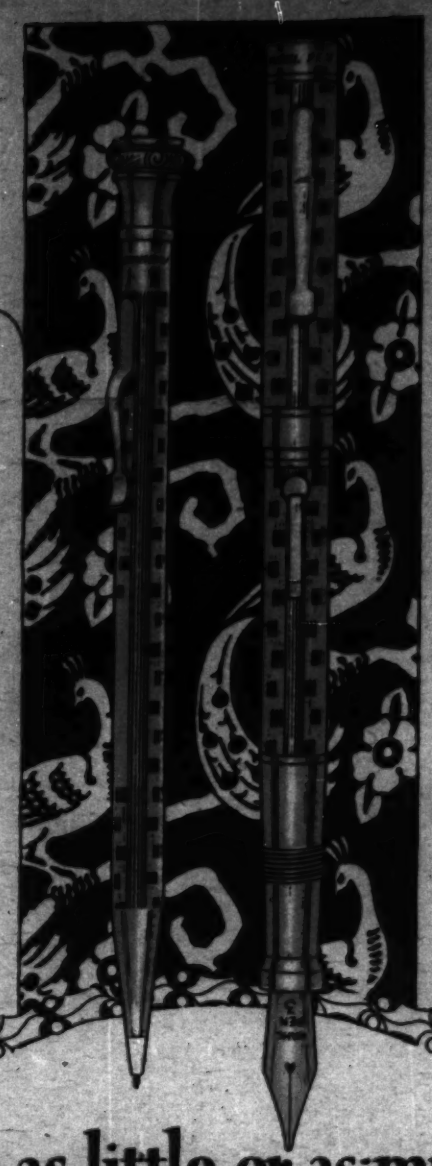
Christmas Gifts





For as little or as much as you wish to spend

Opposite each name on your Christmas list, jot down the amount you wish to spend.

You will find that there are Eversharps and Wahl Pens which so closely parallel your figures that you can give this favorite pen and pencil to everyone on your list.

Few gifts offer so much in beauty, pleasure and usefulness. Eversharp is America's favorite pencil—and its features can't be copied. Only Eversharp has the rifled tip that holds the lead free from all slip or wobble. Look for the automatic index, too! And the eraser and extra leads which are found under the cap.

Wahl Pen in gold or silver matches Eversharp in design. The all-metal Wahl Pen is a truly wonderful fountain pen improvement. It can't crack or split. It holds more ink. It is more beautiful. And it will last a lifetime.

To those who have Eversharp, give the Wahl Pen that matches it. And vice versa. To those who have neither, give both. In the velvet-lined gift box. Look for the name on each. Eversharp is $1 to $50; Wahl Pen is $4 to $50.

SOMETHING NEW!

The Miniature Set

A real Eversharp and a real Wahl Pen in a diminutive size that can be carried on the end of a watch chain, ribbon or in the smallest purse. Ask to see them.

They give the same perfect service as their larger brothers. The tiny Wahl Pen will write 1200 words at a filling. You can't give a more original gift—nor one which is more useful than the Eversharp and Wahl Pen miniature set.

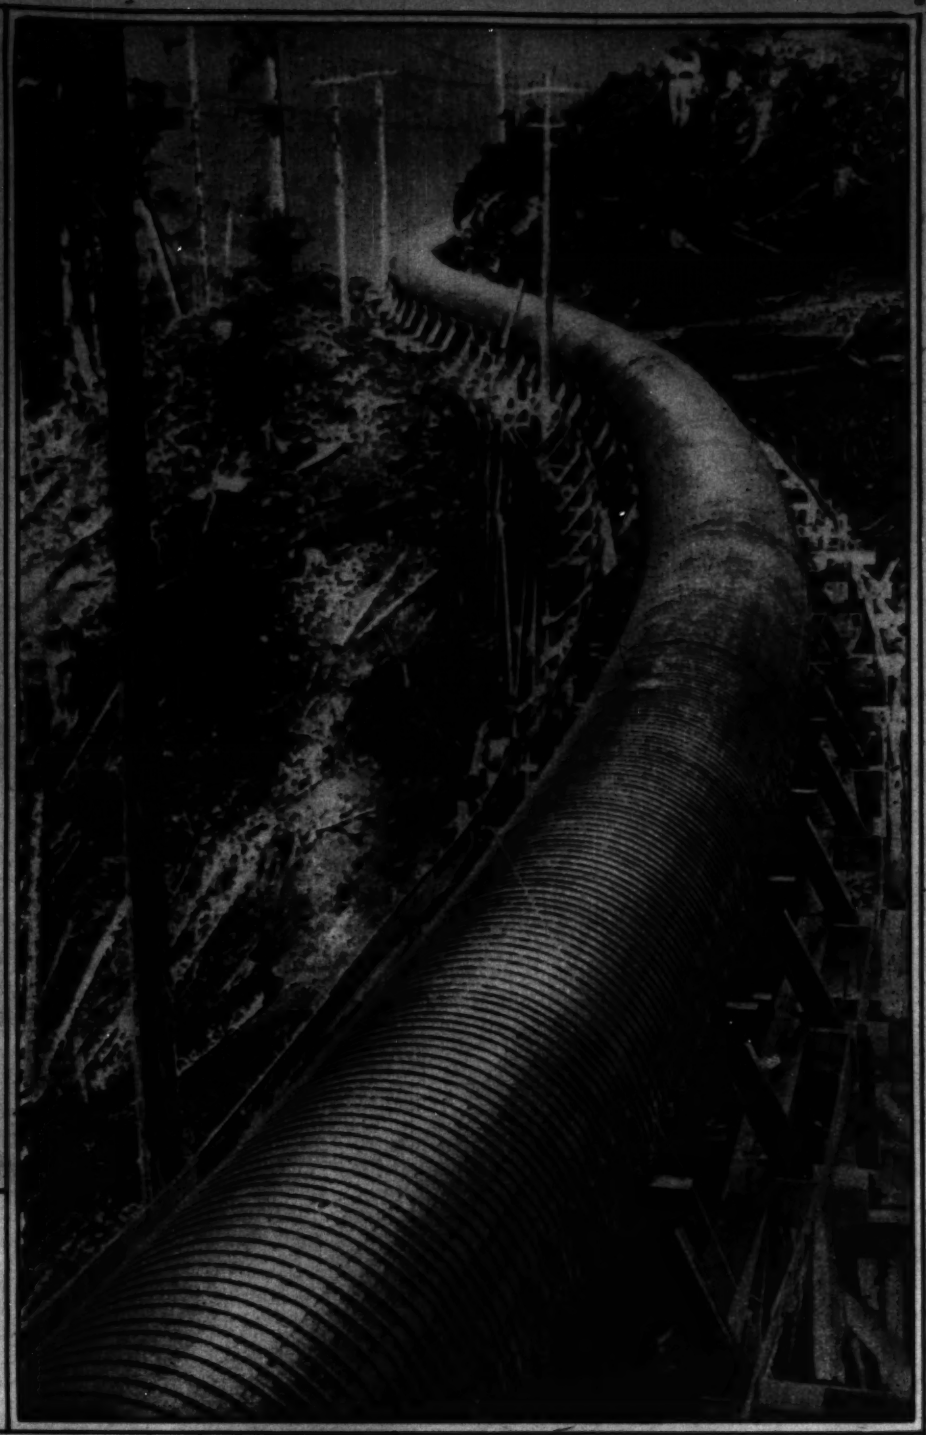
THIS KANGAROO BABY lived snugly in its mother's pouch for four months before the keepers in the London Zoo knew anything about its arrival. It wasn't used to photographers, therefore, and required some consoling when one came around.

(Photograph from International Newsreel.)



NO, IT'S NOT a prehistoric serpent—merely a gigantic wood-stave pipe for carrying water to the power plant of a mine in British Columbia. It is six feet in diameter, four miles long, and, they say, something new in mining equipment.

TOMORROW'S GERMAN MOTHERS—Berlin schoolgirls being examined by a physician. Sixty per cent of this class, in a good residential section, were found to be dangerously undernourished. It is such as these that the American Committee for Relief of German Children, in co-operation with American Quakers, plan to aid this winter.

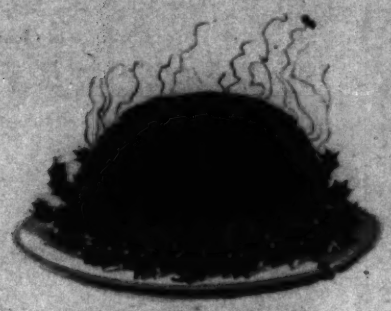
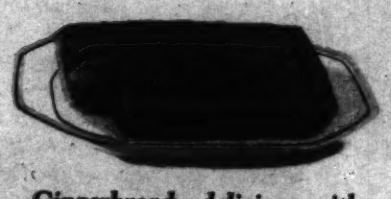
Christmas Dinner



Real Old-fashioned Plum Pudding

Molasses Pie—a luscious old-time Southern Delicacy



Gingerbread—delicious with Whipped Cream or Apple Sauce

Old Plantation Molasses Cookies

Plum pudding holly-crowned has the place of honor on the festive table

Always a chorus of delighted surprise bursts from children and grownups alike as the door swings open, revealing the holly-crowned splendor of real old-fashioned plum pudding. Only a perfect pudding will justify the enthusiasm it arouses; and a perfect pudding must have in addition to the luscious richness of fruit and spice, the fragrance and flavor of the finest plantation made molasses.

For years the women of America tried in vain to get the old-fashioned, pure sugar cane molasses, so necessary for perfect dark cakes and puddings. It simply was not to be had. Then Brer Rabbit was put on the market.

They recognized at once the molasses they had been longing for—a molasses as fragrant, as full flavored, as sweet and pure as the molasses of their childhood.

Today Brer Rabbit is the most popular molasses in America.

The instant the can is opened the delicious old-time aroma makes you hungry. Taste it! Here at last you have the means of giving your puddings and dark cakes, your cookies and gingerbread, the delectable old-time flavor.

See how much lighter they bake up—the foods you make with Brer Rabbit Molasses. What new softness and richness they have! How good they are and how wholesome!

You can get Brer Rabbit at your grocer's. It is packed in two grades—Gold Label Brer Rabbit (light molasses delicious on hot cakes and waffles) and Green Label Brer Rabbit (dark molasses with a stronger flavor for cooking). Write for recipe booklet No. 22. Penick & Ford, Ltd., New Orleans, La.

The TWO MARJORIES by W. L. GEORGE

A Christmas Story by One of the Most Widely-Read English Authors of the Day; Two Love Stories Intertwined, and the Story of a Mother's Love.

MARJORIE TEMPLE lay in the best bedroom of "Hollyland." She looked out of the window on which the frost had designed flowers and reflected that she was very happy. In the cradle lay a baby, which held on to the counterpane with a determined fist. As he obstinately slept Marjorie Temple said to herself in a loud whisper: "Noel! My baby! I've got a baby!" She was only nineteen and had been married a year. Now she could take up the Times and read the announcement that thrilled her. She had dark red hair, blue eyes, and one of those creamy skins that seem too thick, so velvety are they. She read aloud:

TEMPLE—On Christmas day, to Marjorie, the wife of Henry John Temple of Hollyland, Romola road, Canonbury—of a son.

Then she read down the list, interested in the other mothers. She reflected that it must be very grim in Sheffield, where twins had been introduced. Also that she would never have married a man called Piffles. Still, there was a Mrs. Piffles, and now there was a wretched young Piffles. Then Marjorie paused over another announcement:

GRESFORD—On the 25th December, at 3, Upper Parade, Colchester, to Marjorie, wife of Edward Rudolf Gresford — of a daughter.

So another Marjorie had received a baby for a Christmas present! She wondered gloomily whether many of the others were called Marjorie. No: Sylvias, Dorises, Ethels, but no Marjories, except Marjorie Gresford.

Mrs. Temple put down the paper and for a while meditated on the other Marjorie. What would she be like? Dark, of course, to make a contrast with her own red hair. What was Mr. Gresford like? Edward was a rather silly name. Her husband was called Henry.

Marjorie's mother came to see her and stayed for a long time. Marjorie ordered herself fish. Noel raised a serious disturbance. At last Henry came back from the office and asked if he might smoke a pipe. In spite of these disturbances Mrs. Temple could not drive out of her mind the thought of the other Marjorie; she hoped for her sake that little Miss Gresford was of a more placid temperament than Noel.

A week passed, but Marjorie still retained her queer little feeling of intimacy with Marjorie Gresford. At last, in the cold morning room, where a young servant had forgotten to clear away the remains of breakfast, amid her shabby gentility, Marjorie Temple wrote:

"Noel! My baby!"

DEAR MRS. GRESFORD:

I hope you will not mind my writing to you, but you and I were the only two Marjories who had a baby on Christmas day. I hope your little girl is very well. Noel weighed nine pounds—Noel, that's my little boy—and I do hope you'll be as happy as I am. There, now I've made a blot, but I hope you won't mind.

Yours sincerely,
MARJORIE TEMPLE.

P. S.—He didn't weigh quite nine pounds; eight pounds fifteen ounces; but that's practically nine pounds.

Mrs. Gresford answered in polite if somewhat stilted terms, upon large paper bearing a crest in the left hand corner. She, too, hoped that Noel was well, and sent him a rattle. This drew a letter of thanks and a snapshot of Noel. Thus began a remote intimacy. Marjorie Temple was of an impulsive, confiding temperament and saw no impediment in this correspondence with a stranger. It was elementary, dealing mainly with the children; on Marjorie's side affectionate and slightly confused, on that of Mrs. Gresford almost statistical. Sometimes they did not hear from each other for six months; at others the correspondence thickened; Noel had whooping cough, Rosalind proved naughty, and at the age of three fell into a pond in an attempt to catch goldfish. But one occasion never failed—the birthday of the infants: every Christmas one Marjorie always wrote to the other, and the years passed.

HOW those years passed for Mrs. Gresford Marjorie never knew. Some fifteen years after their first communication Mrs. Gresford wrote from a new address, Abbas Place, near Basingalton, in Farnshire. Marjorie congratulated her on living in the country, and thought no more of it, telling her distant friend rather shyly that all was not as well with her as she would have liked, but that she supposed one couldn't have everything in life.

Indeed, Marjorie was very unhappy. Unhappy, that is, on one side of her personality, the matrimonial. Mr. Temple was thirty-five when he captured a Marjorie of eighteen. He was at that time chief clerk in the office of a not too successful lawyer. Five years later he became managing clerk. Ten years after that he was still managing clerk. In other words, at fifty he was a failure—a respectable failure, with a clean collar and a bitter tongue. He had spent thirty years of his life climbing within sight of a partnership, and had been bluntly told that he would never get it. Marjorie had never loved him; she had liked him, admired him—just because he was thirty-five, a man sure of himself, a real man, different from the brothers of her school friends. Also she had three sisters and came from a house of poor gentlefolk. Thus, when Henry Temple, already rather dry and rather cynical, pursued Marjorie, who was white and luscious as a water lily, she accepted, as women marry because they are asked to marry.

She wanted to be a good wife to him, but she was not clever. Her additions were always wrong. When she met her husband's employer she forgot to flatter him. So Temple, thinking her a fool, allowed her to perceive it. When her early allure passed away, when he could without a thrill look down upon the golden shavings on her neck, as he grew older, more disappointed, he spoke to her only with contempt, refused her pleasure because he had come to hate pleasure. Often he did not speak to her for several days, working like an old horse that pulls without any desire to reach a destination.

Only there was Noel; Noel, so unlike his father, as if the passionate impulse of motherhood had created him in Marjorie's image. He had her blue eyes, and her hair, only a little darker. From boyhood he grew fast, and at fourteen overtopped his mother. Theirs was the intimacy of lovers, for the boy was serious, while the mother was childish. At thirty-four she could in the back garden enjoy bowling so that he might learn to block. And in the silent way of boys he had for her an inwrought, an almost jealous love.

ONE morning, when Noel was nineteen, when he was preparing to leave the Guilds college, Mr. Temple was found dead in bed. His heart had given way, and Marjorie, to her surprise, found herself by his bedside, weeping. She had never loved him in the real sense, and he had not been kind. But here lay her past, her memories, the man who had taken her youth and muted it almost into middle age. If he had been kinder, fate might have been kinder to him.

But she did not have time to grieve, for practical preoccupations settled upon her as a hawk upon a sparrow. The small insurance policy would enable her to live in one room, but they must give up "Hollyland," the stucco villa in Canonbury, near the sleepy canal. And Noel? Mr. Temple, hating his branch of the law, had intended him for the bar, and Marjorie had thought of him in his wig and robes as lord chancellor of the land. That was over. Noel must earn money quickly so that he might live. They had a brave little conversation on the evening of the funeral, when Marjorie wept, and her son kissed her and patted her shoulder, assuring her in an uncertain voice that he yet would install her in a vast house with many servants. Before going to bed she brushed her bright hair and stared at herself in the glass, wondering what the future reserved for her and her son. It couldn't be a bad future, for she felt too strong and too young. Marjorie Temple at thirty-eight differed greatly from the Marjorie of nearly twenty years before. The thick white skin was lovely as ever, but she had matured; her shoulders were full and white, and not a gray hair sprang from her head. She was not childishly pretty now, but she was handsome, richly strong; indeed, like the water lily that thrusts a thick stem and deep roots into the life-giving ooze of a pond.

Yet Marjorie was sensitive rather than strong, and needed a confidant. She couldn't talk to Noel, express her agonies, for he wanted all his strength. Her husband having been a misanthrope, she had no intimate friends. But there was Mrs. Gresford, the shadow, brought so close to her by strange circumstance. So she wrote briefly to Abbas Place, trying to be brave and bright, but allowing all the same her anxiety to appear. Then she went to sleep. Two days later there came from Farnshire a letter that made her flush and run to Noel's room, laughing and childish again:

DEAR MRS. TEMPLE:

I am indeed sorry that you should have suffered such a severe loss, and still more sorry that you should find yourself in difficulties that you do not explain, but which I can feel all the same. It is a terrible thing to be responsible for a young man, not to be able to give him the career he wants. I suppose he must give up the bar, but there are other occupations. As perhaps you may know, my husband has a large estate and, therefore, employs an agent. Our present agent has been in charge of the estate for over twenty years. He is still strong and active, and I hope he may for many years yet look after our interests. But the fact remains that he is getting old. Would you like your son to enter his office as an articled pupil? I have no doubt that if your son applies himself he will in due course be fit to succeed Maj. Sandford when he retires. He will receive only a small salary, but Maj. Sandford tells me that he will be glad to receive him into his house.

Yours sincerely,

MARJORIE GRESFORD.

P. S.—I did not like to mention it before, but you had better address me as Lady Gresford. I was Mrs. Gresford when I received your first charming letter, but owing to the death in the war of his two cousins, my husband succeeded to the title some years ago.

* * * * * * *

At the end of a drive half a mile long Marjorie came tremulously upon Abbas Place, a low house in the shape of an L. The butler and a footman stood about while she nervously removed her wraps. A moment later, in the drawing room, she confronted the other Marjorie.

While Lady Gresford made herself agreeable, inquiring as to their journey and congratulating her on the good looks of Noel, Marjorie viewed her with surprise. Somehow she had imagined that Lady Gresford would be a dark girl, and not this woman of fifty. Lady Gresford was thin, much taller than Marjorie; her dark features were handsome enough, but in a rather masculine, bony way. Also she had the curt manner which town people think needlessly abrupt. After a while Lord Gresford came in, still taller than his wife, hesitating, and afflicted with a stutter. Energy and initiative had been bred out of him by his old lineage. He addressed himself to Noel on hunting and the proper breeding of pigs. After a while he took him away, and the two Marjories stayed alone.

"They were born for each other on Christmas day."

They were embarrassed, so familiar and so strange. Also, Mrs. Temple was discomposed by the evident wealth of her surroundings. They talked haltingly, having nothing in common; at last, Lady Gresford, failing to find mutual acquaintances, getting no response to conversation about Scotland and the Riviera, led Marjorie to the terraced Italian garden. At the top they reached a little belvedere.

"And is that all yours?" asked Marjorie, innocently. Her hostess nodded. Marjorie looked with reverence and shyness upon the rolling land which stretched away to the horizon: "How lovely it must be," she said, "to feel that all that is your land. As far as one can see."

IT was then that Lady Gresford plunged into intimacy: "No," she said, "it isn't all ours. Do you see that little wood?"

"Yes," said Marjorie.

"Well, just beyond it, you can't see the house from here, there's a farm, only about three hundred acres. It belongs to a man called Ring. That's not ours." She paused, and a flush rose slowly in her sallow cheeks as in a more intense tone she added: "He ought not to have it. It was my husband's grandfather, fool that he was, sold it to the family of Ring's mother. Not three hundred," she added bitterly, "and it spoils us."

"I don't understand," said Marjorie.

"No, you're from London. Here are six thousand acres of our land, and in the middle, within sight of the house, there's those three hundred acres belonging to somebody else. Spoiling us, blotching us." Marjorie stared at Lady Gresford, whose voice was impassioned, as she went on: "God knows we've tried everything we can, for nearly a hundred years. I've offered him sixty pounds an acre for it, and it isn't worth thirty. He won't sell. He's a yeoman farmer, you know. He hates our sort. He'd rather beggar himself than let us have our way." She had forgotten Marjorie; staring into the blue evening, she murmured: "O, Tom Ring, I've not done with you yet."

Marjorie thought it rather silly to make so much fuss about three hundred acres when one had six thousand of one's own. Besides, dinner was cheerful, and Marjorie felt a natural affection for Rosalind, the girl born the same day as her own son. This was a dusky beauty, silent, gentler than one might expect from her darkness. She was too slim and too tall; like her father, she was the end of her race, strength having turned to delicacy. She spoke little, but before the visit ended Marjorie had drawn from Rosalind the shy confession that she dreamed of some Prince Charming who had not yet found his way through the forest.

At last the visit ended. Crying a little, Marjorie mended such of Noel's linen as needed attention, tried to smile when at Waterloo station she waved her handkerchief at a train that grew smaller and smaller and disappeared into the darkness of a tunnel.

LADY GRESFORD had not spoken carelessly when she unconsciously confessed herself to sun without understanding. She had forgotten Marjorie in the moment of lust, when she murmured: "Tom Ring, I've not done with you yet." For years she had desired that piece of land with a queer, an almost deformed passion. At Abbas Place she was the real master. It was not the stuttering peer but his wife who fired and abated rents, who decided what repairs should be allowed. Indeed, Maj. Sandford came to her first and later informed his nominal master of the decisions taken by the actual mistress.

Possibly because she had expressed her feelings, Lady Gresford suffered agony all through the week-end which the Temples spent with her. She was possessed by hunger for the land, a passion that was like an ache. She went to her small sitting room, walked up and down, her fists clenched, her mouth working. She was nearly crying with anger. At last she said aloud: "Can't stick it. Got to get to the end of it."

She rang the bell violently: "Ebenezer," she said to the footman, "telephone Mr. Ring and tell him that I'd be much obliged if he could call on me tomorrow at his convenience. Tell him to telephone when he can come."

She received Tom Ring in the little sitting room, standing. She shook hands, made a brief remark about the weather, that was too dry for the roots, then paused. Each knew what was in question. Lady Gresford despised the yeoman farmer as a man of lower degree. He was independent, yes; for there had been Rings before there were Gresfords, and they had an arrogance of their own, owning motor cars and pianolas, crepe de chine blouses for the girls, and a balance at the bank smaller than the Gresfords' balance, but more permanent. Still, she could not help liking him, for Tom Ring was a magnificent figure, in his expensive clumsy rounds, and good leggings. Six foot two, riding fifteen stone, forty-five, with the red skin, red mouth, bright blue eye of good health, he could drink two bottles of port before he drove a wily bargain.

"Well, now, Mr. Ring," said Lady Gresford, despising indirect methods, "what about Pan Farm?"

"Doing very well," said Ring. "I've been thinking of breaking some of the pasture and trying wheat."

Lady Gresford clenched her fists. Were the Rings going to hold on to Gresford land for all eternity? "Wheat!" she said. "Much good it will do you. Why, we're flooded with Canadian. Why don't you sell the farm? It's no good to you. It's a mile from your own land. Wasting the time of the carters and cowmen. Too narrow, too, for good plowing. I've offered you sixty pounds an acre. I'll say sixty-five."

"No, thank you," said Ring.

"Why not?"

"I've sort of got a fancy for that farm," replied Ring.

"So have I," replied Lady Gresford, bravely, "and I'm ready to pay for my fancy."

TOM RING hesitated. "I don't say that I wouldn't listen to reason."

"How much do you want?" asked Lady Gresford, her heart beating.

"Well, Lady Gresford," replied Ring, "I don't know that I want to sell exactly. No. It's exchange I was thinking of."

"Why the devil didn't you say so before?" snarled Lady Gresford. "Years ago! I suppose you want to enlarge your own estate. Well, we could give you the part which borders you—on which side?"

"It's not land I want," said Ring. "Fact is, I've been thinking of getting married again. It's lonely for a man like me. I've taken a fancy to your daughter, Miss Rosalind. She'll obey you, and I'd give you that land for nothing."

"Mr. Ring," said Lady Gresford harshly, "how dare you! Do you think I'd sell my daughter to a—to——"

"To a man who pays his bills as regularly as you do. Why not? Haven't I danced with her at the hunt ball? Don't I come to your garden parties and play tennis with her? Well, then? And she won't do so badly. There's no mortgage on my land."

"Stick to the point," said Lady Gresford. "It's impossible for you to marry Rosalind. Besides, what do you want to marry her for? You don't suppose she's in love with you?"

"No," said Ring. "I'm not so struck on her myself. She looks a good sort of girl, but, fact is, the time has come for me to go up in the world. I come here to garden parties. I want to come here to dinner with my wife. That's straight."

"Mr. Ring," said Lady Gresford in a strangely low voice, "rather than see Rosalind married to you I'd see her dead."

"Just as you like," said Ring as quietly. "That's my last word. The girl or nothing."

* * * * * * *

Marjorie Temple was still living in Canonbury, but now in a boarding house. She had nothing to do except get a little older, write to Noel, and wait for his letters. It was as if her part in life were done, for she could help him no more. Often her walks took her past the villa where she had lived so long, where Noel had been born; she liked to follow the canal and look through the railings at the spot where she had once helped Noel to build waterworks. Still, she was not unhappy, for the letter which he wrote her twice a week, its vainglorious talk of drainage, swedes, and phosphates, showed that he liked the work, that he was becoming a countryman, plowing the furrow where he would sow the seeds of his future. But only two months elapsed before the letter arrived which terrified her.

After a few remarks upon the weather and the peculiarities of Major Sandford came this: "I hope you won't think I'm crazy, but I must tell somebody, because I'm so happy. I'm in love with Rosalind, and she says she'll marry me when we can. O, mother, isn't it lovely! She's so beautiful—you must have noticed that—and she's so sweet and generous. I loved her from the first moment I saw her, and she says that she did, too. Of course, I haven't told anybody yet. I'm so glad that we're just the same age, both being born on Christmas day, for then we're likely to live just as long the one as the other."

The paper fluttered in the white hand. It was racking enough that her only son should love another woman, that another woman mattered now more than she could herself. But, in addition, here were perils. What was going to happen if Lady Gresford found out? Before her eyes passed a vision of a white wall at the end of a garden, of a young couple embraced in the gloaming, of the discovery by Lady Gresford that the young man whom she would help was already abusing her confidence. He would be dismissed. He would be sent back to London to become a clerk, to live among the bricks, catch trains, be an underling instead of dominating the even fields.

THE letter which she wrote Noel was frantic with fear. It was reproachful; it warned him not to throw away his career, and yet there ran through it a gladness she took from him. Though his happiness might be folly it was her happiness, too. She begged him to give up Rosalind and knew that she would despise him if he did.

Thus three months passed, during which she saw Noel only once, when he came up for the week-end to pretend to take an interest in his mother and actually to show himself as he was, eaten up by his passion. The letters were unvarying. Always it was Rosalind, the delicacy of her hand, the softness of her voice, the constancy with which she promised to wait for him, if need be, until the expiration of time. Little by little Marjorie grew quieter, accustomed to the relationship; she even began to believe that fortune might smile, that her son might gain his desire.

But at the end of the third month came a letter which terrified her, in which Noel said: "We can't go on like this any more, meeting on the sly in the orchard in the evening. Already I think we've been seen by one of the servants. Anyhow, we must speak. I must tell Lady Gresford, and if she won't give her consent we'll have to wait."

So it had come, the moment of danger. Marjorie, without her hat, ran to the post-office, where she sent a frantic telegram: "If you love me do nothing till you see me. Coming tomorrow."

Lady Gresford seemed pleased to see Marjorie and was surprised when she heard that her old friend was asking of her no hospitality, but had taken rooms in Shotworth, a village lying three miles away from Abbas Place.

"I wanted a holiday," said Marjorie, with realistic gayety.

"Well," said Lady Gresford, "I'm sure Major Sandford won't want Noel for a day or two, so you can see a lot of him."

"Noel!" cried Marjorie, as soon as they were alone, seizing his arm, "I——" She had planned arguments with which to move him, prayers, even upbraidings, but in her emotion all she could do was to cling to his arm, murmuring, "Noel! Noel! Noel!" as if again she were a shy maiden dominated by emotion.

It was a long conversation, during which she tried to make him realize that his suit would not be entertained, that he would be dismissed, lose Rosalind. "If only you'd be patient. If only you'd wait!"

"Wait!" snarled Noel. "We won't wait."

The mother looked up at him piteously, wondering why he wouldn't wait, forgetting that at his age to wait a week was to wait forever.

"I know that I'm not a catch," said Noel. "Of course she'll refuse. And if I'm sacked, well, I am. I'll go back to town, make my way, and Rosalind will wait. No, it's no good your talking to Lady Gresford yourself. She isn't human. She doesn't care for Rosalind a bit. The only thing she cares for is to get hold of Tom Ring's land. You know, the bit in the middle of the estate. When she drives along it her eyes blaze. She's crazy. Well, if the only thing she cares about is Tom Ring's land, I'll be the one who cares for Rosalind."

"Listen," said Marjorie intensely, as a seed long planted in her mind began to flower. "Will you promise me to do nothing for some time?"

"What's the good?"

"I don't know," said Marjorie passionately. "Noel, I've never asked you for anything before. Now I do: don't speak to Lady Gresford for a month. Noel, you've got fifty years to live; won't you spare me a month?"

"All right," he said, ungraciously. "But it'll be no good."

ON a hot summer afternoon Tom Ring was striding across the yard of his farm toward the stables, to make sure that bran mash was ready for the return of the horses, when he saw an attractive woman go up the steps and enter the farmhouse. After a while, moved by curiosity, he went in to find the lady drinking a glass of milk which she seemed to have bought from the maid.

"I hope you don't mind my coming in here," said the lady, blushing prettily. "Only I was so thirsty."

"That's all right," said Ring, good humoredly, for he liked her white skin and the red glow of her hair. "Have you come far?"

"From Shotworth," said Marjorie. "I thought I'd go for a little walk in this pretty country."

"I see. You're a stranger?" said Ring.

They had a long conversation, the big man lounging in an armchair. She seemed willing to stay, and, he did not know why, he wanted her to stay. In fact, he himself showed her the farm, his favorite piggeries, and the kitchen garden, finally forcing upon her a large bunch of larkspur.

"You've been very kind to me," said Marjorie, very small beside him. "I'm afraid I've wasted your time."

"How long are you staying at Shotworth?" asked Ring.

"O, about a fortnight. I've come here for a holiday."

"Well," said Ring clumsily, "whenever you want a glass of milk you might come in here. I'm always about."

"Thank you," said Marjorie, her hand disappearing in his sunburnt, crackled paw.

But as she went along the road she was tremulous, for things had not happened as she wanted. She still felt about her fingers the clasp of the great hand, and told herself: "How handsome he is!" Her heart would not stop beating, and she recreated in her mind the masculine beauty which was overcoming her, the beauty which she had plotted to overcome.

"He mustn't know," she whispered to herself; "he must never know." She who had been married and a mother, casually courted, ill treated for nearly twenty years, at last she knew love. She knew it, guilty, horror stricken, disarmed.

"He must never know," she murmured to herself voluptuously, pressing her hands against her breast as if her heart had taken wings and sought to escape into the blue.

Noel was puzzled by his mother, for she did not come to Abbas Place every day, nor did she always seem to want him. "You're busy, my boy," she would say. "I mustn't take you away from your work."

"Look here, mother, what do you do with yourself in lodgings at Shotworth? It isn't a frisky place."

"I'm quite happy, thank you," said Mrs. Temple. "When I want you I'll send for you."

In fact, she had returned to the farm and once again Ring had shown her the piggeries and the kitchen garden, for he was a simple man with a limited range of entertainment. Then he had cantered into Shotworth on a horse that was too small for him; next day he called with a car and, to her horror, took her through the Gresford estate, fortunately unperceived.

The situation came to its head in a fortnight, but Ring's proposal was peculiar. "Look here," he said, "I don't know your name."

"Marjorie."

"Marjorie what? Why, you've got the same name as that she-devil at Abbas Place." He considered her with a certain anxiety. She tempted him as had no woman for many years, but the memory of Lady Gresford had brought up before him Rosalind, for whom he cared not at all. His tone changed: "I hate those people. They've got a nasty, stuck-up daughter, who'll marry some young sprig." His tone grew angry: "It's hateful, living in the country and being inferior."

"Don't be absurd," said Marjorie. Indeed, she was revolted, for there was nothing inferior in this big man.

"Yes, we are inferior, men like me," he growled. "Still, damn 'em, let them stay on their pedestal. Let's be happy while we can. Marjorie, you've driven me crazy in a fortnight. I love you. I've got to have you. Will you marry me?"

Before she could reply an enormous arm curled round her shoulders, drew her close so that she could smell the smoky tweed, feel against her cheek the beating of his heart. She was paralyzed by an immense delight; she wanted him, and as she raised her face to his she forgot Noel. She was a woman now, motherhood forgotten. But as he bent to kiss her she remembered and pushed him back with unexpected strength.

"Yes," she said, "I know. But I can't marry you."

"Why not?" said Ring, rather angrily, for he was not accustomed to being withstood by women.

"I can't. I'm only a poor widow. You're a land owner. How can I come to you, with all your acres, when I haven't got as much as would make a grave?"

"Acres be damned," said Ring. "It's you I want. What are you talking about land for? What's it got to do with us?"

"Ah, land!" she whispered, quiescent in his arms. "I'd love some land of my own."

"All right," said Ring. "I'll give you five hundred acres on your wedding morning. Then you'll have some land of your own, but, mind you, I must farm it. You'd make a poor job of it yourself, you silly wench."

"Will you really?" she whispered. "Any land I like?"

"Any land you like."

"Then give me Pan Farm," she said.

He released her suddenly, standing back, shaken by a suspicion he could not analyze. Why did she want Pan Farm? He'd talked to her about it. He suspected a plot. "Why Pan Farm?" he asked.

"I can't tell you," murmured Marjorie. "I want it more than anything in the world. Tom, is it any use to you?"

"No. I'd be glad to be rid of it. It's out of the way and wastes the time of the men. I've only kept it to spite that she-devil."

"Don't spite her. Why not sell it to her?"

"O, perhaps I will, after all. But why do you care, Marjorie?"

"Tom, I do care. I can't tell you. You'd think me a little fool if I told you. But if you love me, give it to me to do what I like with."

He hesitated, but she laid her hand upon his shoulder, and slowly it climbed to stroke his cheek. Uttering a low cry, half a sob, half an oath, he caught her in his arms, pressing her against him, burying his lips in the rumpled, scented hair.

AS they came out of the church at Shotworth, attended by Noel, who was amazed and rather sullen, thinking it silly that women of his mother's age should trifle with love, Marjorie turned to her husband and said: "Tom, before we leave on our honeymoon will you do something for me? Will you drive me and this young man, who's now your son in a sort of way, to Abbas Place? I want to have a word with Lady Gresford before we go."

"Mysteries again," said Tom Ring, laughing, "but I've got you, so I don't care."

Lady Gresford saw Marjorie alone. "I congratulate you," she said. "He's obstinate, but a good fellow. It was nice of you to come to see me before going away."

"Yes," said Marjorie. "I had something to do." From her bag she took some papers, which she laid before Lady Gresford.

"What's this?" said the older woman. "A conveyance of Pan Farm? What's this for?"

"It's yours if you still want to buy. Only there's a condition. You must let Noel marry Rosalind."

"What!" cried Lady Gresford. After a while she added calmly. "It looks as if I couldn't get that land except in exchange for Rosalind. Noel wants to marry her! What does Rosalind say about it?"

"Look," said Marjorie, nodding toward the window. Indeed, the moment of discovery had come, for in the thin shrubbery at the back of the Italian garden could be seen two figures, hand in hand.

"They were born for each other on Christmas day," sighed Lady Gresford. "Besides, it looks as if Pan Farm were too strong for me."

Then there was a knock at the door. Tom Ring was growing impatient: with downcast eyes, a youthful flush upon her cheeks, Marjorie went to the man she loved.

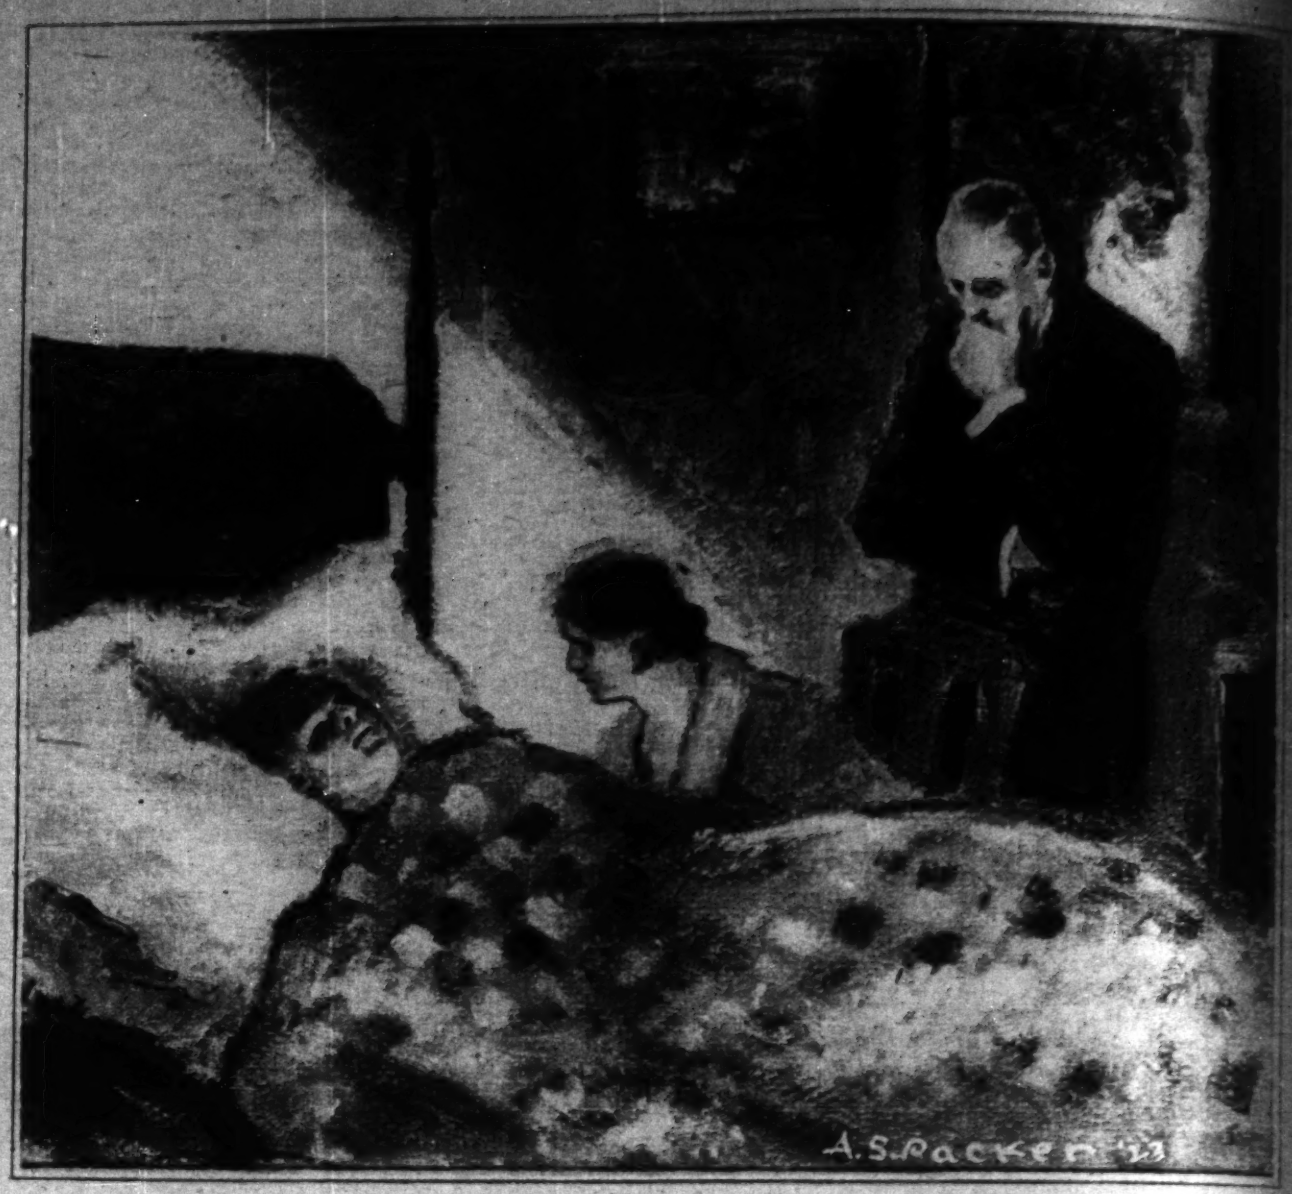
When We Married the Doctor

by Mary F. McGuire

Little Did the Good Physician Suspect the Sinister Designs Harbored Against Him by Two of His Patients.



The flame flickered and burned low.

WHEN Dr. Angel climbed into his muddy, weary car in front of the Brice house he little suspected that he was the topic of conversation there.

He was wondering whether he could go to Worth's farm, six miles out of Fairfield, to see Jem, then stop at Turner's to see how Jenny was making it, and care for the other twelve cases in town by 8 o'clock that night. Dr. Angel, as you may suspect, was a very busy medical man. He and the two other doctors of Fairfield were fighting the influenza which raged through the countryside, taking a rather heavy death toll.

He was the senior doctor of the community. Most of the younger people he knew had been assisted by him into this world. He was gray and ruddy. His blue eyes were wise and kind. His mouth was large and smiling. When you were sick and he came into the room, you agreed with yourself that you couldn't possibly feel as badly as you thought you did. And he was a bachelor. People couldn't understand this, the women especially. When he was asked about it, as he was many times in a tentative, smiling manner, he always gave as his excuse that he was too busy to marry. He lived in a white house on the crest of the hill on High street, sharing the great place with Matilda Breen, his ancient housekeeper.

Matilda suited Dr. Angel perfectly. She was 70, a little deaf, and very easy-going. She kept the house in fair condition and she never argued with him about his personal habits. When he lost a button he used a safety pin. When he lost two buttons he increased the number of pins in that proportion. When he lost more, he put on another pair of trousers and mentioned to Matilda that he needed some buttons. Matilda sewed them on. If he was busy when a meal was ready, he simply disregarded Matilda's information to that effect and Matilda put it back without a word. When he was ready for it Matilda took it out of the stove and gave it to him warmed over. Of course there were disadvantages. The potatoes would be soggy and the meat a trifle hard. But Dr. Angel had always been a bachelor, so he didn't mind it as much as one might think.

The Misses Brice, who were discussing Dr. Angel speculatively as he stepped into his car, are a little difficult to describe. The term "spinster" hardly fitted them, and besides, in these "modern" days, it is almost obsolete. They weren't bachelor girls, either. A bachelor girl brings to mind a picture of an independent young woman who has sacrificed domestic happiness for a career or a view or something.

Fairfield probably described their status about as well as could be done. Fairfield called them "the Brice Girls." The Brice girls were orphans, but hardly in need of parents. Fanny, the elder, was 44, and Hope, her sister, just three years younger. Fanny was stocky, strong, good looking in a healthy sort of way, and very material. Hope was delicate and spirituelle. She was interested in "the higher things," wrote poetry for the Fairfield Free Press, and taught piano for diversion. They were comfortable financially, and both had escaped or had been overlooked by matrimony, whichever way you care to express it.

This was a strange thing. It always seems strange when a woman doesn't marry. I don't know why, but it always does. Both girls were considered "quite pretty" in their younger days, and they were still easy to look at. Perhaps it was because of their habit of giving each other all their love. They were utterly unlike. Fanny all her life had worshiped and championed her more delicate sister. She brooded over her and took great pride in the younger girl's accomplishments. Fanny was a born housekeeper, kept a speckless kitchen, and the fame of her cooking was spread over Taylor county.

Hope was artistic. She, too, was a fair housekeeper, but it was not her forte. She gave the elder sister all her confidence, read her poems to her, and allowed her to do most of the housework because Fanny wished it so.

THEY had known Dr. Angel for thirty years and they remembered when he first came to Fairfield, a young, brisk, and very earnest doctor whose outer office smelled slightly of the new sheepskin diploma which he had just received from his medical college and which hung facing the door. Fanny was 13 then, and Hope 10. The doctor, I should judge, was 25. That would leave him 55 now, wouldn't it?

Of course they had admired him always. He tended them in all their ills and he was at the deathbeds of both their parents. So it was natural that they should call him when Hope was taken down with influenza, and that they should discuss him while he was attending her. There was so little to talk about in Fairfield.

It was along toward the end of her sickness that Hope opened the subject again and that Fanny gave it a surprising twist. It was just after Hope had taken her medicine and she lay quite still while her sister arranged her pillows. She was so long about it that Hope stirred in faint protest.

"What is it, dear?" Fanny asked.

"I was just thinking," murmured Hope, "that Dr. Angel is so—dependable. Fanny, I began to improve as soon as he took hold of my wrist."

"Hm," answered Fanny, thoughtfully. "He's a good doctor, all right. But he's neglected."

"What do you mean?" asked the startled Hope.

"I mean," Fanny's lips set grimly, "that I don't think Matilda is competent to take care of him. There's three or four buttons off his coat and I think I saw a safety pin peeping out from where his galluses meet his—trousers—on the right hand side."

"No-o," breathed Hope in horror.

"Yes," said Fanny briskly. She became thoughtful. "I wonder," she mused, "why he never married."

Hope lay quiet with her eyes closed so long that Fanny, coming suddenly out of her revery, thought she was asleep. But as she rose to go an ecstatic voice halted her.

"Perhaps—O, Fanny, perhaps he has had an unhappy love affair."

"Fiddlesticks!" disagreed the practical sister. "If he'd had we would have heard about it."

"But maybe it happened before he came here."

Fanny was struck by the possibility of this. She sat digesting it and turning it over in her mind. But she was not one to waste time in idle conjecture. She bestirred herself and bent an anxious glance upon her sister.

"Well, maybe so," she agreed. "But I know he ought to have somebody to take care of him. Matilda can't. Now you go to sleep, honey. And when you wake up I'll have some nice fresh milk for you."

But Hope didn't go to sleep. She lay thinking of Dr. Angel. And her thoughts were not of lost buttons nor of safety pins and trousers. Hope knew all about love, never having been in it herself. So she constructed the doctor's romance. The heroine was a delicate maiden whom he had loved dearly. Hope saw them walking together in the moonlight, their arms intertwined. And, one day, Dr. Angel was called to her deathbed. (Hope killed her off in exactly five minutes.) And she lifted up her arms to her lover and died with his kiss on her lips. Then the years flew by, bringing him up to the present time. He was so gentle—and healing. Hope could feel his fingers on her wrist. Somehow the delicate maiden of the romance began to look strangely like Hope herself, and when she fell asleep tears of self-pity were drying on her eyes. Such is the temperament of the artist.

Out in the kitchen Fanny wrestled mightily with a refractory pot which would hold the grease. And while she attacked the enemy she, too, thought of Dr. Angel.

It was a shame, that's what it was, for a busy man like him to be in the hands of an old woman. What could she do for him? O, if Fanny could only have the running of his house for a while! She knew it was terribly dirty. And the doctor with safety pins in his trousers! Poor man. What did Matilda care if he had fourteen safety pins holding up his trousers?

WHEN Dr. Angel visited his patient next morning he gradually became aware of a stealthy but sharp appraisal of his personal appearance. This, he thought at first, was an illusion. He came in briskly.

"Good morning, Fanny," he greeted with the freedom of thirty years' acquaintance.

"Good morning, doctor." Fanny's eyes swept from his face to his collar (which was slightly raveled), to his tie (which was a trifle soiled), then to his vest (which—

...sir!—was minus a button about the middle). "She's better this morning. She slept well all night. Doctor, you look tired."

"Well, I'm pretty busy." He stepped past her into the sickroom. "Ha. Good morning, Hope. Look fine. Feeling better eh? We'll have you up in a day or two."

Hope smiled wanly. "I'm glad, doctor. I get so tired of lying here doing nothing when I could be out enjoying the sunshine. Doctor, you look tired."

It was at about this time that the doctor began to feel himself surrounded by scrutiny. There were eyes to the right of him, eyes to the left of him—— He buttoned his coat, squared his shoulders, and glanced up—to find Fanny looking at the back of his head with disapproval and he remembered that he hadn't had time to comb it well—having been jerked from bed by a frantic summons on a pneumonia case. His hand flew to smooth it down.

"I am feeling a little played out: Called at 4 this morning. Say, what are you girls staring at?"

They looked away and then, a trifle rosy as to complexion, turned on him grieved looks.

"Staring? Why, doctor!" Hope smiled forgivingly at him.

"What did you have for breakfast?" asked the practical Fanny.

Dr. Angel grinned ruefully. "To tell the truth, I haven't had any, yet. Going home now to see if Matilda can't scare up something for me."

"Hmph!" Fanny's rather short nose was straight in the air. "Fine way to prepare a man's breakfast. I suppose Matilda goes 'round frightening eggs into frying themselves for you to eat. And—" She stopped as the doctor stared at her, reminded of something.

"By George, Fanny! It almost slipped my mind. Matilda told me to get some eggs this morning. She forgot yesterday when she was shopping."

The two women exchanged significant looks and Fanny turned on him sternly.

"Dr. Angel, you're going to have breakfast here. It will be ready in fifteen minutes."

He looked at her doubtfully—and fell. "Well, that's fine. It will save me some time. Got a lot of patients to see."

And it didn't take much more than fifteen minutes. Fanny had just been preparing a snack for Hope. And the doctor spent the time in talking to the invalid and making an inventory of the pills in his case.

As she watched him, Hope was filled with a great pity. There were rings under his eyes and his face was drawn and his mouth a trifle pinched with weariness. His body sagged a little as he straightened.

"I am a little tired," he admitted. "But the end isn't yet. The epidemic hasn't reached its crest."

When he went out to the dining room Hope picked up a fountain pen and paper which always lay within her reach, and began a poem to a modern gentle knight who gave his life to the care of the sick and struggled with disease as St. George did against the dragon. She called the poem "The Crusader."

That breakfast! There were ham and eggs glistening on lettuce leaves. And hot biscuits. And plum butter. And rich coffee. The doctor nibbled, then threw discretion to the winds. It was the best meal he had eaten in a month, and he did it justice. When he had finished his second cup of coffee, he looked up at Fanny. His look contained surprise, delight, gratitude, shame, longing and wistfulness.

"Say," he blustered. "I did eat a breakfast. Didn't know I was so hungry. Fanny, you're a great cook!"

"The man was starved," Fanny explained to Hope when he had left. "I don't believe he's had a good meal in years. And the state his clothes are in! Something ought to be done, Hope. I tell you, that old woman is neglecting him dreadfully."

"I noticed it," said Hope. "But did you notice what gentle eyes he had?"

"I saw they were tired."

"And gentle, too, Fanny. From caring for the sick, you know. He gave me an inspiration. Would you like to hear the opening of my poem, 'The Crusader'? It is about his giving his life to the sick and the lowly."

Hope lifted a sheet scarred with interlineations and corrections, and read:

Across the world the dragon casts his spell,
The foul source of disease and grief and death,
And men sink down to blackest, deepest Hell—
Sore-stricken by his loch'rous, poisonous breath.

A gentle prince, full-clad in armour white——

Fanny thought the poem was beautiful. "Be sure to get Matilda in it somewhere," she suggested vindictively. "That woman is certainly an ally of the dragon. If she'd only sew on his buttons and feed him—I mean the doctor."

WHEN the doctor arrived home that night, the dragon's ally complained of pains in the head, a sore throat and a general feeling of depression. So he dosed her and bundled her off to bed. The dragon had challenged "the gentle prince, full-clad, etc.," in his own fortress.

He scared up a sketchy meal and dragged himself to bed, after pulling the telephone over to where he could reach out and get it if any one should call during the night. He sighed at the memory of his breakfast, and there crept into his mind the wistful vision of a home, like that of the Brice girls. Sleep drove it away. Such pictures are not for old bachelors.

Hope, when she started to regain her health, conceived the idea of lengthening "The Crusader" into an epic poem. She was deep in it when the doctor informed them that the need for his services was over. He looked wearier than ever that day and expected to be under continued pressure for two weeks yet.

"But you'll drop in once in a while for a cup of coffee, doctor?" Fanny asked him. "I—we could have it ready in a jiffy. How's Matilda?"

Matilda, it appeared, was making haste slowly to a recovery. Dr. Angel promised to drop in. He kept his promise for two days and ate many good meals. Then the number of influenza victims increased.

Fanny and Hope thought seriously of going in for nursing. The epidemic was at its crest. All the women of Fairfield who had any bent for it at all were at the bedsides of the stricken. They were trying to get nurses from the larger cities without success, because the cities were in the same predicament. There weren't any nurses to be had.

Hope was in the position of an artist working with the local color spread before her eyes. She made the most of her opportunities. "The Crusader" grew rapidly.

Then they learned that Dr. Angel was down. Fanny, out of breath from an unaccustomed sprint up the hill, one morning brought the news to Hope.

"He had it for two days before any one knew it," she explained. "He fainted at Tharon Woodward's place, and they had to take him home. Dr. Mitchell has pronounced it plural pneumonia. It's very bad."

The artist in Hope chuckled at this new incident, even as the woman was appalled.

"What a splendid picture! The White Knight captured by the Dragon," chortled the artist.

"Isn't it terrible! What's to be done?" quavered Hope.

"Well, there's something could be done," stated the normally firm Fanny in an uncertain voice.

"Tell me, Fanny. Whatever it is, we must do it!"

"We could go over there and nurse him."

"What? Why, Fanny!" The astounded Hope gazed open mouthed at her sister. "Why, what would people say?"

"What do we care what they say?" countered Fanny. "They can't get a nurse for him. And besides," she added whimsically, "I guess we've established our reputation for propriety in Fairfield by this time. It's a question of life or death. You wouldn't hesitate a minute, would you?"

"No," agreed Hope, "I wouldn't. What will we bring with us?"

Fanny, with Matilda's weaknesses in mind, had evidently planned it all out on the way home, for she listed the items on her fingers and helped Hope carry them over. As they embraced everything from a hot water bag to a teapot and bulked large, the sight the two presented was utilitarian rather than dignified as they made their way to the white house on the top of the hill. In the bosom of Hope's dress reposed a fountain pen and some paper. There was the episode of the captive maiden who, in her turn, rescued the knight, to be written as soon as circumstances allowed.

If Matilda was an ally of the dragon she had disguised herself well in the likeness of a haggard, tired, feeble old woman who totteringly opened the door to their ring. Fanny felt her hostility against the old housekeeper changing to a sympathy that was tinged with fright. Now that they were there she didn't know what to say.

"We have come——" she began haughtily, then stopped and looked imploringly at her sister.

"We have come," snapped Hope briskly, "to take care of Dr. Angel."

Matilda's old face lit up. "Come in," she welcomed. "You've come just in time. I didn't know what to do. He's so sick: Dr. Mitchell and Dr. Stout are holdin' a consultation. We couldn't get a nurse. And I don't feel extra well myself. They'll be down soon now."

THEY took swift inventory of the parlor to which she led them—and found what they expected. All open spaces were clean enough, but the dust threw out a fringe from under chair and table, to show that beyond the province of the eye it was triumphant and in possession. On the mantelpiece were the charred scars of many burned cigars, bitten into the white wood. And the windows had been washed on the inside only. The housewifely soul of Fanny revolted, and even Hope was moved by the contrast between their own spotless hearth and this man-domicile. From that moment the old régime was doomed.

They but half listened to the tale of the garrulous Matilda, who mixed the narrative of the doctor's illness with incidents of his kindness to her—and the progress of her own sickness. A door opened upstairs and they heard men's voices.

Fanny was defiant as she explained to Dr. Stout the object of their visit. But he nodded understandingly.

"I'm glad," he said simply. "Dr. Angel refuses to allow any nurse to be taken off a case for him. And Matilda is not up to it. I don't know what we should have done."

He took them upstairs to where the patient lay tossing in the big bed, and outlined what they were to do. Dr. Angel's eye expressed a number of things, chief among which were embarrassment and relief.

"What," asked Dr. Mitchell thoughtfully as the two physicians drove away, "what do you think made them come over to nurse him?"

Dr. Stout, who was but five years behind Dr. Mitchell in seniority, looked at him reproachfully. "Mother instinct, of course," he said bruskly. "They're too old for such romantic thoughts. I admire their courage in doing such a thing in the face of this town's wagging tongues."

"I didn't say anything about romantic thoughts," protested Dr. Mitchell.

"No, but you looked it." (Dr. Stout knew nothing of "The Crusader.")

That night the dragon reached out for its victim and Dr. Angel walked in the shadows with a temperature of 104.

He started the battle well equipped, with a good constitution and three nurses. But as the fight advanced beyond the skirmish lines his beleaguered body lost some of its allies. The constitution grappled in mortal struggle with the invader and the number of nurses dwindled to one.

This came about at an early stage. Matilda was too old. She did all in her power, standing watch at the bedside, bringing things from the kitchen, and aiding Fanny, who had taken command. But she was found asleep at her post, overcome with the languor of age. So Fanny relegated her to the kitchen, where she pottered about cooking unsavory messes which they surreptitiously destroyed after complimenting her. Hope held out longer. Her anxiety was tremendous, but her strength was not up to the demands. The routine of the sickroom jarred on her sensibilities. And Fanny saw it.

"You run along, Hope. You're tired. I'll watch now," she would say. Or, "I can't sleep a wink, anyhow. And I'd much rather sit here than lie opened eyed in bed. You'd better get some sleep."

So Hope retired to work feverishly on "The Crusader," which by this time had outgrown a modern novel. She "spelled" Fanny occasionally, of course. She insisted. She would have worked her strength away if she had been allowed.

Dr. Angel fought, that is, his body fought. The doctor himself wandered haphazardly through his past life and the routine of his professional duties. Sometimes he came back and watched himself disinterestedly, expressing professional opinions on his own chances for recovery, just as though he were some one else. Delirium had him constantly now. Fanny administered the ice packs and the medicines and was forced to listen to his innermost life as it was exposed by the sarcastic devil that attends high fever. Dr. Stout, standing at the bedside one morning, became much more grave than he usually was, because he thought he would lose his colleague.

"I don't think he'll make it," he opined after an examination and many questions of the chart which Fanny faithfully kept. "His vitality is ebbing. The fever has taken it from him." He bent down, listening to the labored breathing, and shook his head. "It's the crisis. And I'm afraid I'm afraid."

Fanny and Hope, when he had gone, looked disconsolately at the patient, who was now too weak to more than murmur incoherencies.

"O, Hope," whispered Fanny. "He's going to die!"

"Poor knight!" said Hope with tears in her eyes.

"Poor boy!" said Fanny softly.

She refused to allow Hope to relieve her and chased her out with an "I'll send for you if I need you." Hope, still weeping, planned to change the ending of the poem to a tragic one in which the white knight is slain by the dragon.

Fanny and Dr. Stout kept vigil that night and watched helplessly the fight for life. They saw the flame, whose burning makes a man of a clod, flicker and die down in him. Dr. Stout bent over him and could hear no sound. Fanny, looking into his eyes, read the sentence there and was turned to stone. For a time life struggled to go from the sick man.

The flame flickered and burned low, held, and flickered again. But now it was stronger. It mounted a little and burned steadily, and Dr. Stout sat back and sighed.

"He has passed the crisis," he told her. "He will live."

Dr. Angel slept peacefully. Dawn crept into the room.

DR. ANGEL passed the langurous days of his convalescence in a room so neat and spotless that sometimes he doubted its reality. Here all was peace and contentment. No jarring sounds broke the stillness. And Hope read to him bright and beautiful songs sung by The Underlying Voices, full of the music of life.

But downstairs, out of his sight and hearing, there was turmoil and struggle. The whole house had to be renovated, cleaned and scoured. Fanny set about it over the weak protests of Matilda, who had reached the age when such activity was to be frowned upon as unnecessary and immaterial. Fanny had her way. She tactfully declined Matilda's offers of assistance and went after the job with the passionate joy of the born housekeeper in setting things right. When she routed Matilda from several of her favorite nooks, that old woman retreated glowering to a well used haven which had been rendered almost uninhabitable by recent treatment, and thought of retiring.

The doctor was introduced to a new joy. His rapidly growing appetite was treated to food in delectable forms, wonderfully cooked. Fanny brought it. She would suffer no one, not even Hope, to prepare a meal for him. You see, she had been deeply complimented by his appreciation of the ham and eggs.

Now he never said anything. But he looked—O, how he looked!—at what was brought, and later, at the very naked plate on which it had been brought. Fanny missed most of this. She never lingered in the room Hope, the poetess, was the one for him now. She would sow in his fallow mind beautiful thoughts. Besides, Fanny had so much to do downstairs.

So the days delightful passed, bringing to the doctor his accustomed strength, and to Hope, at length, her reward. She told Fanny about it. It seems that just as the doctor had finished eating, Hope had finished a poem on the inner life of the soul. It ended with a description of heaven.

For Smoother Powdering

Back of your powder should be the essential foundation of good powdering; namely, your foundation cream. Pompeian Day Cream does for your powder two important things—it makes your powder go on more smoothly, and makes it stay on for hours.

Pompeian Day Cream is a disappearing cream that forms the most ideal foundation for powdering. Apply it carefully, covering every bit of skin that you will later powder. It will apparently disappear under your fingertips, but really it leaves a delicate film to which your powder adheres.

Pompeian Beauty Powder goes over this little film with uniform smoothness. This powder is exceptionally adherent and comes in Rachel, Naturelle, White, and Flesh shades.

Next, an artistic touch of Pompeian Bloom—the rouge compact that is made in Medium, Dark, and Light rose shades, and in Orange tint.

Then the finishing note for beauty, the discreet application of Pompeian Lip Stick, giving the lips a fresh, youthful appearance.

For ten cents we will send you all of these:

1. The 1924 "Honeymooning in the Alps" Beauty Panel as described above. (Would cost from 50c to 75c in an art store.)
2. Sample of Pompeian Day Cream (vanishing).
3. Sample of Pompeian Beauty Powder.
4. Sample of Pompeian Bloom (non-breaking rouge).
5. Sample of Pompeian Night Cream.

What shade of face powder wanted?_____

"I guess this is as near heaven as a man ever gets," the doctor had said.

"Fanny," continued Hope; "he was gazing down absently at his plate with the most rapturous look on his face! He is so artistic. I never knew it before."

Fanny tried to be interested, but she was thinking on the advisability of attacking the inner office and surgical instruments. She ended by doing it. The house was in a wonderful state of order and neatness. So many things were in their proper places that it was going to be impossible for the doctor to find anything.

THEN Matilda gave notice. She informed Fanny that she was going to retire and live in a little cottage on the edge of town which the doctor had purchased for her.

"Don't seem as I can be comfortable any more," she querulously complained. "There's gettin' to be too much stirrin' 'round here for an old woman."

Fanny pleaded with her to no avail, and, frightened, she left the old woman in possession while she told the doctor. He took the news with admirable fortitude. He was in the state of convalescence which worries refuse to enter. But Fanny did a lot of worrying.

"What will he do when we are gone?" she asked her sister. "He'll have no one to take care of him."

"I can't imagine," replied Hope absently. She was busy rescuing the White Knight from the Dragon after everyone had given him up as slain. But Fanny's next remark brought her thudding back to earth.

"Hope," she announced solemnly, "we ought to marry the doctor."

"Fanny!"

"Somebody has to watch over him. He's so careless about himself."

"But we both can't marry him!"

"Hope!" Fanny blushed at such an unmaidenly thought. "Wherever did you get such an idea? I was thinking you would do it, dear. You're young and talented and pretty. He likes to have you read to him. You could be his companion and discuss his patients with him, and talk of artistic things. And I could do the housework." Here a terrible thought struck her. "You wouldn't—O, Hope!—you wouldn't leave me if you got married, would you? Whatever would I do!"

"Of course not," Hope reassured her tenderly. "You're my dear sister." Hope liked the idea. And the more she thought of it the better she liked it. She kissed Fanny and went upstairs to be by herself and think it out. She sat down and, for the first time, realized that it was all coming out just as she had written it in the poem. She walked over to the dresser and looked long at her image in the mirror. She smiled at the brightness of her eyes and the faint red in her cheeks. And frowned at the tiny wrinkles about her eyes and mouth. She rubbed her face tentatively, but the wrinkles had become fixed in the years. This would never do. She took off her waist and went to massaging vigorously. When she had finished she put on her very best and went in to read to the doctor.

She found him staring at the ceiling, a look of calculation on his face. His eyes lighted as she entered. Downstairs Fanny reverently lifted a nether male garment from a huge pile which she had stolen from upstairs, sorted out a button, and thoughtfully sewed it on.

Came the day when Fanny laid out his clothes for him and, in time, he appeared, walking slowly but firmly enough. Both girls congratulated him and Hope gave him her arm to lean on. Fanny went down to the kitchen and soon her joy burst forth in what might be termed, with some imagination, a song. It was about a maiden dying in her youth and her lover sat on her grave wailing. But Fanny didn't mean it that way.

Upstairs the doctor, panting a little, sat down and addressed Hope.

"Hope," he said in a trembling voice. "I'm a lonely man."

"Yes, doctor. I know. I'm so sorry."

He looked at her gratefully. "I never knew how lonely I was until you girls came over and cared for me. I don't know what I can do to repay you. I can't repay you!"

"Why, doctor, it's a small thing. Haven't you given your life to caring for the sick and the lowly?" (quoting from "The Crusader.") Hope's eyes were shining.

The doctor looked at her and then away. He pulled at his collar, blushed, and spoke stumblingly.

"Hope, I'm in love!" his eyes [illegible] into hers.

"Yes, doctor." Hope's voice was like a velvet hand caressing him.

"I know it's hopeless," he continued, encouraged. He whirled on her with sudden resolve.

"Do you think——" he asked, glowing anxiously. "Do you think, if I told her, she would consider me?"

Hope felt a warmth enfold her. Her eyes dropped before him. "I know she would, doctor," she murmured. "I know she would." Why shouldn't she know, she thought, when it had already been decided on? She wondered if he noted the new dress she was wearing.

DOWNSTAIRS in the speckless kitchen Fanny was sewing a diagonal rent in the doctor's best coat. She still crooned the sad story of the unhealthy young maiden and the grief-stricken young man, but her thoughts were not on the song. She was thinking of what this coat had seen and of its age and probable durability. From that her mind went to the immediate future. It was so happy and rosy. Here was her dear sister happily married. And the doctor content. She saw herself working busily in this big house, caring for the bride and groom. The doctor was wonderful. He was just a big boy. She smoothed down the site of the late rent, looked closely at it, and rubbed her cheek upon it slowly—lovingly. And put it from her swiftly as the door opened unevenly, propelled by a hesitant force behind it.

"Fa—Fanny!"

"Doctor?"

"Fannywillyoumarryme?"

She stared at him, her world revolving crasily. "I thought—Hope—Doctor! Does Hope know this?"

"She sent me down," he told her simply.

She sat back nervously staring at the stove until the silence weighted the room. There came a step, or rather a shuffle. It drew near and she looked up into the doctor's face. His lips were twitching and his eyes were wild, but somewhere about him was an air of determination.

"Fannywillyoumarryme?" he repeated mechanically, and she saw that he was trembling.

"O, doctor," from against his left lapel. "I knew one of us would, but I didn't think it would be me," she sighed, hurling grammar and maidenly reserve from her with one sentence. "Dear," she added a million years later from the same lapel, "there's a button loose on this coat. And—and you must get some new ties."

"Hang the ties. And my name's Jim."

"I could never call you Jim, doctor. Let's go to Hope."

They told the poetess the wonderful tidings, and youth shone all about Fanny, the youth she had not known was gone till it came back again. "You are not angry, dear?" she asked Hope diffidently. "You won't be lonely?"

"Of course not," answered Hope, and kissed her. "I have my work."

The Fairfield Free Press began to print serially an epic poem, "The Crusader," the week the doctor and Fanny were married. It was a beautiful story of a white knight who spent his life fighting—well, you know most of it. There was a slight change at the end. The captive maiden didn't marry the white knight, after all. She spent the rest of her life on a quest.

It was when Virgil Haddock, editor, came up to interview Miss Hope Brice, the author of "The Crusader," that the historic landmark of Fairfield was born. The author herself cited it for the first time and thus achieved the immortality which she might otherwise have missed.

"When we married the doctor," she said in the course of the interview, "I decided to devote all my time to literature."

"'When we married the doctor!' Say, that's rich." Virgil told it as a choice bit of humor and it spread over all the town. But in time the humor died out of it and it became the solemn masterdate that it is in Fairfield today.

Go into Fairfield and ask when any certain event happened. A native will study over your question and then, ten to one, he'll say cautiously:

"Let's see. That happened in the spring the Missouri overflooded its banks and raised such Cain down in Maryville. And that was the year after the Brice girls married Dr. Angel."

MCGRAW, Sandy, and Enid went up to find the stalwart captain smoking on the wheel-box. Enid met his inquiring look with a frank and steady gaze.

When the captain had gone below Sandy said to the surrounding atmosphere: "Well, of all the tangled trails I ever got mixed up in, this business takes the money. Are you an honest girl or are you not?"

"Both, Mr. MacCall. I'll go through with it."

"Isn't that playing it pretty low down on our rescuer?"

"You may think so, and it's very possible that for a while Capt. Smith may think so, but he'll change his mind about it before the hand is played out."

"Do you believe McGraw meant to trim him?" Sandy asked.

"No. I'm sure it was real money that Mr. McGraw put in his safe."

"Then you think that Luis got wise to what was going on and engineered the theft?"

"Somebody got wise to it and I think I know who that was. I believe that Luis was merely paid to grease the skids—help things along."

"Will you tell me whom you suspect?"

"Yes—before we part. You see it was a double deal and a pretty big one. They not only got McGraw's money but about a hundred thousand dollars' worth of booze."

"And you think that you know who's back of it?"

"I'm sure of it."

"Then why not say so?"

"Because I want my patent. I came to Mr. McGraw's on the trail of that."

Sandy was silent for a moment, then barked on another trail. "Do you think there's any chance of the captain agreeing to McGraw's proposal that you go his bond?"

Enid almost laughed. "I'm sure he will."

"Modest young person, aren't you. Why so sure?"

"He's fallen in love with me, I think."

"Dear me. Did he tell you so?"

"Women don't have to be told those things."

"But with all due modesty of my own," Sandy said, "isn't it possible that he might consider me in the nature of an obstacle?"

This time Enid did laugh. "Not a serious one."

"And why not?"

"Isn't that playing it pretty low down?"

The Principals:

ALEXANDER MacCALL, "Sandy" to his friends, a young architect. Sandy is in love with HEATHER McGRAW, daughter of DAVID McGRAW, builder and contractor, supposed to be wealthy.
LUIS GARMANDIA, the McGraw butler, a sinister character.
ENID, Heather's pretty maid, who seems to have come from a better position in life.
CAPTAIN SMITH, young owner of a rum running schooner.

The Start of the Story:

Sandy calls upon McGraw to ask for Heather's hand. They hear a woman's weird scream and find the safe rifled. McGraw pretends to drive to town to consult the police. Sandy sees a man come out of the boathouse with the limp figure of Enid thrown over his shoulder. Sandy also is bound and gagged. He and Enid are towed to the end of Long Island sound and set adrift in a dory. They are picked up by a dashing rum runner. A pirate pursues them. Capt. Smith puts Enid and Sandy off in a dory and they get back safely. Heather returns home and amazing stories of the happenings there leave her bewildered.

Capt. Smith's schooner returns and Enid and Sandy go out to it. They find McGraw in Smith's cabin. The captain explains that the $100,000 he received for his rum cargo was counterfeit, and he has returned to demand his money from McGraw, who hired him to run in the liquor. McGraw can't pay him. Capt. Smith believes Enid is McGraw's daughter and knows Heather has $50,000 of her own. McGraw begs Enid to promise to stand good for the sum due Smith. Enid reveals that she is the daughter of Jasper Carruthers, from whom McGraw bought a valuable invention for a paltry $2,500. She agrees to deceive Capt. Smith provided McGraw will return her father's patents to her.

"Because I told him that you weren't. Besides, while very kind and chivalrous your actions weren't precisely loverlike."

"There wasn't any time aboard the schooner."

"There's always time for love."

"A fearful truth. Then perhaps the captain found it."

"He did."

"Well, trust a sailor. Listen——"

McGraw's gruff voice was heard calling, "Come down here, you two."

"Here we go again," Sandy sighed. "What next, I wonder?"

"I think I can guess," Enid said.

They went below. McGraw looked more desperate than ever, while over against the transom stood Capt. Smith with his mouth grimly set and a sort of cold gleam in his steely eyes.

McGraw wasted no time on preamble. He had taken another drink, and this seemed to put a sort of edge to his desperation.

"Capt Smith agrees to accept your bond to protect him from loss on one condition. I tell him that's the same as not accepting it at all."

"You always have had a habit of jumping at conclusions, daddy dear. Since I'm assuming the risk hadn't you better submit it to me?".

"It's ridiculous. He says that he'll trust you if you'll trust him."

Enid looked at the captain with a level gaze that brought a quick, swarthy flush to the face of this gentleman of fortune.

"From what I have already seen of Capt. Smith, I do not hesitate to say that I think him a brave and gallant gentleman, and that I would trust him wholly, at any time and at any place."

Some inarticulate noise that sounded like a curse, but certainly was not, rumbled in the deep chest of the captain. The hard gleam in his eyes softened.

"Well, you'll need to, then," croaked McGraw. "He tells me that he'll trust you to the extent of covering his loss if you'll trust him to the extent of making the run to Cuba aboard his schooner."

Sandy gave a gasp. He had seen that the sailor was a rapid worker, but he had not looked for any such speed as this. Then, glancing at Enid, he discovered her to be unmoved. Not entirely unmoved, perhaps, but fully self-possessed. Her eyes remained fixed steadily on those of the captain.

"As a hostage?" she asked.

"No, Miss McGraw. Call it security."

"Isn't that the same?"

"Not as I see it. This is how I figure it out. Once you lose sight of me you might get to feeling differently about it and that after all no agreement is really binding with a law breaker. But your being aboard to represent your father would make you both active partners in the business, and I'd feel that I had something to swing to. You'd be tempted to change his notion about it as he might if I was out of sight and out of mind."

"I see your point of view, captain," Enid said composedly, "but it doesn't strike me as a very sound security you're asking for. You'd hardly keep me prisoner against my will, being the sort of man you are."

"There wouldn't be anything done against your will, Miss McGraw. You'd be just a business partner, free as air to go or stay as you wished. But I'm banking on your playing square, once you get into the game. That's the sort of young lady I've used you up to be, and that's the sort of man I am. You've nothing to fear from me or anybody aboard my vessel any more than if she was your yacht and I your sailing master."

"I know that already," Enid said.

"I guess we'd better cut out the sentiment and get down to brass tacks," said McGraw. "I've got to raise this money within the next week and cable the amount to Capt. Smith at Havana. He's to cable me when he arrives. He feels, and I can't blame him after what's happened, that once down there he might as well whistle for his money for all the hold he'd have on me. But that with my daughter aboard I'd come across."

Enid laughed. "Then actually I'm security," she said. "But what's going to happen, captain, if for some reason the money shouldn't be forthcoming?"

"I'm betting that it will," said Capt. Smith.

ENID turned and looked at Sandy. He was standing with his back against the bulkhead, a disgusted witness of this transaction and by his very acquiescence a party to it. And yet for the life of him he could not determine on what course to take. Here were three persons in agreement on a transaction that was not only entirely illegal but fraudulent where one corner of the trio was concerned.

Then as he glanced at the face of Capt. Smith it became perfectly evident to Sandy that of the three this hardy mariner might be the most content with it, fraud or no fraud. The man was playing for a bigger stake and one of far greater value to him than the compensation of his money loss. He had fallen in love with Enid. His urgent desire was to be given the chance of winning her, and so far as thinking her to be McGraw's daughter, that identity might be considered rather a liability than an asset.

Sandy's eyes passed to Enid. He had already formed his estimate of that young person, and it did not include qualities of meanness or deceit. He did not believe that Capt. Smith was destined to be the loser by any fraud on Enid's part.

He decided to hold his peace.

All three men were now awaiting Enid's decision. She did not keep them waiting. With a frankness that had about it something heroic, she turned to Capt. Smith and asked:

"What if this money should not be paid? What if this were all a trick? Would you want to hold me indefinitely or would you want to send me home and take the loss?"

Capt. Smith's answer boomed out without the slightest hesitation. "I'd want to hold you—but only if you wanted to be held."

"Then—I'll go," Enid said.

Here, now, were three parties in a conspiracy to defraud a man who was himself engaged in an unlawful traffic. And of them all it is safe to say that the only one whose position was entirely passive and who had nothing whatever to gain from the crooked business of intrigue and counter intrigue felt actually the most humiliation and disgust at being tangled up in it.

As they were set ashore in the dinghy Sandy was unable to decide whether he was most fool or knave. He compromised by bitterly admitting to himself that he was both.

The accessory to any sort of swindle may under certain circumstances further it enormously by no more than his acquiescence. Merely by keeping his mouth shut. It often happens that he be not required to take any part in it at all, neither to perjure himself nor to make any misleading statement, nor to give so much as an affirmative nod while yet by the absence of any protesting word or action place himself in the position of a confederate, this not only in his own eyes but in the eyes of the law.

A disinterested spectator of a felony or other crime who permits of its perpetration in his presence without protest becomes himself a criminal accessory, both before and after the fact, which unfortunate position would appear to contradict that unwritten law: "Thou shalt mind thine own business." There can be occasions where it is entirely wrong to mind one's own business, whether through cowardice or sympathy, or one's idea of expediency.

And yet here was Sandy, who was neither cowardly nor in any particular in sympathy with any of the three involved, nor yet fearful of disagreeable consequences to himself as the result of his refusing to be a party to this trick, permitting that it should be carried on with his tacit sanction. Asking himself why he had done so, he could find no satisfactory answer.

He did not feel that McGraw was entitled to any more friendly consideration from himself. There are limits to the obligations entailed by favors that have cost the doer of them nothing. Also, Sandy no longer thought that he should care to become the son-in-law of such a man. He was very sorry for Heather, who was not to be blamed for her father's actions. But Sandy owed her nothing.

Enid now appeared in the light of a tricky, unscrupulous young person, clever and resourceful, but ruthless in attaining an objective that she felt to be her right. And as for Capt. Smith, this hardy mariner now appeared to be precisely what he had characterized himself, "a sea-going sucker."

Perhaps it was his disgust at the whole affair that had kept Sandy silent as much as anything else. But there was another and more potent factor quite sufficient to induce him to carry on with that part of it that concerned himself, this to certain natures one of the strongest incentives that exists—the desire to get even. He had been made a fool of by four low grade crooks, held up like a simpleton; manhandled and gagged with dirty waste and bound and thrown into a little boat to be towed off and set adrift and shuttled into all this crooked business. Outwitted by the smooth butler, even when he had perfectly good reason to suspect the man, Sandy had been bundled off with Enid as if he himself were a young girl, and left to the mercy of winds and waves, while these precious scamps had got away with a whole cargo of rum and doubled their stake by the purchase of it with the counterfeit money.

This fact was now the focus of Sandy's smouldering rage. He told himself that a man with more wit and resource could not only have rescued Enid, but possibly have retrieved the money. A keen investigator might find it easily possible to retrieve the money now, since it had not been paid for the consignment of rum, and must be still in the possession of the thieves, and Sandy did not believe them to be very far away. The chances were, he thought, that they had some connection with the contrabandists, who might from time to time run cargoes in that region.

And now these three men would scarcely take the trouble to shield themselves from the arm of the law, because they knew perfectly well that McGraw was in no position to invoke the assistance of the law. Neither would they fear his personal vengeance because he was an amateur playing a lone hand in that desperate game, with no organization back of him nor any gunmen or highjackers or double faced officials at his command. They would consider their victim as helpless to retaliate as a sea turtle spinning on its domed back.

But Sandy was perfectly free to act on his own initiative if only to get even, and to some natures that "only to get even" means a tremendous lot. The chances are that most men are waiting to get even with somebody some time. In the present case, Sandy would no doubt have abandoned the idea of taking further independent action as not only hopeless but apt to precipitate McGraw's misfortune, if it had not been for one consideration. He had a strong intuition that Enid was holding something back. That she knew more about the affair than she had admitted, and that she might even at that moment know where this mob could be located.

Sandy thought of the final words of Luis, "Monday night," murmured as he closed behind him the door of the boathouse. Enid, inside and fully conscious and alert, might have got the fore end of that last word. Sandy at the time had thought it referred to her own disposition, but in view of subsequent events now believed it to have reference to another rendezvous. He wanted to question her about it. Now that she had achieved her own purpose, there seemed to be no reason why she should hold anything back.

Captain Smith had said that he wanted to go out with the last of the ebb this night. Enid had agreed to go aboard as soon as it was dark. The Yankee skipper, having no more contraband aboard, had nothing much to fear from being overhauled by the port authorities, but there was always the off chance that the schooner might be recognized by her pursuers of the morning of the day before.

The opportunity to talk with Enid alone did not immediately present itself. She required of McGraw that he now go with her to his local lawyer and make the transfer of her father's patent process to herself, "for one dollar and other valuable considerations." This assignment McGraw agreed to execute forthwith, though raising the objection that the papers were in his city safe deposit vault. Enid informed him that she had copies of all these papers in her trunk.

SANDY took them both to the law offices in his car. He left them there, telling Enid that he would return to the landing at about dark to see her off. This friendly gesture seemed to touch her. She agreed a little eagerly to meet him there at half-past eight.

Sandy then drove back to McGraw's feeling that he owed Heather some sort of explanation for the rather cavalier way in which he knew she felt herself to have been treated. Katie informed him briefly that Miss Heather had returned to the Talbots'.

Sandy returned to his office. His part of the work on the two fine country houses that he had been detailed to supervise by his firm was nearly finished, requiring no more than occasional interviews with his clients and passing from time to time on details of finishing. He was also working on the plans of a prospective order not as yet ratified.

McGraw came in as he was writing some letters.

"Well, that's that," said this sorely driven man. "Was there ever such a rotten fantastic mess?"

Sandy gave his shoulders a hunch. "That's what you get for playing the game out of form," he said unsympathetically.

"I know. Serves me right. The worst of it is, there's not a cursed thing I can do to get square with these three-ply crooks. They've got me foul and know it, and must be giving me the laugh. And this Enid girl is just about as slick. It wouldn't surprise me to know that she'd been working in with them to get me where she wanted me."

"Nor me, very greatly," Sandy said, "though I doubt it's the case. They'd scarcely have exposed her to such a risk if she'd been backing their play. That part of it is just a fluke, I think. Like my getting myself nabbed in such a fool fashion."

"Have you seen Heather?" McGraw asked.

"No, she'd already left for the Talbots' when I got back to the house. Went off mad, no doubt, and you can't blame her."

"I don't. Poor girl, she's going to take this mighty hard. I'm leaving for New York in three-quarters of an hour to be gone a couple of days, perhaps. I wish you'd call her up and tell her, Sandy. I'd rather not talk to her until I come back. Then I'll come clean with everything that's happened. But I want to try to get some idea of what I may hope to do first. It's going to be touch and go."

Sandy moved uneasily. "What shall I tell Heather?" he asked.

"Oh, just ask her to sit tight and try not to worry until I get back. Don't say anything that might hurt my credit. Say that I've got an important deal on and mum's the word. I don't know how she's going to take this, but if she's the sort of daughter I think she is, she'll stand by her old dad."

Sandy did not ask any questions nor make any attempt to discuss McGraw's affairs. He did not want to discuss them. McGraw's last act had thoroughly disgusted him. Sandy was beginning to feel more sorry for Heather, but found it impossible to extend his sympathy to her father. McGraw, feeling this chill disapproval, did not attempt to make any excuses or offer any extenuating circumstances. Whatever his faults, he was no whiner, no cry baby.

He left with a brief word of good-by. A little later Sandy went to the hotel for his supper and then, having some time to spare, walked down to the landing in the dusk to keep his appointment with Enid.

The Lady Gay appeared to have been undisturbed. Nobody was about the place at that hour. It grew dark as Sandy waited sitting on a barrel at the side of the boathed. Just below was the ramshackle jetty with a float, and Sandy observed the dinghy of McGraw's yawl had been left tied up there.

THEN, as Sandy was beginning to wonder what had become of Enid, she suddenly appeared on foot around the corner of the shed. Sandy rose.

"Aren't you late?" he asked. "The tide's pretty well out."

"The captain said that if I got aboard by half-past nine it would be time enough."

"How about your luggage?"

"Most of it has gone aboard. There are some things in the boat. I told the captain you would be here to set me off and bring the boat back. It is very kind of you to come down and see me off, Mr. MacCall."

"It isn't altogether kindness, Enid. I think you're a fine, plucky girl, and one that's got a lot of sense, though I can't say that I approve this trick you're playing on Captain Smith."

"I hate it myself, Mr. MacCall," Enid said earnestly. "I would never have agreed to it if I hadn't made up my mind that he wasn't going to lose anything by it."

"What if McGraw lets him down?" Sandy asked. "I'm none too sure about McGraw."

"No more am I, Mr. MacCall, but for one thing I don't believe that either he or his daughter would want to try to hold out on us. Miss Heather's really a fine square sort of girl if she is a little spoiled. When she learns the facts she'll not only back her father up but make him go through with it."

"For another crooked deal," Sandy muttered.

"It may not come to that, Mr. MacCall. But no matter what happens, I don't intend that Captain Smith shall suffer from the trick I've played him."

"Qui vivra, verra," Sandy quoted. "This is a pretty daring thing you're doing, but I must say I think you'll be as safe with Smith as if he were just as he said, the sailing master of your own yacht, and the Lady Gay was that."

"So do I, Mr. MacCall. I'd trust him anywhere."

"Well," said Sandy, "that's not what I wanted to talk to you about. When Luis went out of the boathouse he turned back as he was closing the door and said something that I didn't catch, and then 'Monday night.'"

Enid nodded. "I remember. It struck me at the time that it must have something to do with me."

"That's what I thought, but now I'm not so sure. Because you see Luis went directly to the float and made fast the dinghy to the stern of the launch. That would look as if they intended to take you out and set you adrift, or both of us, no doubt, because Luis had been keeping his eye on me and guessed that I was going to investigate the boathouse. He must have counted on just what happened. Not a very flattering opinion of me. Now, Enid, do you remember what was said before that 'Monday night'?"

ENID appeared to concentrate her mind. "I heard it," she said. "It was something to do with a farm—it didn't make any particular impression on me, though I heard it distinctly and wondered what it meant. Now, what was that silly word. It's right on the tip of my tongue."

"Try to remember," Sandy implored.

"Wait a minute—it began with K—or C—Car—Cart—O dear."

"Don't try to force it. Take your time. I've got a hunch it was the name of a place. Some spot fixed as a rendezvous or something of the sort."

"That's it, Mr. MacCall. It must have been that. Now that you suggest it, I remember hearing something about somebody expected there at that time. The man they called 'Pug' said to Luis, 'She'll be there, all right.' I took it for granted he meant some woman in the gang, but it might have been——"

"A boat," Sandy said. "Another cargo of rum. For heaven's sake, try to remember. I used to cruise up and down the Sound a lot when I was a boy. I know every darned spot along the shore. Try to think, Enid."

"Im trying. The more I try the less I get, Cord—not cord wood—something like that."

There came at this moment from the Lady Gay sounds that made further delay inadvisable. The two who were making such a desperate effort to remember an elusive name heard the clatter of the windlass pawls and the clank of the chain cable as the schooner began to heave short preparatory to weighing anchor and starting out.

"Smith's getting his anchor," Sandy said. "You ought to be getting aboard. Come on, let's go. Don't try to think so hard. Maybe it will come to you on the way out."

They started down for the float. Sandy's experience had taught him the maddening difficulty of forcing one's memory to the recollection of some word that had been shuffled thoughtlessly into the myriad pigeonholes of the brain. The more frantically one searched for it, the more it seemed to slip under other documents, like a nimble, mischievous elf evading the fingers of the intelligence, or a globule of mercury that coyly escapes the compressing digit.

They got into the dinghy. Looking out across the sheen of still water, Sandy discovered a figure standing motionless by the quarter rail. That would be Captain Smith awaiting the receipt of his Security. No doubt he was able to perceive the activity at the float. The clank and clatter of chain and pawls continued without intermission.

Sandy cleared his thwart of sundry packages and bundles, Enid's provision for this bizarre voyage. Seating himself, he picked up the oars and thrust the boat clear. Enid in the stern sheets was leaning forward, hands against her temples, striving impotently to collar that dodging little imp of a word.

Sandy dipped his oars and began to pull out. He did not dare try to accelerate Enid's mental process. Pulling with a choppy stroke, he watched her feverishly. Enid's stubborn brain delivery appeared to be on strike.

THE Lady Gay was light, and as fishermen do not carry accommodation ladders for the convenience of lady visitors, Enid had declined the sea ladder dropped overside in the water.

Sandy, by this time despairing of her being able to give him the clue in that one recalcitrant word, pulled up to the sea ladder. Captain Smith's broad shoulders cut a black square against the deep indigo sky.

"Been waiting for you just as hard as I could," he said a little grimly, for it was several minutes past the time limit.

"I hope you didn't think I'd lost my nerve, captain," Enid answered.

"No, ma'am. But I thought maybe your father had lost his."

"No fear. We're all going to see this thing through." Enid starting up the ladder, Sandy holding the boat close in. It was maddening to see this possible clue slipping out of his reach, but there did not seem to be any help for it. Captain Smith could hardly be expected to wait indefinitely for an arbitrary word that had not held any significance for her.

The noise of the winch stopped suddenly. A nasal voice from forward called "Short up, sir."

"Heave in," Captain Smith ordered, and the clank and clatter began again.

The captain leaned over the rail to help Enid over it. "Jump down and pass up the duffle," he ordered. One of the crew slipped down the ladder to hand up the parcels and packages. As the last of them was taken from the boat, Sandy called to Enid:

"Haven't got it yet, have you?"

"No. It will probably come to me a few minutes too late."

"What's that?" asked the captain.

"We've been trying to think of the name of a place that one of those thugs that held us up said to another," Sandy explained. "It didn't seem to mean anything at the time, but we've got an idea now it was a meeting place."

Enid made another futile effort. "It was something that belonged to a farm—Cor—Cor—not cord wood."

"Cornfield," said Captain Smith. "Cornfield Point, maybe, or Cornfield Light vessel."

Sandy gave a little whoop of exultation. "Of course, I might have known it. Cornfield Point over here to the westward. That does it. I remember now, I heard that myself." He shoved clear. "Now I've got something to go on."

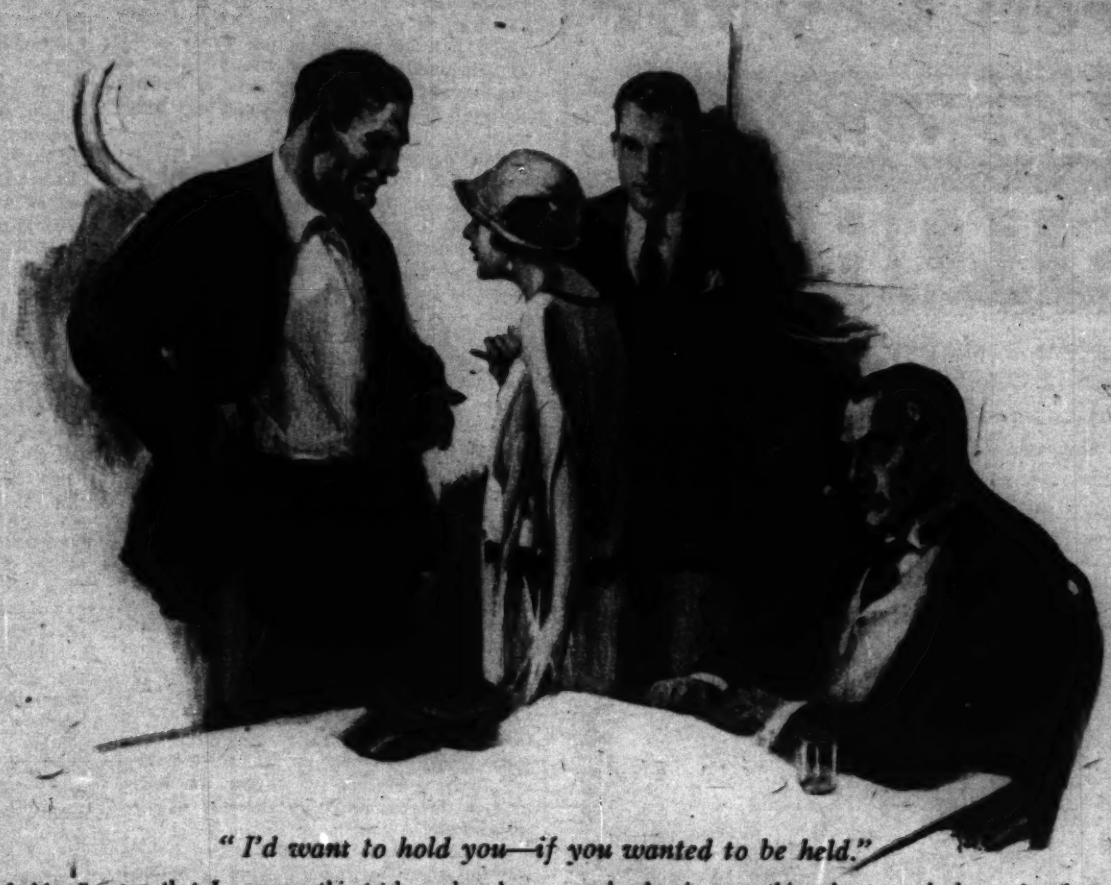
"No," Enid cried. "It wasn't that exactly. Wait. I've got it—Corn Crib—Corn Crib—that's it."

"No such animal," said Captain Smith. "It must have been Cornfield Point."

"No, it wasn't three words—it was Corn Crib."

"Nothing of that name on the chart," Captain Smith said, and flung back over his shoulder: "Start the engine."

Sandy dipped his oars. A surge of memory swept over him. The Corn Crib—of course. It was years since he had heard or thought of the Corn Crib. That would be the word, the place. And this was "Monday night."



"I'd want to hold you—if you wanted to be held."

To the Strong the Fair

He swung the dinghy sharply. "Au revoir," he called. "Bon voyage——"

HEATHER arrived at the Talbots, with whom she had spent the week-end, to claim their hospitality again.

"I got home to find everything in a frightful mess," she said, "and I just didn't feel up to it. That Hidalgo-looking butler of ours started in to act like one and dad fired him. My model maid came in after thirty-six hours A. W. O. L. Then dad rushed off on some errand without leaving any word for me and my best beau came over this morning to see him and left again without taking the trouble to say good morning to me or good-by."

The daughter of the house saw something a little deeper than all this in Heather's flushed face and red-rimmed eyes.

"You did just right to abdicate. Teach 'em a lesson. Sandy MacCall has always struck me as being one of these upright, upstage, old fashioned youths, not exactly in the picture nowadays. And what can you expect of a model American lady's maid? There's no such animal."

As the day wore on, with the dawdling idleness that usually follows a week-end of intensive gayety in a rich household of loosely knit conventions, Heather regretted her decision to return. She found herself bored, nervous and, what was worst of all, so consumed with angry curiosity that it was equally impossible to talk trivialities or to fall in with any suggestions for amusement.

One particularly unsettling picture refused to be banished from her mind. It was that of the fishing schooner pushing slowly up to her anchorage while Sandy and her father stared at it in such a spellbound way, and Enid stealing covert glances at the vessel as she made pretense of being busy with her flowers. Heather became more and more convinced that this schooner held the key to all that mystified her. It was unquestionably the vessel that had picked up Enid, with Sandy probably and very possibly Mr. McGraw also. But why had all three made such an effort to avoid her? An effort that she had assisted, in her anger and resentment at being treated like an inconsequential child.

After dinner Heather found that she could no longer stand the strain of suspense and the indignity of neglect. Although she had left word where she was going, her father had not taken the trouble to telephone her, nor had Sandy. They appeared to be satisfied at her keeping out of the way, and this alone was enough to drive her home again. Pride crumbled in the face of anger and overpowering curiosity. She told her chum that she felt herself to be a slacker by leaving the house in such disorder and that she had decided to go home.

So back she started at about nine o'clock of a fine clear starlit night, glad to be once more in active motion. Then, as her high powered little car sped along, it struck Heather that she might be merely returning to the intolerable suspense from which she had that morning fled in anger. What if her father should be absent and she found herself required to pass another span of exasperating hours?

"That schooner was the key to the rotten mystery," she thought and seized upon the indiscreet and for a young girl rather daring plan of driving down to the shore and finding somebody to take her out to the vessel, when she would demand to see the captain, tell him who she was, and insist upon an account of what had happened.

HEATHER acted on this impulse. She approached the landing along the shore of the road to the town and discovered the schooner still at her anchorage. Coming abreast of her, she left her car behind a boat building shed, got out and walked around the building in search of somebody who might set her off aboard.

At the corner of the shed she paused. There was the sound of voices from the landing stage and in the stillness they fell on Heather's ear with entire familiarity. Sandy and Enid were talking down there. Heather discovered then they were in the act of shoving off. More startling still, they appeared to be setting off as if for a voyage, as the bow of the boat, Heather's own rowboat, was piled up with luggage and parcels and things.

The affair had every appearance of an elopement. Heather was struck dumb and she became immediate conscious of an acute distress. She realized all at once that she cared more for Sandy than she had been at all aware of, and that this cavalier treatment hurt even more than it angered her.

For a moment she was tempted to rush on the jetty and call to them. But pride restrained her. She could not let herself cut any such ridiculous figure as that of abandoned sweetheart. Then, as Sandy picked up the oars and started to row briskly out, Heather's strained nerves got the best of her. She sank down on a box against the side of the building, covered her face with her hands and began to cry.

This flood of tears continued for some time. It was checked by the clank and clatter of the chain cable as the schooner began to weigh anchor. Evidently she was about to start out. At this a sort of desperation seized Heather. She found herself in the grip of an imperative desire to confront Sandy and tell him what she thought of his behavior in thus eloping with the maidservant of the girl to whom his past attentions had already given rise to the rumor they were engaged. More than that, Heather had an idea that Sandy had secured the order for two big houses of which he had been the architect through her father's recommendation. This would put him in a position of one who had philandered with a girl for the sake of business opportunity, and, whose purpose achieved, was now on the point of making her an object of ridicule by some sort of affair, whether matrimonial or scandalous, with her pretty maid. Heather hurried down the jetty, hoping to find some sort of a boat. There was only a leaky skiff, this secured with chain and padlock. But at that moment the sound of oars struck her ears. She looked up and in the bright starlight discovered to her astonishment that here was Sandy pulling back with rapid strokes.

The new HOTEL WINDERMERE EAST

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

THE new Hotel Windermere East, on the South Side of Chicago, facing Jackson Park, is one of the finest residential hotels in this country—a beautiful structure rising twelve stories.

The vestibule and entrance foyer are exquisite in their tasteful finish, combining richness with simplicity. The entire ground floor of public rooms is decorated in 16th and 17th century Italian Renaissance. The walls of the Main Lobby are wainscotted in walnut, the ceiling is paneled in an ivory tone, and the floor is of marble covered with seventeen large size Bigelow Austrian Tufted rugs.

The bedrooms and suites are laid out in a variety of arrangements to meet every requirement of transient or permanent guests. They are decorated and furnished in five different color schemes, each elaborately designed to assure perfect harmony. The floors are covered with 27,810 yards of Lowell Axminster carpet, and 600 special worsted Wilton bath mats are laid in the bathrooms.

The halls, averaging six feet wide, are decorated to harmonize with the color scheme of the guest rooms, and the floors are covered with 2,250 yards of wide-width "Hartford-Saxony" carpet.

The selection of these high-grade floor coverings indicates the standard of the furnishings throughout the hotel, and is, at the same time, a striking endorsement of Bigelow-Hartford carpets and rugs, and a testimonial of their beauty, quality and durability. The long, hard wear these fabrics successfully withstand for years in hotel service, constitutes the strongest possible recommendation for their use in private homes where their life would be much longer.

If you find any difficulty in procuring Bigelow-Hartford carpets and rugs, write to us and we will see that you are supplied.

YOU find every quality you have ever wanted in a pipe combined in the Sasieni briar.

Here, in whatever model you like, is the distinguished grace that only the skill of London's most renowned designer, Sasieni, can give a pipe. A comfortable balance, also.

Sweetness on the first puff of the first bowlful comes through the fact that the century-old briar is baked for six weeks, cured of all sap and oil. That baking process is exclusive with Sasieni—his own invention

Cleanliness comes from the patented stem-extension, an aluminum device that stops all juice and crumbs. Pulling out the stem cleans out the pipe. Just wiping the stem-extension cleans it thoroughly.

Imported London-made Sasieni pipes are on sale at men's shops, leading tobacconists' and the stands of clubs and hotels.

MOST BEAUTIFUL of all the beauties in the "Ziegfeld Follies" is Miss Imogene Wilson, according to a recent vote of her associates in the show. Here she is with the crown they awarded her—a duplicate of that once worn by Catherine of Russia.

MRS. THEODORE ROOSEVELT, wife of the assistant secretary of the navy and daughter-in-law of the late Col. Roosevelt, posed in Washington the other day for this quaint new portrait. Before her marriage she was Miss Eleanor Butler Alexander of New York.

NAVARRE
INDESTRUCTIBLE
PEARLS

FIDDLE AND BOW evidently had no terrors for Albert Spalding, even in his early years. He does seem a little impressed by the gravity of things in the youthful portrait herewith, but no doubt that was because he was dressed up. He was born in Chicago, and is now one of the most noted American violinists.

THIS JAUNTY WHEELBARROW had Mr. E. B. Belden at the helm when it had its "pitcher took" some years ago in Milwaukee. The navigator is now Judge Belden, presiding in the Circuit court at Racine, Wis. When he was elected he was known as the youngest judge in the United States, being then only 23 years old.

And now this famous breakfast is served in ten million homes.

Aunt Jemima Pancakes with that old-time Southern Flavor

OVER 500 MILLION Aunt Jemima Pancakes were served last year—pancakes with the same inimitable flavor that so delighted Colonel Higbee and his guests years ago. For Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour is HER RECIPE ready-mixed.

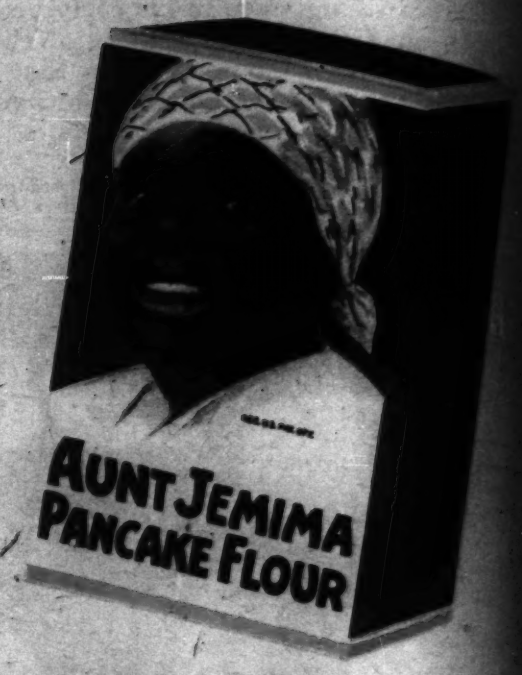
The most popular breakfast. And the easiest to get! Have Aunt Jemima Pancakes one morning; you'll want them regularly.

"I'se in town, Honey!"



THEN—that is, in the days "befo' de wah"—only Colonel Higbee, his family and his guests could have Aunt Jemima's pancakes. But all the South knew about these cakes and Colonel Higbee's mammy cook who made them. His guests simply had to tell their friends and those friends told—well, the same thing is happening today.

Today millions of people are having Aunt Jemima's Pancakes because Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour is her recipe ready mixed and because folks still have to admit that no other pancakes quite come up to these.

For there's a flavor in these Aunt Jemima Pancakes that wins everyone who tastes them—a flavor no other pancakes can have, for we alone have Aunt Jemima's secret recipe.

Just like Aunt Jemima's

Aunt Jemima never used in her pancakes ordinary flour; she always had on hand a special kind, an exceptionally fine grade of wheat flour.

And she added to it smaller quantities of other flours—flours that you can't buy in the stores today.

It is only by milling these flours ourselves, by mixing them just so with the other ingredients of Aunt Jemima's recipe, that we can keep that old-time Southern flavor.

Now it's so easy

Now, to have Aunt Jemima Pancakes, all you do is add water (or milk) to Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour, beat up the batter and bake 'em.

You have perfect pancakes every time; pancakes wonderfully tender, light and fluffy—healthful; pancakes with fine golden-brown color and with a flavor that will make your family want this easy breakfast day after day.

Get a package of Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour from your grocer now. Or use this coupon and we will send you a trial package so you can compare Aunt Jemima Pancakes with the kind you've been having; so you can see for yourself how easy it is to make them, how really delicious they are.

We'll send you, too, a sample package of Aunt Jemima Prepared Buckwheat Flour—ready-mixed and as fine for buckwheat cakes as Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour is for pancakes. Aunt Jemima Mills Company, St. Joseph, Mo.

For delicious waffles. Muffins, too

You've been missing some real treats—and doing unnecessary work—if you haven't been using Aunt Jemima's Pancake Flour for waffles and muffins. Try it, you'll be delighted. Easy recipes on the package.

Special Offer. In return for this coupon and 6[illegible] in stamps or coin (to cover cost of special packaging and mailing) we will send you a sample package of Aunt Jemima Prepared Buckwheat Flour, a sample package of Aunt Jemima Pancake Flour and an interesting folder, "The Romance of Aunt Jemima," with recipes for special pancake treats. If you want the jolly Aunt Jemima family of 4 rag dolls, too—all in bright colors, ready to cut and stuff—send 30c in stamps or coin.

Make your children's Christmas merry with these jolly Aunt Jemima Rag Dolls

There's Aunt Jemima herself; her husband, Uncle Mose (each 12 inches tall); her little boy, Wade; and her little girl, Diana. All in bright colors, ready to cut and stuff. Children love these whimsical dolls; yours will. Read the special offer; send the coupon now so you'll have them in time for Christmas.

OH PAPA, LOOK AT THE BOX THE EXPRESSMAN JUST BROUGHT- IT'S FROM AUSTRALIA AND IS ADDRESSED TO ME-

WELL, WELL- LET'S OPEN IT- I'LL BET THAT'S SOME NICE LITTLE PRESENT FROM UNCLE BIM- LET'S SEE WHAT IT IS-

IT'S FROM UNCLE BIM- GEE- IT'S A FUNNY LOOKING THING-

IT'S A BOOMERANG- "DEAR LITTLE CHESTER BIM:- I JUST WANT TO SEND A LITTLE REMINDER TO LET YOU KNOW THAT YOUR UNCLE HASN'T FORGOTTEN HIS LITTLE NEPHEW- I EXPECT TO BE WITH YOU ALMOST AS SOON AS THIS ARRIVES- HAD QUITE A VISIT WITH SANTA CLAUS AND MENTIONED YOUR NAME".

THIS LOOKS HARMLESS BUT IT'S AS DANGEROUS AS A RATTLESNAKE- THE AUSTRALIAN BUSHMEN CAN CURVE THESE THINGS AND MAKE THEM HIT YOU IF YOU WERE HIDING BEHIND A MERRY-GO-ROUND- I'LL BET ONE BOOMERANG, PROPERLY THROWN WOULD KNOCK AN ELEPHANT SILLY-

IT LOOKS LIKE A GOLF STICK-

DO YOU KNOW HOW TO THROW A BOOMERANG, PAPA?

I'LL SAY I DO- I KNOW HOW TO HANDLE A BOOMERANG LIKE BABE RUTH HANDLES A BASE-BALL BAT- JUST WATCH YOUR PAPA AND HE'LL SHOW YOU HOW THE NATIVES KNOCK DOWN KANGAROOS FROM THEIR PERCH IN THE TALL COCOANUT TREES-

WHEN THE BOOMERANG IS THROWN CORRECTLY IT STRIKES ITS OBJECT AND RETURNS TO THE THROWER LIKE A DOG WITH A STICK- JUST WATCH ME KNOCK THAT CAN OFF THE FENCE- OH BOY!

THE BOOK SAYS TO BE CAREFUL, PAPA-

NOW SEE WHAT YOU DID- DON'T YOU KNOW HOW VERY DANGEROUS IT IS TO TALK WHEN A MAN IS THROWING A BOOMERANG?

OH GEE!

IT'S A GOOD THING THAT OLD GROUCH ISN'T HOME TODAY OR HE'D HAVE A FIT- LAST WEEK YOU BROKE HIS FRONT WINDOW- HURRY UP NOW- BRING THAT BOOMERANG BACK BEFORE SOMEONE SEES YOU-

OH! IT BROKE BOTH WINDOWS-

LOOK AT THAT ONE GO- THAT'S ONE I JUST GOT THE RIGHT TWIST ON- WATCH IT CIRCLE AROUND AND COME BACK TO ME LIKE A HOMING PIGEON FLYING TO ITS NEST- I HANDLE THAT BOOMERANG LIKE A NATIVE BUSHMAN-

GEE! I'M GOING TO GET OUT OF HERE-

GOSH! A FELLOW NEEDS A CYCLONE CELLAR HANDY WHEN HE UNCHAINS ONE OF THESE WOODEN WASPS-

NOW SEE? WHAT DID I TELL YOU? I HOPE YOU'RE SATISFIED- I TOLD YOU NOT TO PLAY WITH THAT BOOMERANG- HOW WOULD YOU FEEL IF YOU HIT YOUR MOTHER WITH A DANGEROUS THING LIKE THAT- WHY DON'T YOU BE CAREFUL?

Fashions Beauty Contests

Not What We Put On, but What We Put Together

by Corinne Lowe

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—The other day I met a friend of mine whom I had not seen for more than a year. She was always the sort of woman likely to wear stubby Oxfords with a costly afternoon frock and to mate a plumed velvet hat with a severely tailored suit. That being the case, my opening commonplaces were almost paralyzed by the transformation wrought by these twelve months.

"Why, Anne," I exclaimed breathlessly, "you look wonderful. What have you been doing to yourself?"

"O," retorted she, "I have just been practicing a little landscape dressing. You see," she added, "I thought there must be something wrong with a woman who spent a thousand dollars a year on her clothes and never succeeded in looking well dressed."

I stared at the blond stockings with the smart patent leather shoes, at her modish cloche and correct gloves, and doubtless all my criticism of Anne's past errors was embraced in this glowing admiration of her present perfection.

This encounter left me with a vivid sense of gratitude for that phrase of "landscape dressing." How many women there are in the world who are in need of the reform indicated by those words! How many Annes all of us include in our acquaintance—girls who spend large sums of money for clothes which they are utterly unable to assemble correctly. It is exactly as if they put up some beautiful Italian villa and then allowed the foreground to be cluttered up with swings and sheds and perhaps a crooked apple tree.

This season the necessity for landscape dressing was never more urgent, for it is an age of accessories, of matching frocks and wraps and hats, of infinite tact in putting together.

Let us take, for example, the question of shoes. To be well dressed today means that we should have at least five or six pairs of shoes. We are obligated to our Oxfords for sports wear. In conjunction with the tailored suit or the simple twill frock the proper wear is pumps—preferably colonial—in gray or black or tan suede. For this suede may be substituted a dull leather—even a dull patent leather. Suede is also a favored fabric for the shoes designed for afternoon wear, but here a greater elaboration of cut and trimming is permitted. When you consider finally the variety of footgear necessitated by occasions after 6 p. m. you will see that the shoetree of today must have many branches.

One hears from Paris that intricate strapping is a thing of the past. In New York this is not the case and one sees many fashionable women clinging to those shoes which make the instep look like the old-fashioned trellis pie. However, it is safe to predict that even on this side the novelty pump is losing its vital quality, and already the plain colonial pump of satin, suede, or patent leather has made great inroads upon our former devastating passion.

If you would understand why this competition is so successful all you need to do is look at the present day buckle. Some of these are of rhinestone, some of jet, some of silver and cut steel. The jet models are exceedingly attractive and a new thought in this domain was brought into relief by a woman standing beside me one day at the horse show. The sparkling black buckles on her black suede shoes were outlined in red jet.

One sees black stockings so seldom these times it is a temptation to write the date and place of their occurrence down in the diary. Of course, there is no definite legislation against them, but at least ten out of every twelve women elect the blond or noisette tones.

To journey abruptly from heels to head there is, first of all, the question of coiffure. As we have all heard, bobbed hair is no longer in favor. If you cannot resist the shears you indulge in the shingle or boy cut. And if you want to gain this effect without sacrificing your locks there are several ways of arranging the hair practiced by our leading artists. The most laudable of such attempts is concentrated upon a twist over each ear that leaves front and back plain as a pike staff.

In Paris and at Deauville last summer I noted many of these boyish coiffures. Yet they were in the minority compared with what I call the snow plow or vacuum cleaner coiffure. This consists of scraping the hair straight back from the forehead—just exactly as if you were getting the top of your head ready for the paper hanger—and then collecting the surplus in a huge knot at the back of the head. It is a charming style for the Latin type of woman with her clear cut features, her ivory skin, and her red rose lips, but those of us who have not such perfect suites of features shrink from this—the most trying of all acid bead fixings. Nevertheless, it is both here and abroad the smartest of smart coiffures.

OTHER VIEWS OF TODAY'S DESIGNS.

I have already spoken of the season's hats, but heretofore I have not commented upon the veil. This is conspicuous in up to date annals, but it is conspicuous because of its absence. The dotted veil—as for it, the sound is remote as those times when everybody copied Gibson's drawings. We have rejected almost completely its kindly services of making us look more beautiful than we are, and if any veil at all is tolerated the model is the kind which is attached to the hat and which just dips down over the eyes. Such veils are in tulle and in net. One sees them on many of the most charming afternoon bonnets.

In addition to being a season of accessories, this is essentially one of coats. In fact any woman who can boast a handsome coat and the proper amount of landscape need not lament a dearth of new frocks. She will pass with the world as being well dressed. So vital is the position of this outer garment in our wardrobe that I am giving another page to the exploitation of the favorite wrap. All of these models pictured are eloquent of the latest developments of the mode and all of them contain suggestions for passing a pleasant Christmas.

At the left is one of the smart black broadcloth models which I mentioned in a previous letter. This has cuffs, collar banding, and front panel of white caracul and its modish military collar closes with small silver buttons. The sleeves of this coat are unusually charming, but even more noteworthy is the silver braid which outlines the course of the caracul. This trick of accompanying our bands of fur with gold or silver or colored braid is one which has been authorized by some of the most famous of Paris designers, and its success may be noted at every concourse of well dressed women.

The short jacket of fur with the life preserver about the hips has ceded much ground to the flaring type of garment. Nevertheless, this more mellow form of art still exerts its influence, and at a certain noted furrier's we found the adorable little ermine jacket second from the left. This is striped with green leather—the effect is really ever so stunning—and the white ermine turban is bound with matching green velvet. In front takes place the inevitable rhinestone ornament.

High on the list of favorite coat fabrics comes the wool brocade and it is through this medium that the designer expresses our third model—a coffee brown coat trimmed with Kolinsky dyed squirrel. The long basque dips in the back—please do not overlook this detail, for it is stressed persistently by fashion in connection with the flaring skirt. This coat observes one of fashion's latest decrees by continuing the lower band on the hem up the right side front.

The godet in the coat is a detail which has penetrated even the juvenile field, and here we see a diminutive belle of 6 attired in a cherry colored duvetyn trimmed in gray squirrel and accomplishing its godets by the means of tiny tucks.

Next in popularity to the coat and substituting ably for this garment we find the three piece suit with three-quarter jacket. This is represented on the page by a black kasha cloth model trimmed in leopard and accomplishing an enviable variety of coat line. Incidentally, one may mention that leopard is one of the favorite methods of trimming coat or suit.

NEW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—"A lean horse for a long race" is the motto justified by life insurance experience.

"In early life," they say, "the risk of undernutrition should be taken, but after thirty watch your weight and keep it at the average weight for thirty."

Statistics based upon the report of the Medico-Actuarial investigation of half a million persons show that light weight, after full maturity, is an advantage unless it is due to some form of disease or malnutrition. Furthermore, it proved that all heavy weights, regardless of type, are at a great disadvantage as compared to the good light weights.

In the middle aged and elderly groups this investigation of the influence of weight on vitality shows there is approximately one point higher death rate for every pound over weight; that is, forty pounds over weight shows 10 per cent extra mortality; fifty pounds over weight, 50 per cent extra mortality, and so on.

Compare Yours With This.

Therefore, compare your weight with the tables given here, and see how good an insurance risk you would make. And what are your prospects for a long and merry life.

I wonder if mortality statistics are as convincing in the matter of weight reform to us women as a review of the season's popular silhouette. I have my doubts. Death is something we consider only when we have lost the power of locomotion. We have visions of being in the fashion parade on an early tomorrow, if not today. The funeral cortège is ever in that dim and distant future when we intend to give up all our bad habits.

One Ounce Is Fatal.

So, perhaps for purposes of immediate activity, I should recommend the fashion page rather than undertakers' ads.

Well, viewing the magazines of the moment as indulgently as we may, we see doom if we overflow a sixteenth of an ounce the funnel silhouette. One bulge and all is not right with the world!

No living woman is over 30 in her dress planning. She cannot be and get any enjoyment out of life nowadays. The art of the couturiers is lost entirely if she gazes upon the latest creations with eyes that have lost the sparkle of 30 minus. So there you are. And there are the scales to help to shoehorn her into the 1924 smart model.

The standards for weight at the various ages and heights have been established by life insurance experience, but these standards which show an increase in weight as age advances by no means reflect the standards of health and efficiency—and, we may add, the modister.

They merely indicate the average condition of people accepted for life insurance, whose death rate—while covered by life insurance premiums—is yet far above that obtaining among people of the best physical type who live a thoroughly hygienic life.

Excess Is Handicap.

The point to be stressed is that the usual gain in weight with advancing years is not an advantage but a handicap any way you look at it.

And you should keep your weight at approximately the average weight for age 20, the period of full maturity, as experience shows that those so proportioned exhibit the most favorable health, efficiency, and beauty.

To do this frequent recourse to scales is necessary. The small bathroom scale is gaining popularity and incidentally furnishing boulevard and avenue with some of that enviable symmetry for which we pine, whether over a plate of ice cream or a bowl of lettuce leaves.

In fact, our best figures are often kept so by just this simple process of weighing daily at the same hour, and the tendency to an extra pound or two is curbed before it has had an opportunity to grow into five or six or ten or twenty pounds.

Voice of Conscience.

There is an undoubted psychology to thus tabulating and regulating the food consumption from day to day. The scales take on the voice of conscience which makes it easy to wrestle with the sin of overeating.

It is only those who refuse to be weighed frequently and often who awake one day to the enormity of the offense of unrestricted diet and muscular inactivity.

Some women will not get on the scales for love or money. They suspect what would be told them, and refuse to face it frankly. It is a silly process of deadening one's energy. For the simple reason that nothing will send a person scuttling for hard tack and water like a story told in too round numbers the truth of which there is no doubting.

Get the daily weighing habit, and it carries a satisfaction with it that is extremely good for the soul and better than that for the figure. Pride is at once our weakest and our strongest emotion. If you can get the scales to a point of registering your weight as it should be at 30 and remaining there month after month and year after year, you have acquired a pride that is worthy.

Makes Mind More Active.

This is advisable not entirely from the esthetic angle, but because you can do better work shorn of your excess burden, and because particularly the food regulation to keep weight down as described to keep you in excellent shape in every other department of the body. The mind is more active. Energy is increased and the ogre of being termed middle aged and elderly is removed until a day one may accept it with the philosophical outlook of 70, we'll say.

The foods which should be reduced in quantities or avoided, in cases of overweight, are sugar, fats, milk as a beverage, salmon, lobster, crabs, sardines, herring, mackerel, pork and goose, fat meats, nuts, butter, cream, olive oil, pastry, and sweets.

The main reliance for the much overweight should be upon dietetic regulation rather than upon exercise. A moderate amount of exercise until you get the weight down appreciably and then with simple exercises, repeated for ten minutes night and morning, and a modified diet thereafter are the secret of keeping yourself out of the class unfavored by life insurance companies, and in the class favored by costume designers, which, as I said before, may be more to the point.

BEAUTY ANSWERS.

J. R.: WHITE BREAD IS FATTENING when eaten in quantities and spread generously with butter. In fact, it is the one foodstuff whose consumption you must watch. It is the only one that is not served in portions. We eat bread while we await the food's coming, and eat it with the food, too, forgetting that one slice spread with butter means a caloric value of 200. With orange juice, two eggs, and a slice or two of bacon for breakfast one slice of toast spread thinly with butter should be enough for any one.

ALICE: TWENTY-ONE AND FIVE feet five and one-half inches call for 125 pounds. Around the nose and corners of the mouth the blackheads appear more readily than on any other part of the face. Unless care is exercised to prevent them presently they may grow into pimples. At night give an extra scrubbing to these affected parts with a face brush and soap and warm water; rinse in warm water, and then in cold. Rub ice over as a final measure to close the pores and tone up the skin thereabout.

MISS K. H.: A GOOD EYE WASH is boric acid, 1 per cent; sodium biborate, one gram; water camphor, sixty drops, and three ounces of distilled water. This is recommended for eyes that are unusually tired or weak. Apply it with an eye cup, which as you know fits right over the eye. A milder wash is boiled water in which a little salt—just enough to make the water salty, is used. The crust that accumulates on granulated lids may be soaked off with a weak solution of bicarbonate of soda.

THE STORY OF THE POOR ART call for Christmas—these are gifts you'll find a joy to give!

Christmas is the season when we like to make others happy—relatives, friends, everybody! And it's a time, too, when we like to have happiness universal, to feel that while we are celebrating and happy among our friends and families, others are happy too—the poor, the sick, the despairing. And we can do that this year—give our personal happiness, knowing that elsewhere in this great city other families are riotously happy because of our thoughtfulness—and we can do this without expense to ourselves!

Think of that, and I know you'll do your share! Imagine some widow doing her best against terrible handicaps, and seeing her children suffer every day because they haven't warm shoes and warm clothing to wear to school. Then think of the castoff worn garments, and those which have been outgrown by your own little ones. They merely are in the way—and what a Godsend they will be to such a struggling mother! Think how you love your little ones will enjoy Christmas the more, knowing the happiness you have given by this simple act of thoughtfulness!

Bedding, too—old furniture! Such articles are needed desperately now by families living in basements or poorly heated houses. Think of the joy it will give some family, when Christmas morning it can remove a failing child or suffering grandmother from a mattress on a damp cement floor to a real bed, with springs and mattress—a bed and springs not a gathering dust in your storeroom or attic. Whatever you have, why not place where it will be a veritable blessing to some poor family.

And the children! That's the hardest heartache of all, in many and many a family—the knowledge that the little ones can't have a Christmas! The boys and girls hear the story at school, see it in stores, learn it on every hand. They are too little to understand that papa and mamma can't do everything—and both parents and young ones will be heartbroken when Christmas comes and there is no celebration.

Think how easily you can remedy this—what a joy it will be for your little ones to lend a hand! Right now every family with children has plenty of discarded toys and playthings which would make poor children immensely happy. Tell the story of the poor to your children—tell them how they can spread Christmas cheer—and let them select gifts from among their playthings to make a wonderful Christmas for some poor children we can name.

Think again how easy it will be for you—what it will mean to the poor—the happiness it will lend your Christmas, how it will thrill your little ones to know they have done their part nobly! Then let me know what you and they can give!

Grandma Does Her Best.

"I am a little girl, 11 years old, and I have no parents. Sister and I live with grandma. Could some kind reader lend me a 6 volt storage battery for the holiday? I have a Christmas battery light outfit and have no battery. My grandma can't buy any, because she has enough to provide for. I wish some kind reader could help me to get one, which would mean a merry Christmas to us. And also some winter clothing, sizes 12 and 38. I will gladly call for anything anywhere. IRENE.

Never Had a Tree.

"I am a boy 10 years old and I have one sister and five brothers; the oldest is 12 and the smallest is 4. My father makes small wages and we never get a Christmas tree or any toys. Maybe some one is good and would give us a surprise—Christmas and some toys. "EDWARD A.

And Mother Laughed.

Mother and I were in a cafeteria. While she gets the dinner, I go ahead to see what kind of dessert I want and pick out a dish of ice cream and put it on the tray behind me. Imagine my surprise when I look up and see a strange woman. After an apology I pick up my dessert and hurry to mother, who is laughing at my mishap. D. S.

Made the Impression.

My most embarrassing moment occurred when I was a freshie. A new professor was young and good looking, and of course all the pupils were trying to make an impression on him. I made mine in an entirely different way from what I intended.

I was going down stairs one morning when I stubbed my toe and fell down the remaining distance right into his arms.

I was fairly burning up with embarrassment, but he only said, "Good morning," and set me on my feet. Some people have poise, haven't they? C. E.

Short on Change.

When I was young I decided I would spend my small savings in traveling. All the folks had warned me about the danger of carrying a large amount of money, so I deposited most of the bills in the bottom of my shoe—except some small change.

In a large city I ventured into a restaurant, intending to eat to my heart's content. I did come near eating three meals, because I was almost three days behind. When I started to pay for the dinner I was shocked at the prices, and found I was short on change.

There, amid the giggling of the waitresses and the angry look of the cashier, I had to take off my shoe in order to get the exact money to pay the bill. G. W.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outworn its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy, and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper. When information is wanted by mail a stamped addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send articles to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant, and send direct.

HOW TO ORDER YOUR CLOTILDE PATTERNS.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of each pattern you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred; wrap it carefully) for each number, and address your order to Clotilde, CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE, Chicago.

How to Use the Patterns

If the children haven't their winter pajamas, this pattern, No. 1255, will be just the thing. Buy a good quality of outing flannel and before cutting out measure the length in the middle, back, and front to see that there will be ample room. A one piece sleeping garment like this must be large.

The best finish for the seams is the felled—allowing a good half inch seam. After one side of the seam is trimmed off to a width of about ⅛ inch baste the seam down from the right side so that the half inch margin on the wrong side lays so it covers the cut edge and baste the length of the seam close to the stitching. Then turn to the wrong side and, turning in the edge, hem lightly. Lay the garment in the machine right side up and stitch the seam, stitching through the hemming. This may sound like much extra work, but it really goes fast, and when finished there are no raw edges sticking out; on the right side the material is smooth—as it will not be unless that right side basting is put in. Where material cresses—percale, for instance—this basting is not needed.

Follow the directions given on the pattern envelope carefully, and there is no reason why there should be any difficulty in making.

Most women like pretty aprons. Pattern No. 1,883 is a good design.

The apron is cut in two pieces, the upper part being cut in one piece, slipping on over the head, and the lower corners at the back lapping over the front lower corners and buttoning there.

The skirt is in one piece and is straight and finished at the sides and across the bottom with hems.

The skirt would look well made of black sateen, and the upper part of chints or some other gaily colored and patterned material.

The upper part should have the edges bound with a bias strip of the skirt material.

If one prefers, the sides and bottom may be bound instead of hemmed.

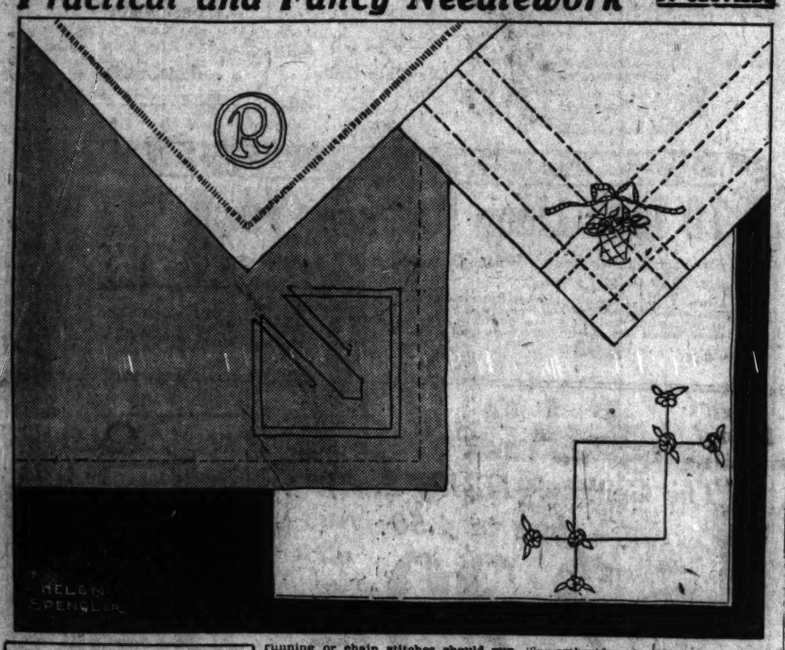
Pattern No. 1,879 is one of those one piece, slip on dresses that are so easy to cut and make and so generally becoming when finished.

Instead of cutting the skirt straight and allowing the selvedge edges to form draperies, the skirt edges of this dress are slightly gored. It measures for size 36 about 1¾ yards at the bottom. In order not to have to piece the sleeves, the material must be wide—say, 54 inches. Of course, if narrower material is used, the piecing may be covered with braiding, embroidery, or some fancy stitching.

The sleeves give it a dressy air, and they would look well with bound edges, finishing the neck to match.

The dress is intended to be slipped on over the head, and at a low waist line an elastic is slipped through a wrong side casing. With this casing forming a waist line, some sort of sash or girdle must be worn.

Practical and Fancy Needlework BY CLOTILDE



What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't [wrin]k? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework write to Clotilde, The Tribune (Chicago).

HANDKERCHIEFS FOR GIFTS.

FANCY handkerchiefs seem to grow in popularity each year, and one o several make an always acceptable gift. Gingham, figured and striped voile, and pongee are among the mater ls used. And whep the material is not plain, the handkerchief needs but little i the wry of decoration. Son times one sees on these handkerchiefs some conventional design worked in cross stitch in several colors. Sometimes there is a ruffle of inch wide footing. Some handkerchiefs are cut 12 inches square, some are circular, and others ary from the 12 inch size to tiny ones only 6 inches square.

While one doesn't see as many handkerchiefs this year with contrasting colored threads pulled through to outline the hem, the threads are used a great deal to make a design in one corner, and the edges of many are finished with a rolled hem, sewed with a colored thread.

Plain linen in all the lovely delicate shades of every color is much favored, and a hemstitched hem makes a good finish, with some broidery in one corner in contrastin colors.

After all, there never will be anything so good looking and beautiful as a sheer quality of pure white handkerchief linen. A double hemstitched hem is clearly defined and a lovely way to hem the handkerchief. Then in one corner there should be embroidered a monogram or single letter, or two or three letters, as the case may be, done in the laid embroidery. This is exacting work, and must be perfectly done to look as it should.

After the outline has been accurately marked with a single thread of the cotton the filling-in comes. These running or chain stitches should run up and down, the stitches being as short as possible on the wrong side and the filling-in heavier in the middle. The embroidery is done in an over and over stitch, and always taken across the letter at right angles to the filling-in stitches.

ANSWERS TO LOVE PROBLEMS By Doris Blake

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Have you a perplexing love affair on which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, The Tribune, Chicago. If you wish a personal reply, please send a stamped, addressed envelope.

Other Games to Play.

"Dear Miss Blake: Do you think it is all right for girls of 14 to play kissing games at parties, socials, etc.?

"THE QUARTETTE."

No, dear, I do not. And I suspect you have doubts about the propriety of it when you write to ask me. There are other games to play, you know, and it is a bad habit to acquire at your tender age.

Your Privilege, Virginia.

"Dear Miss Blake: A few days ago I met a young man at a club dance whom I thought nice. He offered to take me home and did so. We spent quite some time togetner and I found his company pleasant. What I wish to know is this: He made no mention of an appointment, as I did not ask him to call again. Would it be proper for me to try to see him, or write and ask him to call? V. A."

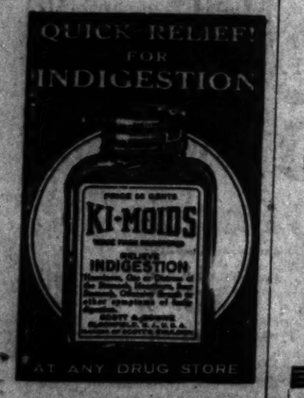
You should have asked him to call, Virginia, the evening he escorted you home. Because it is the girl's privilege, you know. However, write him a note and tell him you would be pleased to have him drop over some evening.

Time and a Grin.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 16 and have been going with a boy the same age. He has told me he loved me, and never wanted our friendship to be spoiled. But it was too good to be true. We quarreled, and then we parted. He wrote to me a week afterwards and said he was going to stay mad at me forever. That was a year ago, and I still can't get him out of my mind. Should I forget him or should I wait? Do you think he will ever come back?

"BLONDE."

Sixteen is a grand and silly age, isn't it? At what other period in life would a romantic pair decide "it was too good to be true, so they quarreled and parted." You with one more year added would be able to get a hearty laugh out of that, as I did. Don't think I am not sympathetic. Every daughter of us has done something equally foolish at that frightfully important milestone. About all that can be done to alleviate the suffering is to let time and a grin be nurse and doctor.



Ask Your Doctor This One Question—
What is the Best Physic for the Average Person?

He'll say Citrate of Magnesia because it's his own favorite prescription.

But before COM was perfected, this good old remedy was seldom uniform and not always pleasant to take.

Now it comes certified—always pure, always uniform, always delightful to take and free from habit-forming drugs. Take it for constipation; colds, dizziness. Every good druggist now keeps it.

Insist on COM—be safe, be sure.

COM

YOUR DOCTOR likes COM because it is pure, truly pleasant to take, conforms strictly to his own prescription and is quick and easy in action.

YOUR DRUGGIST likes to sell it because it is in great demand, because it pleases the most exacting customers and hence individually.

THE POTTERS

PROLOGUE.

The Merry (as it is humorously called) Christmas is coming on again . . . business of digging last year's tree trimmings from the basement and wailing the annual wail over the tarnish on the tinsel . . . business, too, of asking the members of the family—offhand, you know—"What would you like for Christmas?" and then promptly forgetting the answers . . . business of making up the list for the Christmas cards and dashing around at the last minute for a job of engraving that will almost match the list with the name plate . . . gosh, but Christmas is getting complex:

The Three Wise Men were wise, I'd say—
They bought their gifts, and they mooched away.
When the bills came in on New Year's day . . .
The Three Wise Men . . . oh, where were they?
(Such a Merry Christmas! . . . May you all have one.)

SCENE I.

Ma has dragooned Pa into accompanying her while she chooses appropriate cards for the Potter Family to send to all their friends . . . they are now in Ye Olde Card Shoppe, whatever, in the name of Chaucer, they call it by that . . .)

MA: Here's a cunning little verse.

PA: Sure enough . . . that ain't so worse. (Reads.)

Christmas comes to our house
Whenever you're around.
May you have as many good wishes
As snowflakes on the ground,
And may your New Year be bright with glee,
Is my Christmas wish from me to thee.

(The design is quite novel, too . . . a snow scene in the foreground and a ye olde tyme caroler singing ye olde head off under a tavern window . . . the true spirit of Christmas, y'might say.)

SALESLADY (with affected enthusiasm):
Here's a formal . . . smart and neat . . .
Don't you think it's rather sweet?
Deckle edge, and tinted, too,
And the type is very new——

MA: But it doesn't match my plate . . .
Lookit! here's a sweet one . . . wait! (Reads.)

On the bluebird's wings of happiness
I'm sending you today
A wish for your success and cheer,

"Go on away and don't bother me."

And evermore I pray
That, as each Christmas comes each year,
Your heart will brim with love and cheer.

(The design on the tissue lining of the envelope matches the design on the card, so what could be fairer than that, even if the Potter name plate is shaded old English and the type on the card is script? . . . We can't have everything in this so-called best of all possible worlds.)

To Wish You
a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

With remarkable inspiration, the artist enticed three candles and a wreath into the upper left hand corner, completing an ensemble that leaves Ma gasping every Christmas with its amazing new, bold note . . . and

"Here's a cunning little verse."

PA (who, with forty-nine others, is busy rummaging through all the stock and putting the wrong cards back in the wrong boxes . . . "Merry Christmas?" laughs the little saleslady a bit wildly. "Where do they get that merry stuff?"):
This is the kind of a card for me!
Listen to this, Ma—jumpin' gee! (Reads.)

Sending junk
Is all the bunk—
You've got to have the spirit!
My wish has dash,
And pep and gash . . .
Merry Christmas! . . . (Hear it!)

MA (who always makes up Pa's mind for him and then tells him about it):
Nothing doing! . . . I guess I'll decide
On this one here . . . it's dignified;
And that's the proper thing to do,
Although it isn't quite so new.

(Ma chooses plain white oblong card with gold beveled edge and chaste script—formal sentiment, rather startling in its originality:

now for the solemn promise of the engraver to have it ready on time and the determined pen-scratching in the Big Book up Yonder as the weary recording angel marks up another lie under the heading "Engravers' Promises.")

SCENE II.

(Ma is having one of those baffling interviews with Junior, the demon 5 year old nuisance of the Potter household . . . these have been daily occurrences for the last three weeks, but they don't grow any easier for Ma . . . on the contrary!)

JUNIOR (wheedling):
How soon's Chris'mus, muvver?

MA: Pretty soon, now.

JUNIOR:
How soon's zat?

MA: Just a few days. Don't bother me.

JUNIOR:
Sporly?

MA: Yes, surely. Now, go and play.

JUNIOR:
San'y Claus know where I live?

MA: Yes, of course; I told him.

JUNIOR (probing):
W'en y'u see 'im?

MA (poor hunted creature):
I don't know. I don't remember. Go on away and don't bother me. I saw him—and that's enough.

JUNIOR (cautiously):
San'y Claus at norf pole, ain't he, Ma?

MA: Don't say "ain't." Haven't I told you a thousand times that ain't the way to talk? Yes, he lives at the north pole.

JUNIOR (blissfully ignoring her and following through):
Did you go norf pole to see San'y Claus, muvver?

MA: No, of course not. He came here. (Floundering.) Now, don't bother me any more, or I'll tell him not to bring you anything.

(Silence.)

JUNIOR (softly):
Muvver?

MA: Yes, now what is it?

JUNIOR:
Does San'y Claus always come down chimmy?

MA: Yes, of course.

JUNIOR (softly):
But if dey ain't no chimmy, muvver, den w'at he do? Huh? (Check!)

MA (nonplussed):
Say, are you going to leave me alone, or not?

JUNIOR (meekly):
Yes, muvver. (Pause while you count five.)
Could San'y Claus come froo radiator, muvver?

MA (discouraged):
Yes, of course he could.

JUNIOR (wide-eyed):
Wif pack on his back, muvver? (Check!)

MA (helplessly):
Say, you clear out of here. Git, now! (He "gits.")

SCENE III.

The Potter family are having one of those evening conferences that practically passed out when the movies came in but are coming back with the realization that we might all just as well stay home and be bored . . . and look at what we save!

MAMIE (coyly):
When you see Santy Claus, Pa, you might tell him a new fur coat would be in order.

BILL:
The one you've got looks like a smoth's homestead. But, speaking for myself——

MAMIE:
You would!

BILL:
Would? Will! Who kissed you in, anyway?

MA (as if to herself):
Of course, if you had a job, Pa . . . but then you haven't . . . still, if you had . . . you know, I'm pretty near due for a new coat. The one I've got sure has done its duty . . . but you haven't a job, so, of course . . .

"When you see Santa Claus, Pa, you might tell him a new fur coat would be in order."

PA (oh, fatal pride!):
Haven't I, though! I didn't tell you that Rankin——

MA (excitedly):
You mean to tell me—— O, Pa! Then we can get those new lace shades and that kitchen cabinet, and I saw the loveliest——

PA (alarmed):
Here, here . . . just a minute. I don't start until the first of the year.

MA: But we can charge it.

PA (bitterly):
That's the curse of this house—charging everything. Let's see if we can't save something once.

MA (virtuously):
That's right, Pa. That's what I say, too. (Suddenly.) Then I can get that new coat for Christmas, can't I, Pa?

MAMIE:
Me, too, Pa? Yes, he says. Attaboy, Pa! C'mon, be a sport.

JUNIOR (coming to life):
'N' I wanta sand digger 'n' a gun 'n' a pony 'n'—'n' a horse 'n'— —

BILL:
Why don't you get me a Stutz racer for Christmas, Pa?

PA (dazed by the uproar):
Wait a minute, wait a minute! Say, whothahel started this Merry Christmas stuff, anyway?

(And that's that—until next Sunday.)

MEN'S FASHIONS

This department will be glad to answer any questions regarding men's fashions and the correct thing to wear on different occasions. Address communications to A. T. Gallico, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

BY A. T. GALLICO.

NEW YORK, — (Special Correspondence.)—The rolling around of still another Christmas finds us again confronted with that old saw about man and his Christmas presents. As every one knows, there are two kinds—the ones he wants and the ones he gets. And it is a sad state to contemplate that the ones that he both wants and gets are fearfully in the minority.

Thus it is our humble aim to assist the unfortunate male to boost his percentage of acceptable Christmas presents, if possible. For one thing, this article may aid him in deciding what he wants and, for another, it may help him to get it. If he is of the shy type that dares not voice desires, a copy of this, conspicuously marked with a red pencil and left lying about where wives, mothers, sisters, aunts, cousins and fiancées are sure to stumble upon it, ought to do the trick.

Roughly, for the purposes of covering the ground thoroughly, we divide the things man wants for Christmas into two classes, wearing apparel and just things. Under "things" we shall speak of some of the hundred and one odd little articles that exist for men around Christmas, such as smoking accessories, camping goods, sporting goods, little trick things that he will play with for a day and then forget, and so on.

But this week we shall deal mainly with wearing apparel, the numerous things in that line it is possible to give man that will both gladden his heart and improve his external appearance. And, as one seldom presents friend or husband with a suit or an overcoat, the possibilities narrow down to the smaller accessories, such as ties, shirts, gloves, socks, mufflers, handkerchiefs, and so on.

Once again may we be permitted to divide something into two classes. This time we suggest that wearing apparel be classified in the two groups—that for which proper sizes must be known and that which will fit regardless of what size a man wears. If the former, be sure the person who is to give you a present knows the right size, or Christmas will find you with all sorts of things that don't fit.

Here are a few suggestions that may remind you of what your wardrobe needs. For instance, how are your old bedroom slippers getting along? If you got your last ones on a Christmas in the past, you will want new ones this year. You can indulge your wildest fancies in this line, and request a pair of the gayly colored leather ones that are accessible to men this season. We have already mentioned them in a past article. They are available in as giddy hues as red, green, purple, or a combination of the first two mentioned shades. Or perhaps you have already tried a pair of these wool and leather combinations, the wool inside and the leather outside, and want a new pair. We saw a pair of them tinted bright green the other day in a New York shop. These wool lined affairs can't be surpassed for comfort.

Another acceptable gift which has to do with the bedroom is a dressing gown, lounging robe, or smoking jacket. If the man to receive the Yuletide attention is young—a school or college youth—he will possibly find it in his heart to desire one of those brilliantly striped gowns which we mentioned some weeks back and which we saw in an orange and black combination among other gay effects. Or there are the silk and wool robes that we have also described in this column, as well as more luxurious heavy silk effects, such as a rep made up into a plain gown. Possibly the gowns of Indian madras print that we saw during last summer are still procurable, although we happened to come across them only in one New York shop, which carries only first class stuff. However, the bathrobe and gown possibilities are innumerable.

And in speaking of the possible gifts that would come under the negligee division, we must not leave out pajamas. A fine pair of pajamas makes a good present, because it is a luxury as much as good looking ties. When the average man goes to a shop and buys himself a sleeping garment, he is more apt than not to get the most inexpensive one he can find, while deep down within his heart he unconsciously hankers after the more expensive ones that the clerk would like to sell him.

Most people who must give a man a Christmas gift think it over for a few days and decide that when in doubt a necktie is the safest bet. It's old stuff, but a man can use any number of cravats, and there's no harm done in making a selection of neckwear the gift. We could not begin to enumerate the possibilities in ties. However, here's a hint: In order to be sure that a tie one gives will fit in to some niche in the man's color schemes, and if one wants to make an especially fine present, a set of necktie, muffler, handkerchief, and socks, all to harmonize, although not to match, is a good scheme. A pair of gloves might also be included in this gift box assortment.

Any one of the articles mentioned above makes a good present by itself. There are any number of varieties of mufflers that a man can use. Now and then we have reported some of the new ones in this column. Lest you have forgotten, there are the long flannel or soft woolen ones of checked or striped designs, or the flannel or cashmere squares, in soft tans and blues. Long striped silk mufflers are still favored by smart dressers; the black and white effects, especially for use with dinner coat in the evening.

Handkerchiefs are always acceptable, and this year the possibilities in this department of haberdashery are more varied than ever. Colored effects are extremely popular, and nothing seems to be too gay.

Many men will doubtless find some kind of sweater awaiting them on Christmas morning. The fancy front, usually of checked pattern, or the colorful Prince of Wales sweater, in slipover or vest model, will come in for a good share of Yuletide popularity, and so if you need a sweater you'd better get in your order with wife, mother, or sister now.

Other holiday suggestions might include a pair of some gloves which are just expensive enough to be a luxury to the average man, such as real pigskin, or reindeer, or a fine mocha. A pair of some of the light weight fancy wool socks, which can cost a pretty penny, also makes a gift which any man should welcome. Then there are always sets of studs and links for evening dress, or a walking stick, or even a belt.

WHAT TO GIVE HIM FOR CHRISTMAS.

How to Be Happy Though Married

By DORIS BLAKE

"Man's Love Is of Man's Life a Thing Apart; 'Tis Woman's Whole Existence."

—BYRON.

ARE men more jealous than women, or women more jealous than men?

Is man's jealousy bound up less with love than woman's? Is his jealousy limited to that which affects his pride, his vanity, his dignity?

Man is usually thought to be ferociously jealous. In fact, the average women is never so sure of his love as when he displays a definite form of jealousy regarding her.

Is she justified in attaching so deep an importance to his emotion? Could he be jealous of her and still not be in love?

One would first have to decide whether it is a fact that love of conquest and pleasure of possession dominates man's love before analyzing the character of his jealousy.

There is no doubt that jealousy can lead man to commit ferocious deeds. But is it inspired in him by other sentiments than love?

When His Pride Is Touched.

Dr. Gina Lombroso determines the character of man's jealousy as a thing apart from love. Not because his love is wounded does he lose self-control, but because he is made to appear ridiculous and his dignity is in danger for the moment.

His wife, his sister are possessions which society has tacitly intrusted to his care. The dishonor of their misdeeds reflects on him more than on them.

"The responsibility which he vaguely realises," she says, "even if it has not been imposed on him officially, leads him to expect from his wife and sister manners and attitudes totally different from those which he likes in other women. But his jealousy ceases the moment his dignity is out of danger.

"If a woman flaunts her beauty and awakens in others the desires she awakens in him; if she continues to be liked and admired by others; if she devotes her time, her intelligence, and her heart to other beings or things apart from him; if she continues to give herself up to father, mother, brothers, he is not in the least affected, he feels no jealousy as women would feel under the same circumstances. It is looked upon as rather unnatural for a man to want to take a woman away from her family, or to be jealous of his children, as woman often is. A man jealous of a woman's love for her father would make a fool of himself, whereas it is natural for a woman to be jealous of her husband's love for her mother.

"As a rule, man is so little jealous of his wife's love for her relatives that most of the time he becomes more devoted to them than to his own family."

Different Conceptions of Love.

Of considerable advantage to family life is man's relative lack of jealousy, according to Dr. Lombroso. This is seen by observing the families where the opposite occurs.

The difference in man's and woman's jealousy is due primarily to the different conceptions of love in man and woman.

Man's love is essentially selfish, sensual, passionate, to which is added the pleasure of conquest and the price of ownership, in Dr. Lombroso's opinion. For him, love is too often the invincible and irrational attraction for an object which at the moment responds to his taste; for a being whose outward form, movements, grace, voice gestures, he appreciates; for an aim which pleases him, which excites and arouses him to effort; for an object which increases his prestige and his power and which may prove of use to him.

A woman, on the other hand, cannot love a person whom she does not esteem. For her, love is the attraction she feels for some one whom she esteems above herself, with whom and for whom she may exercise her activity and her altruism.

Woman Jealous of Everything.

This idea of love in woman, which makes the feeling bound up with esteem and admiration, is the principal cause of woman's jealousy.

Man's jealousy, Dr. Lombroso asserts, is limited to that which is related to woman's honor.

Woman's jealousy not only applies to all objects which attract physically but even to all those which win the esteem and admiration of the man she loves, and this jealousy weighs on her whole life like a nightmare, in the opinion of the famous economist.

"Woman is jealous of everything and every one; she is jealous of all the things which awaken the loved one's esteem and admiration; she is jealous of every sentiment, every occupation that comes between her and the man she loves; she is jealous of the outside world, and suffers when she realizes it means more to the man than to her; she is pained by everything that can be useful to the man she loves if it has nothing to do with her.

"And as maternal love and conjugal love blend, so to speak, her jealousy embraces both. She is jealous of her son, as she is of her husband, and of all objects that attract her husband's admiration. She is jealous in advance of the woman who is to have a place in her son's heart, as she is of the woman who has stolen a place in her husband's heart. This universality of feminine jealousy, which strives to raise a barrier between man and the outside world, frequently makes woman's love more annoying than her indifference."

Tridon's View Is This.

Andre Tridon, psychologist, was of the opinion that jealousy has little to do with sex. He called attention to the fact that domestic animals evince violent jealousy when their masters show attention to strange animals; to the feud precipitated among household pets when the dog beholds its mistress petting the cat, and conversely.

Superiority or inferiority are exempt from bestirring jealousy. We notice that success won by undisputed superiors or absolute inferiors does not arouse jealousy. As Tridon points out, a young pianist does not resent honors bestowed upon Paderewski, nor does Paderewski begrudge the stripling his early success. Jealousy, on the other hand, rages among artists of about the same rank.

Wonderful Adventures of the Dog Club

THE KWALGAROO ENTERTAINS THE GRAVELPITTERS

BY RAYMOND KELLY

"WHY?" asked Ginger, the fox terrier.

"What why and why what?" Toodles, the lop eared poodle, replied, as he flicked a fleck of flour from Ginger's ear. Ginger always gets flour in his ears on barking days, you know.

"Just what do you think you are talking about?" snapped Ginger.

"Exactly what I'm asking you," growled the fat poodle. So they each apologized to the other, because no really nice dog ever fights before 9 o'clock in the morning. Then they wandered paw in paw down the path to the cave in the corner of the gravelpit. There Wiggler, the monkey, seated them on pink striped mats and tied on their bibs. Then he handed each of them a candied chicken bone and a cup of perfectly delicious prune soup, after which he turned on the phonograph and hung himself up by his tail. That's what makes monkeys so wise. They hang by their tails with their ears close to the ground, and hear everything that goes on.

Wiggler didn't hear much for a while except the sound of the sucking of the soup, but then Carlo, the big Saint Bernard, who was president of the Gravelpit Club, stood up, swallowing his pie crust soup bowl and thumping for order.

"We have company tonight," said he. "Very famous company; a kwalgaroo from the great plain that lies midway between Australia and Alaska. His great grandmother was a kangaroo and his third uncle a walrus. He will speak to us in his native tongue."

Then Carlo gave a signal to Wiggler, who pulled back the curtain that hid the kwalgaroo.

My, what a strange looking beast that kwalgaroo was. He had a pale blue nose with pink freckles, and there were great orange colored circles around his eyes, while from underneath his chin there dangled a whisker as long as that report card you hated so to bring home. Maybe it was a report card, at that. You couldn't see the paws the kwalgaroo leaned on the table, because it was a damp night and he wore boxing gloves. But the Gravelpitters all gave him a rousing cheer as he began his speech. Ginger gave me a copy of it; so I'm going to give it to you

I wicky wally, wally wicky woo,
Dilly go dally, illy galloo.
Wow itriwaddy, wow otty ick,
Bow polly wolly, ingity zik.
Ockus bezinkus, ockus bezow,
Illikus gallikus, killikus kow.

Then the kwalgaroo spread out his moon spangled Mother Hubbard gown, and sat down, while all the Gravelpit pups barked till they were hoarse. They knew it was a fine speech, because they couldn't understand a word of it, and they still would be thinking so, if it hadn't been for Ginger, the fox terrier. Ginger wasn't fooled at all, but grabbed hold of that moon spangled Mother Hubbard and dragged the kwalgaroo around the cave until the gown tore off and showed that the great and famous visitor was only Granger, the collie, who had dressed up that way to fool his friends and give them a pleasant evening.

So that's how the Gravelpitters found out that there weren't any kwalgaroos, and this is how you find out. But it does no good to tell you, for you'll forget it the next kwalgaroo you meet.

Margaret was playing with her brother, who is two years older. He stumbled, fell down, and started to cry.

Wiping his tears, she said: "Now, Buddy, don't cry and get your face all dirty. Be a little man. Use your brave." H. R.

Floyd was going to a birthday party on one of his friends. He had a dime with which to buy a present.

There were so many things he wanted to buy that it was a hard job for his little mind to decide.

After a while a member of the family asked him what he was going to do, and he answered, "O, mother, I'm going to give him the dime raw." F. T.

Quintin is kind to his aunt, who is just recovering from a severe illness.

One day, as he stood with a footstool in his arms, his mother remarked,

"You may put it down now, dear. Auntie is coming."

"I know it," replied the little lad, "but I want to hold it till she comes, so she'll say 'Bless his heart.'" J. V. D.

Tommy often called on neighbors in the hope of getting a cookie or an apple to augment his meals. He was seldom disappointed. When his mother learned of this habit she promptly put a stop to it. So we did not see anything of Tommy for some time. One day mother answered a ring at the front door. It was Tommy.

"Hello, Tommy!" said mother. "What do you want?"

The child stood silently for a moment, apparently embarrassed, but he finally took courage and got to the point: "Well, what you got?" R. S.

A few days ago Ned and his mother were out Christmas shopping. He was much taken with an electric train he saw in one of the stores, and was anxious to have it for Christmas.

Mother remarked it would cost too much.

Ned said, "Well, what do you care? Santy pays for it." W. H.

Catherine was taken to a matinee. Her brother, two years younger, was angry when he found it out and said: "Gee, they never take me anywhere."

Little sister, Margaret, replied: "Never mind, Theodore, Catherine was born first and they know her better." M. R. H.

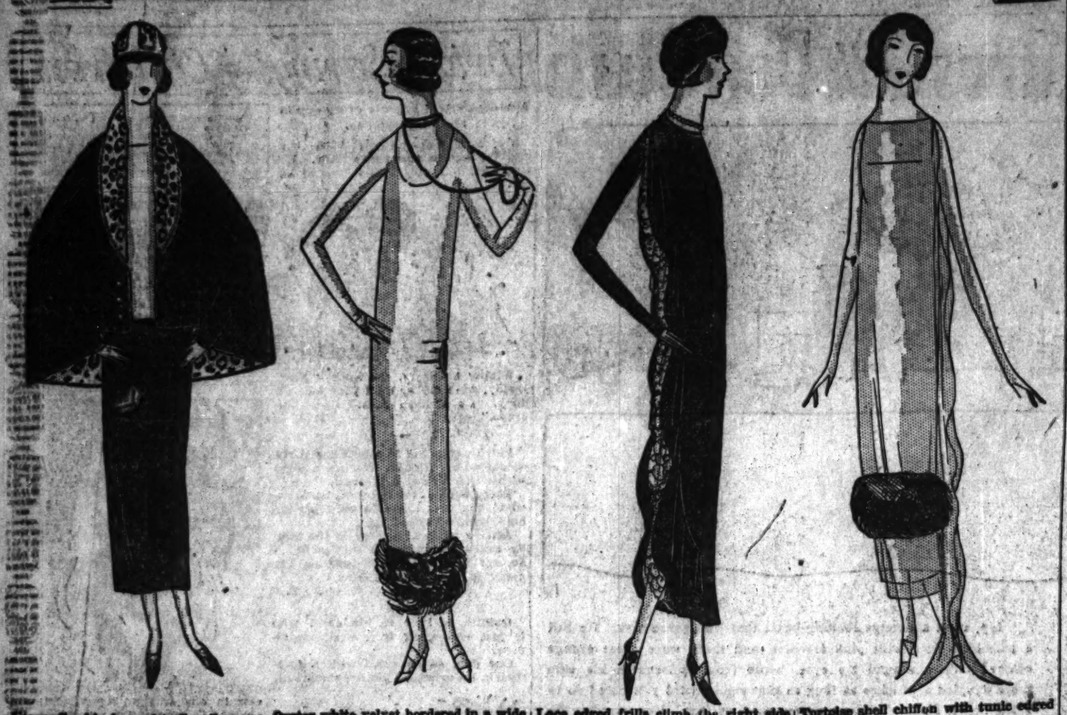
The Last Word in Paris Fashions



Leopard's skin is used to line the cape of this sports suit.

Oyster white velvet bordered in a wide band of sable.

Lace edged frills climb the right side of this long silhouette.

Tortoise shell chiffon with tunic edged in fur.

BORROWING THE LEOPARD'S SPOTS.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS. — [Special Correspondence.]—Once or twice, though not daring to come exactly out into the open, we have said by implication, haven't we, that the French were indebted to us for a style? There was that matter of the long waist line which we wore while they wore up round their arms, and they laughed at us for the abnormal figures we presented with our belts so much lower than nature ever intended a waistline to go. At length they conformed us and put ours at a latitude more becoming to the typical Anglo Saxon figure, at which moment they lowered theirs round the knees at a level extremely unbecoming to them.

Of course, American tourist influence may have had something to do with their change, and probably did, but a more logical accounting lies also in the fact that the law of fashions is the law of extremes, and even the French were due to swing round to a silhouette unbecoming to their figure.

This fall they are adopting something for which we can take even more credit, without giving any at all to a preceding French style complementing it, because there wasn't any. There was only a state of mind, the French having loudly declared that they neither could nor would use it in whole or in part, as a trimming for an entire garment, and now they have come to it, principally in the former capacity of embellishment.

I refer to leopard skin. Many a time and oft I have watched them in the shops on the Place Vendome shake their heads in patronizing amusement at the Americans passing in their leopard skin coats, French spectators saying by way of comment as they did so, that it was for household decoration and not for the costume. Now they are using it not only on sports costuming, but as banding on suits for town wear, and I shouldn't be surprised if America were already springing at the French version of its own idea and preparing to use the leopard skin for the garnishment of wraps and of suits.

The reason I think so is because I saw the original preparations taking place and these, as you know, consist in the buying of the models.

Long, black, tube wraps are banded with it for town wear. The first sketch shows a sports suit on which a leopard's skin has been effectually applied. It has been used for the lining to the cape, which serves as the wrap instead of a jacket, and it forms the reverse. Round all the edges it hangs down in a tiny fringe that is both softening and smart, and these, as we know, are usually contradictary adjectives. You can see the lines of the cape for yourself (sleeves being attached to it, or it to sleeves) and the feature of our offering is the use of the spotted fur.

Little hats are trimmed in bands of it and other spotted furs, antelope being a favorite. Accompanying shoes also are trimmed in spots.

Even evening dresses are beltless and trimmed in fur. Doubtless we are used to the weighted look to the evening dresses that came from loading them with beads. As for the feeling, I should think the present lames would make them heavy enough, especially those where the chiffon foundation carries a brocade of velure. We show in the second illustration a gown of oyster white velvet bordered at the bottom in a wide band of sable. Although it is intended as full evening dress, or at least the extremest of demi-toilettes, it has long, tight sleeves.

We saw it on a woman who was dining and struggling to dance one Sunday evening at the Ritz. The struggle came not from the fact of any crowds present or an overslippery floor, but from the tightness of the fit of her silhouette into the long tube of that dress, which departed not from the rigid straightness of its outline, whereas her silhouette did. The dress was caught up in a few tiny folds on one hip, and fastened with an ornamental buckle.

The third sketch shows a Callot frock of black velvet, which is one of the successful features of the performance of L'Ecole des Cocottes. Replicas of it are seen frequently on women lunching at the Ritz. It is beltless, as ever—all smart frocks being in one long line now—and it has circular frills of velvet with ecru lace bordering them that climb the right side of the long silhouette from hem to shoulder.

Another dress using fur in a way similar to the second model is the one shown last. It is a gown in tortoise shell brown by Callot, and the fur is brown fox, which appears only in a band round the bottom of the tunic. The leading feature of this dress is the scarf which drapes from the left shoulder and when left unarranged falls to the floor.

Play in the Sunshine City

St. Petersburg

Have rest or recreation in this glorious peninsular city between Tampa Bay and the Gulf of Mexico. A semi-tropical climate gives warm, bright days and clear, star-lit nights. There is much to do here every hour: Golf, tennis, fishing, bathing, boating, and open-air concerts. Beautiful parks are equipped with card and checker tables, quoit lanes and roque courts.

St. Petersburg is the South's most rapidly growing resort city. Its guests are well accommodated by apartments, cottages, and fine hotels, five of which have been completed this year. For booklets and information write:

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington, with current market materials, and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

FRUIT CAKES.

EVERLY how or what you will to make a fruit cake dark—coffee, chocolate, too much molasses—there is nothing else that makes a cake valuably and deliciously black but fruit, and for the most effective blackness, or that we see in the real wedding and Christmas cakes, the fruit required in quantity is currants. You may add peal, and citron, to perfect the flavor of the cake, but it is currants, about four times the measure of them there is of flour, for instance, that mainly make a black cake. And as to flour, only enough to bind the ingredients is required—an astonishingly small amount.

Moreover, it is the preparation of currants that helps to make fruit cake such an expensive business—not the price alone. This year the price is low. I have purchased twelve ounces for 17 cents. It is not really the money you pay, but the time you must spend to look them over, even if they have been "recleaned," that is expensive. And, besides that, all such looking over is the sort of work that makes the back of your neck ache. If you do not watch out and realize it.

Even if a woman counts her time worth no more than that of the woman who works by the day—a pretty stiff price in these days—it will cost about $1 worth of time and materials to make two pounds of fruit cake, or considerably more than that, if you preserve and candy your own citron melon, prepare your own peel, and shell and blanch the nuts you use. If you make a larger quantity, the price will be somewhat less per pound.

To do nice work, you must paper the pans. To have the pan well papered may save the day, should such an accident happen as dropping the cake as you take it from the oven. The finest white stationery is none too good for this work. Let it remain on the cake while it is used because it prevents drying out. Even fruit will dry. Because the paper is well buttered it is all the better protection from evaporation. It also protects the cake when it is baking.

Preparing the Currants.

The perfection of home made fruit cake, its overplus of delicious flavors, depend upon the fact that every item that goes into it is immaculate. Think what our grandmothers had to do when they could not get "recleaned" currants! But even when those we get are so labelled it is necessary to go over them to pick out bits of stem and twigs which have dried up to rocks. Then if we find a bit of grit on them we may do one of two things: Wash, drain, wipe and dry them, or if we are not ready to make the cake, we may rub them most thoroughly in flour, which must be thrown away—a tablespoon to a pound of currants may be sufficient.

After that they will not need to be floured for the cake, and are really in a better condition for it than when carelessly floured. Because their little folds may hold flour which may never get wet in making the rather difficult mixture, this business of flouring currants must be a nice one. It is not really to have plain dry flour in a slice of the finest of cakes otherwise.

Every year lately, at about Christmas time, I have spent about $50 worth of time working on fruit cakes and I believe that the first of the following recipes yields the best dark fruit cake, when the compounding is faithfully done and the baking long and sure, at a rather low temperature. I have ever made. Heavily browned surfaces lower the quality of fruit cake at least one-half, and yet I see on sale, not infrequently, scorched fruit cakes. It tells me a great deal about the inferior quality of that cake, no matter how superior were the ingredients that went into it.

Is it worth while to spend so much time on a cake? I should say it was worth all it costs if you want, for your own use, or to give away, something that is superfine in cake. You cannot buy anything as pure, though it be made by a $10,000 recipe—the price charged by a commercial maker for her recipe for a cake inferior to this I am recommending—because few paid workers, especially in this careless day, will spend the time and take the pains to make each item immaculate.

Two Pounds of Dark Cake.

One-fourth of a pound of unsalted butter creamed, one-fourth of a cup of sugar, two eggs, one-half a cup of flour, twelve ounces of currants, eight ounces

Public Notice

To those who attended the Grand Opening of our 11th store at 4204-06-08 W. North Ave., Saturday, Dec. 8, we make this special announcement. We underestimated the possible attendance on this occasion to such an extent that we were unable to serve all who turned out—the district served by our 11th store proved far more populous than we had expected. Therefore, for the sake of fairness to our readers we will book sales until Dec. 20 at the special Grand Opening prices. Positively no further extension of time after this date.

5,000 Silk Shades at Less Than It Costs to Make Them

The most astounding sale of Silk Shades ever advertised in Chicago! Values from $30 to $50; now priced from $10 to $25. Every one is brand new, right from the makers and in perfect condition. We are able to make this amazing offer to our readers because we are merely acting as agents for the manufacturer. In other words, we are handling them on commission and you buy them at the price set by the maker himself. If you want a silk shade—buy it now. You'll never get another offer like this.

ARTISTIC WALL DECORATIONS.

FOR those who finance their own painting and decorating this is an excellent time of year to have the work done. There is, at present, a slackup in the paper hanging and painting business, due to the fact that these are the months between the busy renting seasons, and all apartments have been done. Consequently it is easier to obtain workmen at more reasonable rates and to have the decorating finished in a shorter period than during the rush season. Too, workmen are better able to center their attention on one job at a time instead of hurrying from one to another, and so achieve better results.

Decorating right away would dress up the house, fresh and lovely, for the Christmas holidays, when almost every one wants to have her home cheerful and bright. It is not a bad idea to think of wall paper as an appropriate Christmas gift. Of course, it would not be necessary for the paper to be used at once. If inconvenient, it could be laid away to be used later on. Any home owner is sure to be pleased with such a gift. An abundance of exquisite papers is on the market at present, so that a suitable and attractive design for any room may be selected satisfactorily.

Many rooms produce a sense of being unbalanced, because of the undue emphasis of the walls and the over emphasis of the windows. The walls are allowed to sink into oblivion, being covered with drab, dull toned, uninteresting papers, while the windows are draped and overdraped with gaudily patterned materials. Neutral toned papers are always good, of course, but they must have a warm depth of color or a distinctive, harmonious design.

Paneled walls afford a great diversity of treatment. Paper, hung in panels which are well defined architectural units, coöperates successfully with the structure of the room. Paneling, too, gives ample opportunity for the exercise of originality, both in designs and in color combinations. By breaking the surface of the walls and making the area of decoration smaller it is possible to use more strikingly patterned and colorful papers than may ordinarily be employed for covering long stretches of wall space.

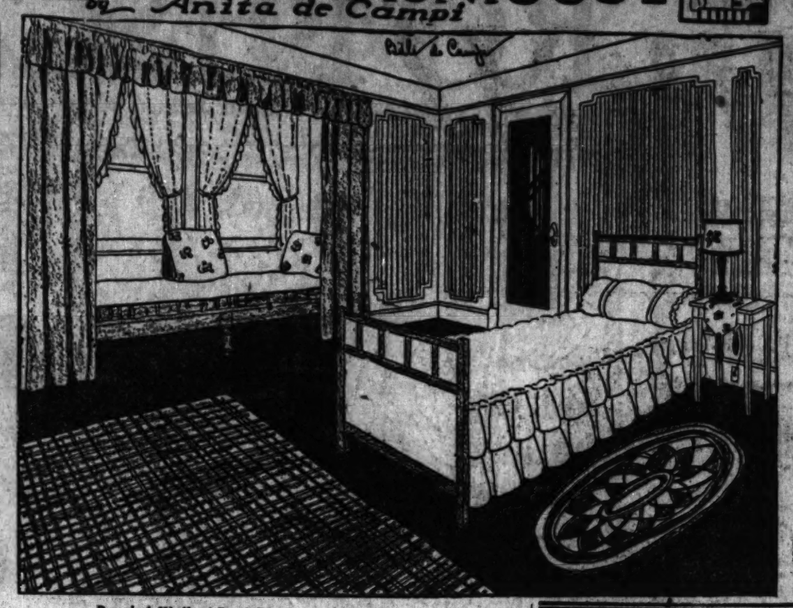
Narrow paper borders, marking the paper off into units against a neutral toned background, are the simplest type of paneling. Various styles of molding papers, from one half to two inches wide, are being manufactured now, so they can be used for any scale of paneling. They are simple, architectural designs, adapted from or suggested by wood moldings. In most cases, they are done in two tones of a neutral color, though occasionally they are worked out in flat greens or similar dull tones, to complete a color arrangement. These simple border papers take the place of the old fashioned, conventional friezes and cut-out borders, which have lost their popularity.

As a rule the panels measure from three to four inches above the baseboard to the same distance below the molding. In rooms where the ceilings are exceptionally high, or there are unusually low baseboards, two lines of panels are sometimes used, the lower set extending over about four-fifths of the height of the wall and the upper panels serving as a sort of a border beneath the cornice.

In the room illustrated today the walls are painted in flat finish, pearl gray. Panels in silver gray and jade pink striped paper are marked off with a narrow, pearl gray paper border. The bed cover and window draperies are of jade pink silk poplin. Accessory cushions are of jade green, flowered in jade pink, white, black, and light yellow. Hand made rugs are of jade pink and gray.

If more than ordinary "life" is needed in a room, one of a series of panels, at some advantageous point, might be done in a vivid floral paper, the remaining panels being filled with a soft neutral tone. Another enlivening arrangement would be to have two panels filled with a colorful paper, while the others would employ soft tones. Care must be taken, however, in using different sorts of paper for the same room, that the effects be not patchy. In small rooms it is usually best to use only one kind of paper. Paneling affords endless possibilities of arranging combinations of papers. This undoubtedly is the cause of the pronounced vogue, at present, of paneled walls.

It is decidedly certain that wall paper has a much more significant purpose than that of being merely a covering for the wall. The old idea, that as long as it covers the wall it is satisfactory, has been abandoned. It is infinitely more than a wall covering. It is a decoration, featuring charm, character, and individuality. The better it fulfills this decorative purpose, the better is its success.



Paneled Walls Afford Diversity of Treatment

NONE SO FAIR.

DARLING Little Sweetheart: Never was a man so happy! Some of them may have thought so, but I know that it was impossible, because, laugh if you will, I know there has never been as charming and delicious, as clever and dainty a woman as my future little wife, so that proves that none could have been as happy as I am over that little word yes.

And, by the way, you darling, you have not said that elusive word yet. Wanting it so much, I am going to take it for granted from what you wrote. Dear love, I am so happy I am unusually idiotic! There cannot be anything like it in the world to have the woman you love say she loves you. No wonder love has been the theme of poets and writers all down the ages.

And now, of course, being manlike, I am not satisfied, but want you here in my arms and want to kiss those dear eyes shut and then kiss those lovely lips that look and are like crimson honey. And then eat up those satiny cheeks and nibble those darling little ears, and, last of all, plant a large, square kiss on the top of your distinguished little nose. Are you blushing a little? Well, you will blush when I once get my arms around you, for after kissing your wonderful eyes shut I shall make you open them wide with surprise at the loving words I am going to whisper in your ear.

My darling, my darling, how much I love you! Can a life of devotion ever show you how much I appreciate the happiness you have given me and the pride I feel in your having trusted your sweet self to me? God help me to keep that trust perfect in the highest way.

These lines express something of what I feel, but no written word, dearest, can possibly express all I feel for you, dearest love of mine.

The love of woman transcends all other loves. 'Tis the breath of life, the voice, the cry. The silver song that lifts the soul of God.

Mother knows all my hopes, for it was useless to try to hide my feelings from those kind wise eyes. When may I tell her she is to have the longed for daughter? She already loves you and is eagerly waiting to welcome you.

Now all I can do is to strive to wait patiently for the next letter from you, in the meanwhile working my head off so these business affairs will soon be finished.

God bless and keep my little wife to be. Your perfectly happy DICK.

of raisins, five ounces of candied citron melon, two ounces of candied orange peel, five ounces of figs, four ounces of blanched and coarsely chopped almonds, three tablespoons of molasses, a pinch of soda, two tablespoons of cold water beaten with the egg yolks, a half teaspoon of salt which may be beaten with the egg whites. Use a large bowl and a stiff long handled spoon. Put batter in papered tins and bake slowly two hours if in two loaves, in 300 degree oven.

Now it is no joke to work this mass of ingredients when they have been combined. Our grandmothers must have used their hands in making a batter six times this size, which all the old batters for fruit cake were with twelve eggs and pounds of currants and raisins and figs. My method is to cut the citron into rather small pieces, although large pieces look well in a cake, and to flour these pieces and the currants. Although seeded raisins are undoubtedly richer in flavor, I pick over and use the seedless and put these through the coarse disk of the food chopper rather than the figs, and the orange peel follows. The almonds have already been put through that coarsest disk, to save oiling if possible.

After you are all set, the pans ready, the fruit all chopped and some floured, cream the butter, work the sugar, then the molasses into it, beat the egg yolks with the two tablespoons of water, add to creamed mixture and then add to this the almonds and all the chopped fruit. Work thoroughly so that the egg and butter and cream are well blended with this mass.

Add the flour gradually to this and work well; then add the floured fruit and work again, and finally chop in with the spoon, working in as lightly as you can the stiffly beaten egg whites.

The Old Recipe.

The formula for the two pound cake given above is, with various adaptations, just one-sixth of the formula given me by a grandmother in a certain home years ago, after she had used it for half a century or more for her Christmas fruit cake. I give it here to introduce the subject of the flavoring of fruit cakes. She did not mention the necessary teaspoon of soda and did not use salt, which brings out flavor in a cake.

This is the way she recited the list of ingredients to me: "One pound of flour, one pound of sugar, three pounds raisins, two pounds of citron, one pound of blanched almonds one and one-fourth pounds of butter, four pounds of currants, one-half pound of candied orange peel, two pounds of figs, one cup of molasses one wine glass rose water, one wine glass sherry, one wine glass brandy. If spices are liked add cloves, cinnamon, and mace." (She gave me no directions for putting this together.)

This recipe, with the twelve eggs, is almost like dozens of recipes you will find in old books with some slight variation. Sometimes more molasses is called for and more could be used formerly than now, for the molasses of the old days was rich in aromas and qualities, although undoubtedly less sterile than what we get today.

Flavors for Fruit Cakes.

When a fruit cake ripens the spices lose their dominance, and since the cake may be so excellent without them, and they cannot be recommended for wholesomeness, there is no reason for adding them. If they are added, some wine or brandy softens the whole, although its addition complicates the baking problem. The temperature must be about as low as anything can be baked, and the time in consequence lengthened a great deal, when brandy is used in a fruit cake. Fruit cakes of the old type should not rise, really, but they will swell, and alcohol, in trying to get out of them, swells them considerably and may burst the top, which is undesirable.

Decorations for Fruit Cakes

No roasted almond is quite equal in perfection to that baked long and slowly on the top of a fruit cake, so these nuts are the best to use on the top of the dough, and there are no end of ways of putting them on with good instead of bad taste. If fruit is used, the baking should be slow, and for those who cannot do the nice work the putting on of glazed fruit afterward is to be recommended.

OOD morning!

Threading its way among the outlying theaters is quite an interesting program picture, "The Broken Wing." It's a story book sort of photoplay. By that it's not life as most of us know it. Rather it's life as it is to know it now and then—adventure, romance, the thrill of unexpected.

Of course, to a favored few there come breaks in the ordered round of existence. Operations, broken looking glasses—a long journey; the discovery that the homeliest girl you ever knew has become engaged to the chap you hoped to marry; the acceptance of a short story (I firmly believe there is nothing in life that could equal the thrill over the acceptance of a short story—unless, perhaps, it would be a personal letter from the editor announcing that, having accepted the short story, he would like to see more of your work), etc. But the things that happen in "The Broken Wing"—la, la, our commonplace existence doesna know them.

The wing, by the way, does not to a bird. It's the property of an airplane.

ICH—

drops down in Mexico, where such a beautiful señorita is praying that the gods will send her a gringo husband, she doesn't want to marry the so vurr' dirty Capt. Santos, who is as determined as he is dirty. (And, be said, as crooked as he is determined.)

This soiled pirate of a captain has, however, a certain kind of power. Certainly he is fearless. The only one to can make him cringe—or take a bath—is the fair Ines, and she is perfectly capable of seeing that he does both.

Well, down drops the gringo. With tender care he removes from his wounds, but the shock has deprived him of his memory. He doesn't know who he is, whence he came, where he was going when the wing broke.

The beautiful Ines considers this state of affairs a direct answer to prayer, and, before he knows it, he is married to her.

THEN—out of the east thwns a blonde wearing a wedding ring. A thrush sings unceasingly, "Whip-poor-will." The aviator's memory suddenly returns, and——

That Comes the Surprise.

Doesn't that sound like a pretty good little plot? Certainly the picture is well acted. Kenneth Harlan makes a manly hero. Miss Cooper is luscious as the loving senorita. Walter Long as Capt. Don Santos is a bad, mischievous fellow who reminds you of Mr. Holbrook Blinn in his role of "The Chosen People of Hollywood View 'The 10 Commandments'

By Mildred Spain.

LOS ANGELES.—[Special Correspondence.]—"The Ten Commandments" were again given to a waiting world last Tuesday night when Cecil De Mille, the Moses of the movies, descended from his Laughlin park home and beckoned to the children of Hollywood.

The chosen ones, clothed in the brocades and ermines of state, gathered at the Egyptian temple on Hollywood boulevard.

JULIA FAYE, Plunkett's Daughter in "The Ten Commandments." (Paramount Artcraft Pic.)

Even the police, who have been enforcing the blue commandments, were impressed. Yes, really, the De Mille version of Exodus was the most important event in the movie world this year.

The great Adolph Zukor had telegraphed his tremulous pleasure, and hoped the God-given powers of the director would never cease functioning.

Such a solemn night!

There were few among the movie people who were absent, outside of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks. Both have had trouble with the alleged trust, you know.

Charlie Chaplin was there, a lone figure wandering around without any of his little playmates.

And while the Puritans are rigorously enforcing the blue laws, I wish they would speak to Bebe Daniels and Barbara La Marr for appearing in public so shamelessly beautiful.

The decorative Bebe, who admits her heart is in New York, was accompanied by her mother and two or three doting aunties. A great sunburst of orange and gold splashed color on to Bebe's white velvet shawl that was designed for her in New York. Deep coral fringe edged the wrap.

The gown underneath was of softest white with milky strands of pearls. Diamond bracelets and diamond rings completed the ensemble, and any one will tell you it was an ensemble.

Barbara La Marr's gown was of roseate orchid chiffon with a round neck demurely trimmed with a laurel wreath of silver. A brilliant tiara crowned her closely cropped curls. Her wrap was ermine and her husband Irish, one Mr. Jack Daugherty, as you know.

Agnes Ayres was stunning in turquoise blue satin and a cape of ermine. Mrs. Conway Tearle was in black chiffon, threaded in silver, and a mink cape. Helene Chadwick's gown was of gold cloth lavishly embroidered in green and rose flowers. Marguerite Clayton was blonde and lovely in orchid and green chiffon with an ostrich trimmed wrap of blue metal cloth. Pola Negri came with Kathlyn Williams, and was in burnt orange trimmed with silver, a wide fillet of burnt orange in her hair. Constance Talmadge wore a smart gown of red chiffon velvet trimmed with rhinestones. Viola Dana and her sister, Shirley Mason, were in black velvet with wraps of ermine.

Priscilla Dean was strikingly clad in burnt orange crepe trimmed with bands of gold. Priscilla was escorted by a handsome new leading man. Priscilla and her husband, Wheeler Oakman, are not going out often—together.

After it was all over Will Rogers, who was much present with Mrs. Rogers, said the affair was such a success that Carl Laemmle would want to film the Lord's prayer.

Ibanez Accepts Commission from Mae Murray.

"The Cubans who scored Vicente Blasco Ibanez on the point of selling his soul for a yard of film will take back their cruel indictment when they learn that that author is now seriously writing a play for Mae Murray to screen. Mae and her husband, Bob Leonard, motored up to San Francisco to

The Flonzaleys Ask Your Kind Attention

By Edward Moore.

AMONG the current beliefs in American music is one that string quartet concerts are necessarily cold and unenticing, to be attended only by the limited few that constitute the Brahmin class of concert goers, and to be omitted by the ones who do not know much about music but know what they like.

The belief has hardened into a tradition. It is, of course, quite as untrue as a great many other traditions; as far from the fact as the idea that a violinist must play the Bach Chaconne unaccompanied in public before he can be considered a real violinist; that a recital singer must sing at least three foreign languages more or less inaccurately in a program before venturing upon English; that the Liszt Sonata in B minor represents the peak of the pianist's art; that an opera singer is by that token a better singer.

For string quartet music, chamber music generally, if it is of the right kind, is not in the least austere, either in material or performance. It is quite the reverse, if you remember the qualification that it must be of the right kind.

During the last few weeks there have been visits from two string quartets, both so expert, so well trained, so fine in their performance that it would become a highly difficult matter to choose between. One comes from London, and takes the name of that city; the other bears the title of Flonzaley. The Flonzaleys, by the way, will be here this afternoon.

In order to have a first class quartet, you must first assemble four first class players, and they must work together for a long time. By so doing there will develop what musicians call ensemble and others call teamwork. It is this same teamwork that counts in organized music no less than in organized athletics, and counts in the same way. With it, the whole is much greater than the sum of the parts; without it, much less.

There is also the choice of music. Perhaps one reason for the current belief in the austerity of quartet music is that in times past programs were made up of works from the classic period of composition. It is a sound objection. No one would care to hear many programs made up entirely of sonatas, whether they are for solo instruments, for orchestra under the name of symphonies, or for chamber music and called quartets or trios.

Music That Sings and Dances.

But these two fine organizations have done better than that. They have been choosing for at least part of their programs some of the pieces from the younger crowd of composers in England, an aggregation that I sincerely believe is turning out more inviting and enjoyable music than the rest of the world put together. The Flonzaleys on their first visit played a work by Ralph Vaughan Williams; the London quartet last Sunday played a suite by H. Walford Davies called "Peter Pan"; the Flonzaleys this afternoon will introduce two new pieces, a dance, called "The Four Sleepy Golliwogs," by Herbert Howells, and Frank Bridge's setting of the old dance tune called "Sir Roger de Coverly," which is better known in this country under the name of the Virginia reel.

I can make no recommendations on these pieces, because I have not heard them. But if they are as good or half as good as the Williams and Davies works, they ought to give a stranger an entirely new view of string quartet music. There was music that sang and danced. The best I can do is

Leo Ditrichstein Falls Back on Trite Comedy

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The pre-holiday dullness has settled over Broadway. Everybody is furiously Christmas shopping in 5th avenue and environs for those things nobody can afford, and the theaters are, in a manner of speaking, deserted. Deserted, at least, by the producers of new plays.

Leo Ditrichstein was the sole new arrival last week, and, seeing that Leo has suffered a series of unfortunate trial starts this season, and has been forced finally to fall back on a trite bit of comedy writing called "The Business Widow," by Gladys Unger, his advent cannot be taken too seriously.

Here we have the eager and happy lover of other days playing the martyr husband in the story about the gay young wife who is neglected by her sad old mate. A serviceable yarn but seldom exciting. The lady in this instance is played by Lola Fisher, an eager comedienne. She acquires the usual slick haired gigolora whose dancing is reported as perfect, and threatens to elope with him. If her aging husband finds it necessary to neglect her socially in order to make enough money to support her sartorially, she cannot be blamed for picking up such company as she finds available. She considers it unreasonable, if not immoral, to be married to a man she meets only in bed.

In the end, however, she prefers to beg her husband's forgiveness, counting a chinchilla coat in the hand worth more than a romance in the offing. And, though she has broken up sections of the furniture and otherwise mistreated him, the husband forgives her. Some day we hope to see him throw her through a plate glass window, but that may be too much to expect.

The Ditrichsteiners accepted the play as a quiet but agreeable evening in the theater, but we suspect it is not long for this Broadway world.

Broadway Calls It "Pel and Mel."

Broadway has done Jane Cowl the honor of nicknaming her production of Maeterlinck's "Pelleas and Melisande" just plain "Pel and Mel." But Broadway has not gone so far as to endorse the venture entirely. New York's playgoing crowd, so clearly as I can read its mind, is inclined to regard the Belgian Shakespeare as a good deal of a fluff, as one who writes vaguely of imaginary and symbolic things about which busy folk have neither time nor inclination to worry.

It is a beautiful production in many ways. Miss Cowl, covering her black hair with a hemplike blonde wig and decking her slim body in flowing draperies of exquisite colors, floats like an ethereal princess through the action of the drama, a misty, glamorous, eye stabbing vision. If Melisande can be brought within the understanding and appreciation of the common herd, Lady Jane is the one to accomplish the task. But it will be a task. Our public has little time for the Maeterlinckian fantasy, unless it make such definite sentimental appeal to the imagination as does "The Blue Bird," for example.

"Pelleas and Melisande" is altogether too vague. Even its heroine springs mysteriously from the woods and can give no other account of herself than that she is unhappy and seemingly in need of succor. There Golaud, the hunter, finds her and takes her home to his gloomy castle to make her his wife. After which she has the unhappy experience of meeting young Pelleas, Golaud's brother, and falling desperately, completely, helplessly in love with him.

Thereafter these two proceed haltingly through a mass of Mummers of Moscow, Shakspere, and Such

By Frederick Donaghey.

NOW-AND-AGAIN, and not too often, the things of the theater so dispose themselves that one or another of them may herein be told about,—after a fashion,—before it is submitted to your observation and judgment. The Chauve-Souris is one of these things; and what I have to tell you is, mainly, to go to it. You, or you, or even you may be sorry, in the sense of disappointed; and the chances are heavily that you will not be. That is, few, if any, have been in other centers where I have encountered the entertainment—in Paris, in London, and in New York, where, 'tis true, it possessed a larger "native" appeal than anywhere else away from its native Muscovy.

However, the conspicuous merit of the Chauve-Souris, despite its being foreign and exotic and internationally important, is that none of us needs to know much of anything in order to "get" it. That, you surely agree, makes it nice. You may be fond of the kind of plays called "significant" by the Drama League or you may regard Mr. Al Jolson as the world's best actor, and it makes no difference when you sit in on the olla-podrida from Moscow. A sense of humor is a good thing to take along, if you have one; if not, a sense of fun will serve.

If you read much about the theater, you probably have acquired most of the appalling store of romantic information about Mr. Balieff and his performers. It is, in essence, the story of a fluke: of a modest venture in necessitous conditions that turned out well. Odds-and-ends of actors, successful in entertaining themselves in the stimulating if precarious surroundings of an after-the-theater cafe, guessed that they might be measurably persuasive with the populace; and that's about all the countless columns of story have to tell. You know that not even the title of the troupe need detain you: that it translates as the bullless mouse, the bat, just as "Die Fledermaus" turns into English for you from the German.

Going through some memoranda on Mr. Balieff, I note that his first important assignment in the drama was to play the Bull in "The Blue Bird"; and, if this be true, then the casting was prophetic. You will, I know, agree with me when you have spent an evening under his ministrations.

And that for the Chauve-Souris!

Our Fair Share of Shakspere.

None of the stars, de jure or de facto, has as yet filed claim on "Titus Andronicus," on "Pericles," or on "Troilus and Cressida"; and this unwonted refrance at a time when the actors are urging themselves into the belief that Shakspere is vogue can most easily be explained, I suspect, as due to the actors' not knowing that Shakspere wrote those plays. The thirty-four others are either in use or a topic of blithe paragraphs telling that they soon will be.

It seems safe to say that Mr. Warfield will not play Lear, and nearly safe to add that Mr. Faversham will not play Wolsey in "King Henry VIII," even though he venture a return to Marc Antony. I do not believe that Miss Helen Gahagan will be so silly as to undertake "Measure for Measure"; and I hope that Miss Jane Cowl will not waste time on "Antony and Cleopatra." It isn't that I love Shakspere less than they do, but that I know more about him. There is a public for, perhaps, ten of the plays, or twelve, in special and felicitous circumstances of casting; the others are not good commerce.

As a community which takes the theater with mi-

THEY SHALL NOT PASS IN HOLLYWOOD BY RICHARD HENRY LITTLE

THE cinema magnates of Hollywood all deeply deplored to me that the newspapers seem to take the great motion picture industry far too lightly, while it is, in reality, a most serious business. They call attention to the fact that the motion picture is now the third leading industry in the United States. Also that it is no longer in its swaddling clothes. Also that it is now recognized throughout the world as an art. And accordingly the humorous writer in Hollywood spreads far more harm and horror than would an outbreak of the bubonic plague.

One magnate accused me openly, right to my face, of being a humorous writer. He said it in the same tone and manner that one would accuse another of having done ten years in prison for beating his wife.

I indignantly denied the accusation. I offered to bring proof from every one who had read my works that I was not a humorous writer. I told how people who read my writings broke down and wept and sobbed for hours.

The Hollywood magnate was still unconvinced. "Well," he said, coldly, "our press department says you have come out to write humorous stories about the industry."

There could not have been more condemnation in his looks if the press department had told him I had come out to set fire to every studio in Hollywood.

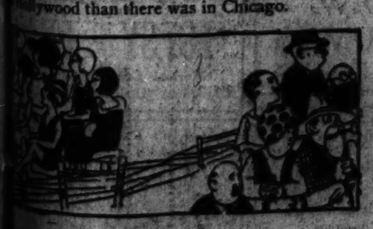
I protested hotly against the false charges brought up against me by the press department. I offered to read to him from my own works and bid him to listen for five minutes with dry eyes. He hurriedly declined. Then he looked at me with another idea gleaming in his eye. He spoke about as many other magnates in Hollywood did.

"Are you seeking scandal?" he said.

I declared that I was not seeking scandal. That I had never sought scandal. Any scandal that might have touched me during my life had come without my seeking it. It had sought me, but I had never sought it. I had had to do some mighty quick sidestepping sometimes to get away, but this only proved that scandal was after me, and not I after it.

The magnate regretted that the newspapers had printed such terrible things about the moving picture employes and said that those people who came and went around the movie lots after scandal were held in high esteem.

And he also said there was no more wickedness in Hollywood than there was in Chicago.



Keeping their distance.

"Which," I was forced to reply, "is not saying a great deal for Hollywood."

"There may be unprincipled persons in the motion picture ranks," said the magnate, "but is there no unprincipled person in Chicago?"

I said there had been one along at the time of the World's Fair but that he had moved to New York.

"It has been published in the newspapers," said the magnate, sternly, "that Hollywood is a place of wild debauchery. Have you seen anything of the kind?"

In all truth I had to admit that the only reprehensible thing I had seen in Hollywood was one night when we went to a party and sat up until half past ten o'clock. Any one who sits up in Hollywood after nine o'clock, unless he goes to the symphony concert at the bowl or to the Pilgrimage play, is regarded as a wastrel and an enemy to society.

"Have you seen anything else wild or demoralizing in Hollywood?" demanded the magnate.

Wearily, I stifled a yawn. "No," I admitted, sadly. "I have not, and I have been here for weeks and weeks."

I TOLD the magnate that sometimes I felt almost discouraged and thought of getting on the train and going away. And then I would resolve to stick around; something might happen after all.

"Not in Hollywood," said the magnate, severely. "It is not permitted!"

I left the magnate and toured the lots to see if there were any iniquity. As one hoping against hope, I kept on and on and on from studio to studio. There were always two groups present on each set. I thought I had blundered into Quaker meetings at first, because the men were invariably sitting in one group and the girls in another.

For instance, if a gentleman is detected asking a young woman for her telephone number he is immediately ordered off the lot and the great doors of Cinemaland close against him forever. If a young woman is heard giving a young man her telephone number then she is asked to remove herself as quickly as possible.

What happens if a movie actor said, "O, you kid!" to a lady on the lot I do not know. I think he is immediately executed and buried secretly at night in a lonely canyon.

But that isn't all. O, dear no! Should any moving picture person appear at the gateway to a movie lot with the odor of John Barleycorn on his breath he gets no farther. Nor does a she, either. More than that, the names of the offenders go down in the doom book and are telephoned to the service bureau and the miscreant will never again be seen on the silver screen.

I wanted to verify this. So I stood by the gate of one of the biggest picture manufactories in Hollywood. The gatekeeper had keen, penetrating eyes. More than that, he had a long, aggressive beak. It was a wonderful nose for smelling. Probably that's how he got the job. As the extras and stars came through the gates the keeper looked at them suspiciously as he glanced at their yellow tickets. He invariably engaged them in conversation; light, airy badinage, it seemed, but, ah, I could see that the gatekeeper was sniffing as he chatted.

The Baby Vamp registered happiness.

No breath that was tainted with wine, whisky, cordial, malt, or any forms of spirits frumenti could get past that belligerent, watchful, suspicious nose. And finally I saw that the nose had got hold of something, for it pointed menacingly at a sweet young thing that the directors would call the Baby Vamp type. The nose reeled back and turned pale. I immediately concluded that the Baby Vamp had a full cargo of homemade hootch aboard.

I waited for the gatekeeper to call, "What ho! The guard! Turn out the firing squad!"; and then I expected to see the Baby Vamp blindfolded and led up against the bullet scarred brick wall.

But no! The Baby Vamp walked gayly past the nose and ambled over to the set and reported to the director. I must know the secret of this. Perhaps she was a close relative of a producer. I dared not approach the lady until I was convoyed by four press agents and two camera men and an assistant director. I was introduced by each one of the seven to the lady, and she was told she was at liberty to converse with me freely.

"What is your telephone num——" I said; "that is—I mean—how is it that although the nosey party on the gate reeled backward when he sniffed your breath yet he permitted you to enter? Why are you thus privileged?"

The Baby Vamp registered extreme happiness.

"Did you see that?" she said. "Well, I've just been layin' for old Nosey for a month, so just before I came out here today I ate a half dozen garlics and a Bermuda onion. He hain't going to be inquisitive about my breath for the next two weeks."

So that was it.

"But eating garlic and onions," I said, "is considered far lower in the moral scale, back in Chicago, Philadelphia, or almost any place, than drinking hootch. You are lucky you were not arrested for bringing that garlic breath with you; and what did you say your telephone number was?"

The lady vamp drew nearer, and I ran right into the breath.

"Never mind the telephone number," I said. "I didn't want it anyhow. I just wanted to see what would happen if I asked a lady on the lot what her telephone number was. I wondered whether they would hunt me down with bloodhounds or shoot me with a sawed-off shotgun."

I LEFT the Baby Vamp type and continued my search for moral turpitude in the movies. Then I met a wise man who said: "You are in wrong—you've been reading the newspapers again. Hollywood resembles Evanston, Ill., or Cambridge, Mass., much more than it does Sodom and Gomorrah. Do you know what's got the movies scared stiff?"

I didn't know, but I wanted to.

"The women's clubs. Yesair, the women's clubs, and not so much the women's clubs of Chicago and New York or Kansas City but the women's clubs of Snooker's Siding, Ind., and Painted Post, Wyo. When the women's clubs in those towns see in the papers a scandal story about a moving picture party they put the kibosh on the picture in which that actor appears. They say that low, coarse individual is not one that should be seen by their children. That the children would see that person in a glorified part and would think him a hero and would imitate everything he did, including the scandal."

I had to remark that I had never thought of that.

"Certainly not," said the wise man; "but the movie manufacturers have. They put all the way from seventy-five thousand to a million dollars in a picture. Do you suppose they are willing to lose all that money just because some actor person gets gay? No, sir! Women's clubs are everywhere. It isn't the biggest cities that pay the producer back for his big outlay for a picture and give him a nice profit. It's the sweep of that picture all over the country."

With gravity and decorum.

"So the movie plant owners reform the actors' morals," I observed.

"Nothing of the kind! The motion picture workers can do as they darned please, but they can't do it in Hollywood."

"Well," I said, "now there's ——— I heard a lot of dirt about that person. And ——— ———. O, what I know about her!"

"The ones you mention," said the wise man, "are talked about a great deal, I know. But it's all word of mouth. And maybe all of those stories are pure lies. But, at least, those persons you name haven't figured in sensational newspaper stories of a deeply scandalous character. And, too, you will discover the persons named have all conducted themselves on the lot and in Hollywood with gravity and decorum."

BUT I meekly broke in to say that once in a while something of a distinctly unpleasant nature came out in the newspapers regarding the picture weavers of Hollywood.

"Put all the preachers in the country in one town, so that every row a preacher got into bore the date line of that town," said the wise man. "Wouldn't people begin to think that town was bad and that the preachers led terrible lives? Or put all the lawyers of the country in one town! Or all the editors——"

"Stop!" I said. "The result would be too terrible to contemplate."

"It is worse with the movie industry," said the wise man, "because the cinema needs the services of an army of supernumeraries, or 'extras,' as they are called. There were three thousand people in the 'Ten Commandments'—about as many in Rex Ingram's 'Scaramouche.' Then think of all the mobs working every day on every lot in Hollywood and the one hundred and twenty-five thousand names on the books of the service bureau that supplies the extras. And if a man or woman who has ever been in a mob scene on a movie lot gets into a scandal you can be sure the newspapers will call that individual a moving picture star or a prominent director."

I felt bitterly towards the newspapers. I determined right there to join the movies. Not because I wanted to be in the pictures, but because if I were in the movies my character would be regarded as pure as the morning dew and without spot or blemish or any such thing. But only in Hollywood. I fear the great wide world is still unconvinced.

...Miss Elsie Ferguson and Sidney ...ckmer are mentioned as co-stars in ...mething or other not yet identified.

...Henri Bernstein's "Judith," which Mme. Simone acted some time ago in Paris, is named for importation.

"The Return of Sherlock Holmes" is another effort to keep Doyle's detective on the stage: it was been produced in London.

"It Pays to Advertise," a merry memory of eight years ago in Chicago, is to be staged in London. Will Deming is going over for the part he acted here.

"Outward Bound," a London hit dealing with the afterlife, is to be staged tomorrow night in Atlantic City. Sutton Vane, the author, is a son of the like-named playwright whose "The Span of Life" was for years a popular thriller. Miss Margalo Gillmore, Leslie Howard, J. M. Kerrigan, and Alfred Lunt are in the American cast.

One new piece by Eugene O'Neill is called "All God's Chillun Got Wings." Another is called "The Fountain." . . . Miss Pauline Lord and George Marion are to try a revival of his "Anna Christie."

Miss Nance O'Neil, still pinning her hope on plays from the Spanish, is to try another, "Madre." . . . A play of Negro life, "Rose-Anne," is to be staged in New York. Mrs. Nan Bagby Stevens wrote it.

Zona Gale's "Birth" in play form is to be known as "Mister Pitt." . . . Lionel Barrymore is to be in the cast of Griffith's new film, "America."

"Paradise Alley" is the title of one new musical comedy. . . . "The Chiffon Girl" is the title of another; and this one is to have Miss Eleanor Painter in it.

Ernest Truex, who has been acting in F. Scott Fitzgerald's "The Vegetable," is to play in "New Toys," a comedy by Milton Herbert Gropper and Oscar Hammerstein II. . . . Meanwhile, Mr. Fitzgerald is trying to improve "The Vegetable."

Tom Nesbit, who was liked for his recent acting here with Miss Margaret Lawrence in "Secrets," is to be in Miss Clemence Dane's new piece, "The Way Things Happen." So also is Miss Katherine Cornell.

Leo Carillo, here not long ago in Booth Tarkington's feeble "Magnolia," is to try again in "Gypsy Jim." Miss Martha Bryan Allen, who was the little ballet-dancer in "He Who Gets Slapped," will be in it.

Eugene Walter is again active: a new play by him is called "Thieves in Clover." . . . Owen Davis, whose "The Nervous Wreck" is among next week's new plays in Chicago, is represented in the West by another, "Handcuffed."

A cablegram reports the death in London of one of the best of young English actresses, Miss Meggie Albenasi: she had not acted in this country.

Miss Hope Hampton, a minor divinity of the films, is planning to sing in musical comedy.

Sacha Guitry's "The Lion and the Golddigger," just staged in Paris, is his fifty-fifth play. . . . A plan to bring the Guitry family to this country appears to have fallen through.

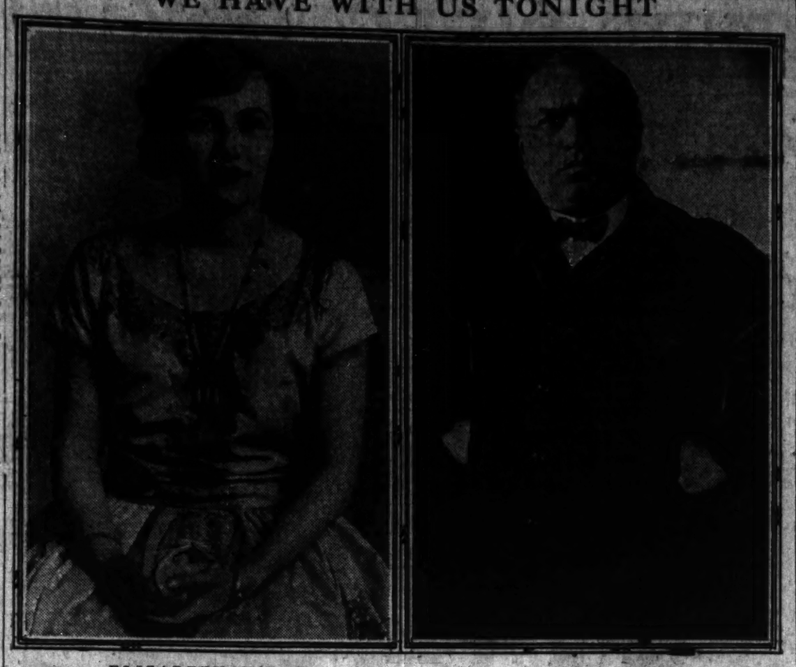
Arnold Bennett's "What the Public Wants" has been revived in London, and his "The Great Adventure," the dramatization of his fascinating "Buried Alive," is going to be. Both plays failed in this country.

Miss Marjorie Rambeau, a good actress who has been out of luck in the matter of plays, is trying one by George Middleton, "The Road Together."

"Softy" is a piece by John Hunter Booth in which Robert Ames is to act. . . . Guy Bates Post, who was prosperous in Booth's "The Masquerader," is acting in a revival of "The Climax," a mild sensation of fifteen years ago.

An English brewer, middle-aged, has turned actor and leased a Boston theater for six weeks in order to star in Pinero's "Sweet Lavender." His stage-name is Arthur Gordon.

WE HAVE WITH US TONIGHT



ELIZABETH HINES. NIKITA BALIEFF

Miss Hines is occupant of the title-part in Mr. Cohan's diversion called "Little Nellie Kelly," to be made known here in the theater carrying his name. Those of you with a memory for "The O'Brien Girl," which was performed there in the early half of 1922, should recall her as having the part of the title in that, also.

Mr. Balieff is the canny compère of the Chauve-Souris: also, its originator, impresario, entrepreneur, animating spirit, and raison-d'être. The American management goes even farther, and defines him as its conferencier; and he may be even that, for all we know. When you see him, you'll see one of the somebodies of nowadays entertainment.

New Playbills

Bulletins of Impending Entertainment in Chicago Theaters as Far Ahead as the Managers Tell About.

OPENING TONIGHT.

"Little Nellie Kelly" [Cohan's Grand]: Another of George M.'s own variants of the Cinderella idea; and it comes hither with a proud record of runs, not only in New York City and Boston, but also in London, where it is still to be seen and heard. Miss Elisabeth Hines, Miss Georgia Caine, Miss Marion Saki, Charles King, Frank Otto, Arthur Deagon Robert Pitkin, Barrett Greenwood, Harold Vizard, and Miss Edna Whistler are recognizable names in the roster; and there are dancers, dancers, and dancers.

Balieff's Chauve-Souris [Garrick]: One of the world's famed entertainments, originating in Moscow, conducted by Balieff, himself, and including in the first of four programs bulletined for Chicago the most celebrated of the stunts, the Parade of the Wooden Soldiers. The bill includes singing, dancing, folk-plays, and travesty.

CHRISTMAS WEEK AND LATER.

"Abie's Irish Rose," Dec. 23 [Studebaker]: a play that has broken through most of the commercial traditions of the theater.

"The Nervous Wreck," Dec. 23 [Harris]: a farce by Owen Davis which is listed among the season's hits in Manhattan.

"Honeymoon House," Dec. 23 [Central]: a piece said to be of Hungarian origin, with Jack Norworth as star.

Ziegfeld Follies, with William Collier and Sam Bernard, Dec. 24 [Colonial]: the one we didn't get last season.

"Kiki," Dec. 24 [Powers]: a comic piece from the French in which Miss Lenore Ulric has been successful elsewhere.

Robert Mantell in some of Shakspere's plays, Dec. 24 [Illinois]: engagement of two weeks starts with "Macbeth."

"The Highwayman," Dec. 25 [The Playhouse]: a play from the Hungarian of Biro by Gladys Unger, with Joseph Schildkraut as star. First American performance.

"Topsy and Eva," Dec. 30 [Selwyn]: "Uncle Tom's Cabin" in musical-comedy style with the Duncan Sisters.

Eleanora Duse, Dec. 31 [Auditorium]: three afternoon performances in "Ghosts," Dec. 31 and Jan. 7, and "The Dead City," Jan. 2.

"We Moderns," Dec. 31 [Blackstone]: a comedy by Israel Zangwill, with Miss Helen Hayes in the principal part.

Al Jolson in "Bombo," Jan. 6 [Apollo]: for three weeks.

"Moonlight," Jan. 6 [La Salle]: musical comedy.

"The Town Clown," Jan. 6 [Illinois]: musical comedy by Aaron Hoffman and Harry Ruby, with Eddie Buzzell in the principal rôle.

E. H. Sothern and Miss Julia Marlowe, Jan. 7 [Great Northern]: a répertoire of five of Shakspere's plays through three weeks.

Life as We'd Like to Know It Sometimes

Bad Man." (Not so good—but pretty bad?)

"The Broken Wing" is creditably produced, and manages to hold the interest. If it's at your favorite theater, don't hesitate about going to see it. You know all the people in the cast, and will realize that you're going to be with them even if the story doesn't live up to great expectations. As to the expectations—be on the safe side and don't expect too much. That, by the way, is the side to stick to regarding everything and everybody in this old world. (You get a sermon and everything with your movies this morning.)

Have a nice Sunday. See you tomorrow!

Poems of the Pfans

REEL AND UNREEL.

You can be a movie sailor
Though you've never sailed the sea,
Or even a worldly lawyer
And never collect a fee.
You can be a comedian
Though you've never had a laugh,
Or you can marry many times
And still have no better half.

You can be a great movie sheik
And still only have one wife;
Or die in the last century
And then come right back to life.
You can swim the swiftest rapids
And still keep out of trouble,
Or applaud your own bravery
As performed by a double.

You can be a bold and daring vamp
And still be some one's honey,
Or you can be a millionaire
And still have little money.
You can be governor of state
Until the six reels are done,
Or be the boldest criminal
Though you can't handle a gun.

You can starve for many a day
Though a meal you've never missed,
And still keep your wife's affection
Though there's many stars you've kissed.
You can play in all professions
Though to school you've never been,
Or take a fifteen year old part
And have a kid almost ten.

L'ENVOI.

"Why don't you have white elephants?"
A man asked Barnum one night;
So he promptly took a gray one
And painted the animal white.

P. H. M.

The More You Tell, the Quicker You Sell

KICK KORNER

It's Objects—Objection.

Why?

Miss Tinée—Here's one for Kick Korner—my first offense.

"The Light That Failed."

Let me say that I enjoyed the play, but my enjoyment was tinged with disappointment because they failed to make a truly great picture of it. The simple matter of sticking to the book. Maybe I'm prejudiced, as it is my favorite book.

Miss Forbes Robertson in the play version that the movie is built on—everything that goes to make it a great book is cut out to give it the love interest and compulsory happy ending. Question: Why is a happy ending? Maybe you haven't read the book—if you haven't, try it.

In the first place, the character of Maisie—well, I suppose Maisie as she would be wouldn't get over with the public in the optimism. Cold, selfish, in love with Dick—only in love with herself and her art career—she only paint heads. The big scene of the story is where Dick shows her masterpiece—after Bessie did her bit on it. Torp and the others soon see it and never let on to Dick that it is ruined. Maisie sees it, can't help a laugh, and goes out of the life and out of Dick's life.

Dick sounds bald, but it has a real punch. Also they've cut out the red headed girl, Maisie's chum, hopelessly in love with Dick, who only realizes it is in the way when he wants to be alone with Maisie. And the ending of Dick going out to the war—why the Mahdi affair?—and catching up with the scheme just as the Mahdi made an attack—falling into Torp's arm. "His last hold to the end—even to the parting blessing of a bullet through his head." A happier ending for Dick than a life of blindness.

As to the actors. Percy Marmont was splendid. I kept thinking of John Barrymore all the time. Torp was perfect. Jacqueline Logan, good as the part was written, but too clean looking. Bessie was born and raised in the gutter. She was hard and had no more morals than an alley cat. Why make it a comedy part?

I saw a good one tonight. Dick Barthelmess in "The Fighting Blade." I hope that boy sticks 'em they stay thick. C. A.

Thanks for Telling Us.

Dear Miss Tinée:—At least I can claim the merit of knowing what I am talking about when I criticize Chaplin and his freak fiddle. I have studied the violin for five years and seen several violins in the making. There is such a thing as a left handed violin for a normal right handed person in order to learn must learn to use his left hand, with which the difficult work is done on the violin. So, since Charles Chaplin is left handed, it should simplify it for him.

In other words, all the fingering is done with the left hand, and since he is left handed it should be instinctive for him to grasp the violin in the correct position.

Now as for K. K. fan: Just tell him to go up in the air in a plane, where he went up on a lot of hot air. At least, I never kick unless I absolutely know what I'm talking about. In fact, that last kick was the first I ever registered—which may sound contrary, but isn't.

Please print this, Mae, and show K. K. that I did not go up in the air, but walked on solid ground.

TILLIE.

[Editor's Note—I'm afraid you and K. K. will come to blows yet.]

Worst Yet to Come.

Dear Miss Tinée: I am often told I am painfully frank. I sincerely hope my frankness in this case will cause you no loss of sleep. I have a feeling it won't! Your articles and opinions give me a pain in the left lung—but then I realize the papers have to have some filler. D. J. W.

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Made One Forget.

Dear Miss Tinée: I just read Sylvia's letter and I agree with her about "Pomjola." It was one of the best pictures I have ever seen. I wish there were a few more like it. Anna is improving, and James Kirkwood gave his usual perfect performance. The story was so different from the usual type that it made one forget everything else. I saw it three times and I would like to see it three more.

Sylvia said that of the books she read "The Four Horsemen" was the nearest like the book. Then she should read "The Prisoner of Zenda." Never did I see a picture that was so like the story. It was just like it; even the characters could not have been different. And it was the best picture I have ever seen, although it did not end happily.

I hope Sylvia writes again; I like her letters and I'd like to compare opinions. PEGGY.

Perhaps They'll Read This.

Dear Miss Tinée—About a week ago I saw "The Light That Failed," and was struck with the suddenness of Jacqueline Logan's change of rôle. This popular young actress has always appeared in rather appealing rôles, and to see her acting the part of a woman of the streets was a shock and a disappointment. Somehow, I want my Thomas Meighans strong and athletic, my Gloria Swansons regal and stately, my Mae Murrays lively and dancy, and my Jacqueline Logans sweet and appealing. Please tell the producers so. R. D. L.

Strong for Doug Jr.

Dear Miss Tinée: With reference to Douglas Fairbanks Jr. in "Stephen Steps Out," I believe we have welcomed a real star to the fold. I have yet to witness a more beautiful smile than our young Doug possesses. This beguiling endowment, combined with that rare orchid—personality—plus great physical charm, plus sound maternal training, plus brains, are evident in everything he does. I'm for him, and I'm for him strong. Three rousing cheers for the new youngster. He deserves it. Are we together on this? A. Y. M.

[Editor's Note: Seven veils for you.]

Just What She Thought.

Dear Miss Tinée: I want to let you know what I thought of "The Aquittal." Here goes! Plot: Fairly good. Acting: Pretty punk. Direction: The worst I ever saw. Why, really, Miss Tinée, I was never so disappointed with a picture. Every one told me it was so good that I went and wasted a whole evening on it.

I like Norman Kerry and I also like Clive Wisdom. I think their acting would pass in most any picture if they had a good push and some one to lead them. But as for the rest of the cast—blah!

The thing that got me is the way the maid fainted into the butler's arms. I'll bet she couldn't do that over again if the sheik himself offered to kiss her. She sure did it pretty.

Another bright action was the manner in which the would-be nurse let the patient walk out at that hour!

There were so many other dumb actions, some not quite so noticeable, some as bad if not worse than the above mentioned, that I can find neither time nor paper enough to describe them. But I feel quite sure, Miss, you must have noticed them all.

JUST ME.

Over and Over Again.

Dear Miss Tinée: After reading the rap Eleanora gave the picture, "The Merry Go Round," I had to write to say how I felt after viewing it. I think it was the most beautiful story I have read. No picture I have ever seen thrilled me so. The acting of Norman Kerry and Mary Philbin was wonderful. I have seen the picture three times. Perhaps I'll see it again. W. C. P.

Prefer Them Wholesome.

Dear Miss Tinée: Thanks for publishing the answer to my letter, which gives me an opportunity to write you again on the subject. My friend of Oak Park—is quite wrong in assuming that I know the type of story which the author of "Six Days" turns out. The fact is, I belong to a large class of common people, low brows so to speak, who are introduced for the first time to many possibly prominent authors and the character of their writing through motion pictures, as was the case in this instance.

People of this class prefer to see good, clean, wholesome, practical, live pictures, that elevate one and "leave a good taste in his mouth," pictures a young girl may safely go to see in company with her gentleman friend. She should not be obliged to run down the author and study the character of his productions, when the picture is shown in a theater where one expects to see only the highest type of motion picture. C. C.

Florida West Coast invites you

The links are gay with golfers in Florida now. Irons are flashing in the sun; colorful groups are lounging in shade of palms and lines, watching the play. All is happy and restful, as on a summer day.

In flower-filled parks are players at tennis, roque, quoits or bowling-on-green. Concert bands entertain. Joyous bathers throng beaches, sporting in the Gulf's warm surf. On Tampa Bay and nearby lakes and streams fishermen are in quest of king fish, trout, mackerel, snapper. Boat excursions and long, smooth drives invite many healthful outings.

Florida's West Coast affords fruit growing, truck farming, commercial and investment opportunities more abundantly than elsewhere. Recreation, rest and attractive business chances abound on every side. The West Coast has fast train service with through Pullmans over two railway systems, direct from all northern transportation centers. Any of these organizations will help you plan a never-to-be-forgotten winter in this growing, year-'round section. Write

Many Women Require Figure Improvement--DO YOU?

Third Floor—Dearborn Street—

The special service found in Nemo corsets guards women against undue strain, both physical and nervous, and keeps them in proportions that are pleasing to the eye. Housewives, business women, professional women are busy—they will find that, with the best of care and the most consistent attention to proper exercise, muscles, like rubber bands, will lose their resiliency. It requires but a very short time for the unsupported figure to settle, and once your figure has settled, youth has gone.

A showing of all the new models of Nemo corsets here this week, with Madame Lange, direct from the Nemo factory, who will demonstrate on a living model the new Nemo models and the latest correct adjustment. For this fitting service no charge is made.

Nemo Diafram reducing corset, style 523 (as illustrated), for the woman who has been wearing the low top corset and has allowed the ugly bulge of flesh to develop over the diaphragm, an outstanding physical defect of many figures today—how to get rid of it is uppermost in the minds of many women. Sizes to 36, at..... $5 to reprint the program note of the Howells composition. Here it is:

Like Many Other Traditions, This One Is Untrue

"The Golliwogs—poor stiff things!—learned dancing, and they were so sleepy! But some horrid, spiteful magician goaded them with sharp words and a prickly fork. So they danced as best they could, bowed, and ran away."

But if you prefer this form of music in its more classical guise, the Flonzaleys will play a quartet by Tanelew of Russia and another by Robert Schumann of Germany.

A Return and an Encore.

Vittorio Arimondi used to sing basso rôles with the Chicago opera, but has confined himself to the profession of teaching for several years past. He will return to the Auditorium stage on Friday night, singing the comic rôle of the music master, Don Basilio, in "The Barber of Seville," to Amelita Galli-Curci's Rosina, Tito Schipa's Almaviva, Vittorio Trevisan's Dr. Bartolo, Giacomo Rimini's Figaro, and Maria Claessens' Bertha. Ettore Trevisan will conduct. In advance, but with the memory of past seasons for guidance, it looks pretty much like an all-star cast.

This will be one of the two new operas of the week. The other will be "La Forza del Destino," on Wednesday night, an opera in Verdis early or blood and bones manner. The cast will be largely different from what it was last year. Claudia Muzio, Giulio Crimi, Cesare Formichi, Alexander Kipnis, Virgilio Lazzari, and Mr. Trevisan are among those listed, and Giorgio Polacco will conduct. There will be a ballet with Adolph Bolm and Anna Ludmila at its head.

Lest we forget, the "lesson scene" of "The Barber of Seville" is itemized on the program. Mme. Galli-Curci will sing the "Mignon" polonaise and, for an encore, "Home, Sweet Home." This is one place in one opera where an encore is supposed not to be an encore.

Where Concerts Begin to Hush.

The approaching Yuletide season is one where musical observances will be reduced to a minimum. The Chicago Symphony orchestra will take a vacation this week, the first time since its organization in 1891 that it has made a midseason break in activities, and recitals will be cut to a mere outline.

THREE ARTS

GEORGETTE LE BLANC.

Formerly the wife of Maurice Maeterlinck and the inspiration of his most important plays, Mme. Le Blanc will appear at the Blackstone theater this afternoon in scenes from "Pelleas and Melisande" and "Monna Vanna," in readings from the poems of Verlaine and Baudelaire, and in songs by modern French composers.

All of which brings up a remark directed at this department a week ago. Said a Chicago manager: "It is nothing but foolishness to try to give six Sunday afternoon recitals when there is not enough of a concert going audience for one. I can't give away enough tickets to fill one house, so I fail to see how others can expect to give away enough to fill six."

It would seem therefore that recital giving in Chicago is no particular bed of roses for the giver. They also say it is not a great deal better in other parts of the country. As an attempt to collect press notices from harried music critics when time is short and newspaper space is shorter the practice of giving Sunday afternoon recitals may take its place among popular winter sports. Judged upon any other basis, its advantages are open to debate.

This none too optimistic statement of conditions becomes the more to the point since practically all the concert music of the week is scheduled for today. The first three items in point of time are orchestral. The Chicago Theater Symphony orchestra will play at noon at the like named house, with Nathaniel Finston as conductor and Ilse Forster as soloist, in a children's program. Miss Forster will appear in a group by Mr. Finston, and also in a children's suite composed for her by her accompanist, Philip Warner.

The concert is given in connection with the new Jackie Coogan film.

Fritz Renk, known hereabouts as a violin soloist, will be the conductor of an orchestral concert at North Side Turner hall at 3 o'clock. Howard Preston, baritone, and Otto Beyer, pianist, will be the soloists. At the same hour, also at 4:15, George Dasch will direct the Art Institute ensemble at Fullerton hall. The largo movement from the Beethoven Sonata, op. 74, is featured in memory of Mrs. Porter P. Heywood.

Next in point of time, and all a half hour afterwards, will be the Flonzaleys at the Studebaker; Gilbert Ford, tenor soloist of the Hyde Park Presbyterian church, and the Swift & Co. Choral society, in a song recital at the Playhouse; Georgette Le Blanc at the Blackstone; and a return concert of the Ukrainian National chorus at Orchestra hall. Maxim Brodsky, American tenor, will give a recital of European songs at Kimball hall in the evening. He will be assisted by Peter Sniadoff, violinist. The Sistine chapel choir will give its second and final concert at the Auditorium also in the evening.

Mme. Le Blanc's program will be, it is said, a blending of excerpts from her former achievements on the operatic, dramatic, and concert stages. She was formerly the wife of Maurice Maeterlinck and is said to have been the inspiration for most of his plays. She has included the tower scene from her husband's "Pélléas and Melisande" and the tent scene from his "Monna Vanna" in her Chicago program.

She made her operatic debut at the Opera Comique in Bruneau's "L'Attaque du Moulin," late appearing in "La Navarraise," "Thais," "Sappho," "Carmen," and Dukas' "Ariane et Barbe Bleu." She astonished the French capital by suddenly appearing in a dramatic production of "Monna Vanna," in the midst of her operatic triumphs. She has since toured Europe in all the plays of Maeterlinck. On this occasion she will interpret songs by Gretchaninoff, Casella, Gaillard, Bordes, Poulenc, Stravinsky, Ravel, and Bizet, and give readings from the poetry of Verlaine and Baudelaire.

Annual Christmas Festival Will Be Given by Choir

An annual Christmas festival will be given by the united choirs of the New First Congregational church Thursday, Friday, and next Sunday. On Thursday and Friday Handel's "Messiah" will be sung, assisted by Mabel Sharpe Herdien, Margaret Keyser, Rose Lutiger Gannon, Lucile Hartman, Walter Boydston, Edgar Jones, Howard Preston, and Wilbur Morse as soloists. On Sunday Dudley Buck's "Coming of the King" will be dramatized, and the soloists will be Mrs. George L. Tenney, Lucile Hartman, Leon Jones, William Middleton, and Percy Fairman. William Lester and Charles Demorest will be the soloists and George Lee Tenney director.

The Illinois Music Teachers' association convention, usually held in state, will take place in Chicago this year and its activities will occur from the day after Christmas until the Saturday night following—in other words, next week. In addition to the executive conferences, discussions, and speeches of technical interest to members, one reads of various musical events, among them a piano recital by Harold Bauer, a chamber music concert by the Jacques Gordon string quartet, with Mr. Baner assisting, a concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and an opera performance, the last Massenet's "Cleopatra," with Mary Garden in the name part.

The Chicago Mendelssohn club will give a concert at Orchestra hall Thursday night under the direction of Harrison M. Wild, who is not only conductor but one of its charter members, dating from 1894.

Annual Christmas Festival Will Be Given by Choir

An annual Christmas festival will be given by the united choirs of the New First Congregational church on Tuesday, Friday, and next Sunday. On Thursday and Friday Handel's "Messiah" will be sung, assisted by Mabel Sharpe Herdien, Margaret Lemmle, Rose Lutiger Gannon, Lucy J. Hartman, Walter Boydston, Tom Jones, Howard Preston, and William Morse as soloists. On Sunday night Dudley Buck's "Coming of the King" will be dramatized, and the soloists will be Mrs. George L. Tenney, Lucy Hartman, Leon Jones, William Morse, and Percy Fairman. William Lester and Charles Demorest will be the organists and George Lee Tenney director.

The Illinois Music Teachers' association convention, usually held down state, will take place in Chicago this year and its activities will occur from the day after Christmas until the Saturday night following—in other words, next week. In addition to the customary conferences, discussions, and speeches of technical interest to the members, one reads of various musical events, among them a piano recital by Harold Bauer, a chamber music concert by the Jacques Gordon string quartet, with Mr. Bauer assisting, a concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and an opera performance, the last Massenet's "Cleopatra," with Mary Garden in the name part.

The Chicago Mendelssohn club will give a concert at Orchestra hall on Thursday night under the direction of Harrison M. Wild, who is not only its conductor but one of its charter members, dating from 1894.

To the Editor:

"Sir: Is it possible that north shore lovers of opera are not welcome at the opera, even though it costs us two hours of time going and returning to buy a seat and the same time to attend the performance?

"A few days ago I applied for five tickets and was informed that all seats were sold, and yet I noticed afterward, not a hundred yards from the ticket seller, a large sign offering tickets.

"I went into the restaurant and found a young man who had at least twenty tickets for seats in different parts of the house, including the main part, but his price for the $6 seats was $7.

"Now, what do you think of that?

"F. S."

...operatic member of Sigma Alpha Iota, a national musical sorority, with a chapter, Gamma, in Chicago. Alice Gentle, according to word sent from the organization, will be another soon. Present members from the Chicago opera include Amelita Galli-Curci, Louise Homer, Claudia Muzio, Rosa Raisa, and Florence Macbeth.

Christmas music this year will be at least partially in the hands of the Harvard Glee club, which is scheduled to visit Orchestra hall on the night of that holiday. The club numbers over 150 members, representing every department of the university. More and more it has been making a name for itself as a serious element in music. Dr. Archibald T. Davison, its conductor, would seem to have been entirely successful in changing its ideals from anthems of the football field and the flowing bowl to a class of music that would interest the most exigent. Just what will be sung here has not yet been made public.

Florence Macbeth will give a song recital at the Studebaker Tuesday afternoon.

Sonora Superiority Can Be Proved Through Comparison

When it comes to comparison, Sonora quickly proves its superiority. Sonora's tone quality, the result of combining an all-brass, thoroughly insulated reproducer, all-brass, correctly proportioned tone arm and laminated, all-wood amplifier, is obviously superior. For Sonora reproduces the original recording with absolute fidelity.

Sonora's cabinetry is a standard of beauty—many strikingly attractive models to meet all tastes and incomes. Sonora's popular bulge construction is exclusive, while every famous epoch in furniture design is represented in Sonora Periods.

Compare Sonora with others! Insist upon a below-the-surface inspection. Then you will appreciate, more than ever, Sonora's superior value.

Don't Envy Me

Youth and beauty are at your command
By Edna Wallace Hopper

I made myself a famous beauty. For 35 years as a stage star I have played a beauty's part. I have kept that beauty. At a grandmother's age I retain my youthful bloom.

I owe this to four great beauty helps, perfected by French experts. They form, I believe, the greatest beauty helps in existence. They have brought to many of my friends just what they brought to me. I am convinced that millions can obtain like benefits from them. So I am now placing these supreme helps at every woman's call.

White Youth Clay

One is my White Youth Clay. Not like the crude and muddy clays so many still employ. This is a superclay, white, refined and dainty—perfected by 20 years of scientific study. Its results will amaze and delight you.

Youth Clay purges the skin of all that clogs or mars it. It revives the skin—makes it clear and rosy. It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. It multiplies one's beauty. And my girlish complexion shows how it keeps one's youth.

Many women seem to drop ten years with one application of White Youth Clay. The cost is 50c and $1.

Two Master Creams

My Youth Cream is my cold cream. It contains both lemon and strawberry, also all the best that science knows to foster the fine texture of the skin.

I apply it after the clay. Also as a night cream. Also dusters as a powder base. Never is my skin without it. In all my world-wide research I never found another cream which brings comparable results.

My Facial Youth is a liquid cleanser which I found in Paris. It contains no animal, nor vegetable fat. The skin cannot absorb it. So it cleans to the depths, then departs. All the refuse, all the dirt and grime come out with it. No other method leaves the skin so clean.

The greatest beauty experts now advise this cleanser, but they charge $2 for it. My Facial Youth costs 75c.

My Hair Youth

My hair is my chief glory. It is heavy, silky, lustrous and grows finer every year. I have never known dandruff, falling hair or gray hair. The reason lies in my Hair Youth. It is based on lifetimes of hair study. I apply it with an eye dropper, directly to the scalp. There it combats the hardened oil and dandruff which stifle the hair roots. It stimulates and fertilizes. My luxuriant hair shows what that means, both to men and women. My Hair Youth costs 50c and $1.

All druggists and toilet counters now supply Edna Wallace Hopper's products. So all who wish may now enjoy these matchless beauty helps. Try one and you will see them all. Go now and learn how much they mean to you. With each one comes my Beauty Book and a guarantee. Edna Wallace Hopper. Business address, 536 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago, Ill.

NOTE—Miss Hopper is playing the Pantages Vaudeville Circuit and will appear in Chicago at Chateau Theatre Dec. 20, 21, 22. Toledo, Rivoli, week of Dec. 23. Indianapolis, Lyric, week of Dec. 30. Columbus, James, week of Jan. 6. Detroit, Regent, week of Jan. 14. Niles, week of Jan. 21 trees and castled walls, symbols and sweetly turned phrases until Golaud, suspecting things that have never happened, slays Pelleas with the art of a practiced butcher, and Melisanda, witness to the slaughter, takes to her bed to die of a broken heart, though the accompanying uncertainties of childbirth so far from the more civilized centers may have had something to do with her passing.

Ditrichstein Falls Back on Trite Comedy

Impression of Futility.

There is beauty in many of the scenes other than the physical beauty that Miss Cowl brings to the pictures, a haunting, fantastic beauty of spoken word and matchless setting that one is contest to accept without question, knowing that any attempt to define it is likely to result in its sudden dissipation.

And there is drama, particularly in such scenes as one in which Golaud questions his young son by a former marriage as to the goings on of Pelleas and Melisande when he is away, holding the frightened boy at the chamber window that he may report the actions of the lovers. There is impassioned drama in the famed balcony scene, with the love smitten Pelleas bathing his face and arms in the cascading hair of his beloved leaning from the window above. And there is an effective melodramatic intensity in the scene of the slaying of Pelleas and in many of the scenes of warning through which it is approached.

But the general impression is one of futility so far as we common folk are concerned, and I therefore doubt that the revival will accomplish anything more noteworthy than to add another part to the slowly expanding repertoire of Miss Cowl, now well started on her way toward the position of first actress to the American people.

Rollo Peters, who played Romeo to the Cowl Juliet, is the Pelleas of the present revival, a picturesque and earnest youth in bobbed hair and blue silk tights. It is a makeup of which he seems a little conscious, as though he were determinedly doing his duty by art, whatever the sacrifice. Louis Hector is a masterful Golaud and there are many other actors playing symbols and things.

The Potters Arrive.

Pa Potter, seen between the acts of J. P. McEvoy's "The Potters" at the Plymouth theater, sent this message to his midwestern constituents: "Tell 'em we're here! We're here, all right, all right. I'll say we are. Tell 'em they seem to like us. They like me and Ma. At least they seem to. And they like Bill and Mamie. They like Bill and Mamie a lot. I'll say they do.

"They seemed to have an idea at first that we were too, too midwestern for this New England atmosphere. But I says to them, I says, 'We're just folks. That's all anybody is, is just folks,' I said. 'You're folks and we're folks. That's all there is to that,' I says. 'You're folks and we're folks. So what's the difference whether we came from Illinois or Chautauqua,' I says. 'We're all folks.'

"They got the point later, most of them. Though they are still harpin' on it. A little here and a little there. They like to harp on things down here. You get an idea, I says to them, and you worry it to death, like a bulldog with a rag, I says. You worry it to death. You get an idea and you just keep worryin' it.

"But they laffed a lot, and when they laff they're happy. I said to Ma the first night, I says, they're laffin', Ma, I says, and if they're laffin' they're happy, and if they're happy, I says, they'll be comin' back. O, we're here all right!"

Pa Is Optimistic.

The Potters have been living for some years past in the pages of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE and associated newspapers. To them Pa's words of cheer will be welcome. While optimistic, as new actors are prone to be, his mood is a fairly accurate reflection of the new comedy's reception. New York reviewers were a little inclined to be patronizing and to intimate that "The Potters" falls uncertainly between authentic domestic comedy and good farce, but they were kindly and hopeful.

Mr. McEvoy has arranged the stage version in twelve scenes and his producers have staged these as a series of vignettes. First, the Potters at breakfast, Ma fretting about the food getting cold, Pa with his grindstone nose buried in the morning paper, Mamie and Bill ragging each other into twin states of irritation.

Then Pa gets on a crowded street car for the ride to town, bumps into Rankin and Eagle, and is hooked as a sucker in a Tennessee oil deal, while Mame goes to Mme. Kyra, the fortune teller, to learn if her suspicions are true—that Gladys Rankin is trying to steal her steady, "Red," away from her. And finds they are.

In Max's business lunch Pa is landed by the oil sharks, signing away his $4,000 mortgage money, and at home that evening Ma is properly crushed by the news. The least he can do is to get on the train, go to the oil fields and see what he has bought.

Simple Annals of the Boobolsia.

The second act takes Pa to Tennessee in a Pullman and shows him his dry well. Returning to the city we find Mamie and "Red" so completely reunited they decide to elope at once, with Pa chasing after.

The third act stalls the elopers on the road to Crown Point, starts them again, and brings Pa back to his office in town, where he recovers his money from his oil stock. The concluding scene finds every Potter happy and Pa triumphant.

It is a choppy little play, but the dialogue and the characters are human and recognizable. The short and simple annals of the boobolsia, and Mr. Common People's favorite epic, if "The Potters" does not please the mixed sophisticates of this section it is quite certain to meet all the demands of the home people as an amusing domestic comedy.

Donald Meek, plays Pa with gusto and rare justification of his surname; Catherine Doucet is a competent Ma, and the kids are spiritedly realized by Raymond Guion and Mary Carroll.

meet Blasco Ibanez, and were three days in conferring about the new film plot.

The Wampas frolic, by the way, will be held in San Francisco on the 19th of January. Norma Talmadge's press agent, Harry Brand, and two other press men of the films have made all the arrangements. It was put to a popular vote of 100 of the stars, and eighty-seven said the Bay city was ideal—to whip the blue nosed police force into recognizing the movie people have a right to dance after midnight.

Pauline Garon has announced her engagement to Gene Sarazen, the golf champion. The last announcement anent Mr. Sarazen's engagement was that Dorothy Perdue had denied she was to marry him. Further engagements will be denied with all possible speed from time to time.

May Allison requested the state to free her from her husband, Rob Reel, known on the screen as Rob Ellis. The grounds were original to the extreme. Here was no tale of temperament or desertion, but mental and physical cruelty. May has been changing lately from the cute blonde person you knew to a rather stately woman with hair parted in the Madonna manner and drawn away from her face.

May had been married once before, but no one knew much about it except she announced her marriage a month after the ceremony so they would not be surprised at the divorce proceedings.

Just Around the Corner.

Bebe Daniels and her hospitable mother gave a location luncheon the other day at Bebe's West Adams street home. The company was taking shots at Rupert Hughes' place around the corner from Bebe's home, so she just had them all over for a nice hot luncheon—Lee Moran, William Beaudine, Norman Kerry, and two or three of the technical staff.

Lloyd Hughes and his wife, Gloria Hope, are going to New York this winter—and it's a big thing in their lives, for neither of them has seen the east. Hughes was born in Arizona and was a butcher's boy before he broke into the movies. Both anticipate a wonderful time seeing the new plays, watching the crowds, enjoying the cold, the sleet, the snow, and the blizzards. They may make a picture or two at a Long Island studio, but they'll return to Hollywood in March or April.

SEVEN BIG IMPROVEMENTS MAKE THE SUNBEAM IRON THE BEST

1 Stewart Super Heating Unit — Will not burn out. Hand-wound. Gives longest service. Never needs repairs.

2 Perfect Heat Distribution — Edges as well as point have extra heat. Does perfect ironing. Cuts down ironing time.

3 Improved Shape — Shaped to do nicer, quicker work. Fine beveled edge prevents pulling on even sheerest materials.

4 Mirror Finish — Ironing service smooth as plate glass. No place for starch to stick. High polish makes iron glide without effort.

5 Cooler Handle — Air space between body of iron and base of handle insures a cool handle. Shaped for an easy, comfortable hold.

6 Reinforced Plug Guard — Made of heavy steel. Protects plug and terminal perfectly should iron be dropped.

7 New Stewart Multi-Plug — Fits your other electric appliances. Goes on and comes off easily.

For Christmas—the newest and finest of all phonographs—

The NEW Columbia

MUSIC experts in passing judgment on the New Columbia unhesitatingly pronounce it "great"—great in the sense that any masterpiece is great—great because its marvelous performance as a music-reproducing instrument sets it apart from all other instruments of its kind.

Five enthusiastic years have gone into the making of the New Columbia, and a technical knowledge and skill founded on the deepest and broadest experience. The best engineering talent the world affords directed its concentrated effort month after month toward the elimination of certain musical defects which have been common heretofore to all phonographs.

How successful this effort has been is demonstrated by every New Columbia Phonograph. Go to any Columbia Dealer and ask him to play any records you choose on any New Columbia Phonograph.

You will hear phonograph music faithful to the original rendition. The flawless purity of tone of the New Columbia, its fidelity to the original is amazing. Violin, piano, cello, orchestral instruments of every kind, and the human voice—all come to you clearly and truly in their full natural beauty of tone.

For the first time you will really enjoy phonograph music with the keen appreciation of which only a true lover of music is capable. Let your ears take in the subtle phrasing, the delicate shades of tone which the Columbia alone can reproduce.

Of course, you will want your family to share in this enjoyment. So, this Christmas, let your gift to your nearest and dearest be a New Columbia. You may rest assured that it is the finest phonograph your money can buy, whatever the price you wish to pay.

Technically and mechanically the New Columbia is a perfect instrument. The new reproducer (the "voice" of a phonograph) is a marvel of ingenuity. 491 experimental reproducers were made before one was accepted. Now, because of this new reproducer, we have a phonograph in which there is not the least trace of blast, vibration, metallic tinniness, nasal intonation, false pitch, woody boxed-in tones, or any other faults which have been characteristic of previous phonographs.

"Shock absorbers" supporting the needle arm have conquered vibration just as shock absorbers absorb the pounding of the road against a car.

The new motor of the New Columbia is a mechanical marvel. 700 patents protect it both here and abroad and insure it to the exclusive use of Columbia. The evenness of speed in a phonograph motor is a factor in control of pitch—and in the New Columbia motor the speed is as rhythmic, regular, and smooth as the flight of Time itself. Unquestionably it is the quietest, smoothest running, most dependable motor ever put in a phonograph!

Other features exclusive to the New Columbia are the automatic start and non-set automatic stop, a patented device, tested 10,000 times before it was deemed worthy of the New Columbia. With this device the motor starts when the tone-arm is moved over to place the needle on the record. The record stops revolving when the music stops. You can put on a record, go into the next room, or finish a dance, knowing that when the music stops the record will no longer revolve. And you don't have to set it to make it stop exactly when the music stops.

The New Columbia has the pipe-organ tone-control leaves (exclusive to Columbia) which throw the tone freely and fully instead of straining it through interrupting fabric or lattice work.

Cabinets and consoles in which the New Columbia is encased are made of rich woods, fashioned into a simple elegance of design that makes them exceedingly desirable from a decorative standpoint. You will be truly proud to have any one of them in your home.

Make a visit to the establishment of any Columbia Dealer and hear a New Columbia Phonograph—whether or not you now wish to buy. Satisfy yourself of its merit, then when the time comes for purchase convenient terms can be arranged or your old phonograph taken in part payment.

ART AND ARTISTS

French Engravings Charming Glimpses of the 18th Century

By Eleanor Jewett.

"Boy Playing a Flute," by Ettore Caser. The exhibition of paintings by Caser is but one of the several one man shows that will open on Tuesday in the east galleries of the Art institute. Oliver Dennett Grover, Louis Ritman, Victor Higgins, Nicholai Fechin, and Axel Gallen-Kallela are among the other artists who will exhibit.

THE exhibition of eighteenth century French color engravings, in the print department galleries of the Art institute, comes as a revelation. Charm, delicacy, sentiment, humor, a characteristic French abandon of costume and pose, all these are found in the prints. They are immensely fascinating. Whether you prefer to catch a glimpse of the manners of these days which you may do in "La Promenade Publique," "La Noce au Château," or "Noce de Village," or enjoy the syrup of sentimentalism in "La Folie" and the series of lovers' meetings of which one delightful one is "La Rose Mal Defendu," it matters not, both avenues of enticing adventure are thrown wide to you in this exhibit.

Possibly the titivating sketches of ladies armed with cats and tiny dogs are as priceless, from a humorous standpoint, as anything in the group. One that stands out is "Jamais d'Accord"—two elderly, beautifully gowned ladies, the one calling upon the other, and the hostess receiving with a kitten under her arm while the guest has a plump spaniel tucked under hers. "Never do we agree," snaps the dog to the kitten, and the kitten growls loudly, "Never any harmony." So the mistresses, slaves of their pets, separated, unable to gossip over the expressed disapproval of Fifi for Mignon, and vice versa.

"Ha! Le Joli Petit Chien" is another adorable picture. In "Le Serin Chéri" the tiny dog is snuggled against his mistress' shoulder while she sails into her hostess' drawing room, her full skirts filling the air with a ruffle of silk. The hostess, stopping to sprinkle a dash of sand upon the letter she is composing (they did compose letters in those days), exclaims in admiration of the darling.

An entertaining street scene is shown in "La Tambourin," which reveals that a hundred years ago trained monkeys and dogs with the strains of a street organ, were all that were needed to collect a crowd out of nothing, a truth that is still in force today whenever the barrel organ blossoms with its red jacketed, saucy fruit, in the first days of spring.

Two family scenes and customs, in all probability universal then, are seen in "Grandmother's Birthday" and in "New Year's Day." These are particularly beautiful in detail and color. Another lovely engraving is "The Bird's Nest."

A point, however, which would militate against the hearty approval of a strait laced observer, is, as was suggested some time ago, the abandon of the costume. One might think with the thousand and one ruffles and laces, billowing skirts, and falling curls, that these ladies at least were moderately protected in their garb. Far otherwise is it. The latest girl show in New York, where, so they say, there is no more even a silken web above the waist, is not more bold than these century before last heroines. The only wonder is that the French dames did not catch heavy chest colds. They

All the Difference Between Pleasure and Disappointment

The power to choose your program—this is the greatest single feature any radio set can give you. Higher selectivity, sharper tuning in your receiver, can mean all the difference between pleasure and disappointment.

Selectivity is the outstanding feature in the tremendous success of C & W Receivers. In St. Louis, Kansas City, Philadelphia, Chicago and Los Angeles, C & W owners feel no need for "Silent Night" even though they are within a few blocks of the most powerful stations—a result to be expected when Dr. Fulton Cutting and Mr. Bowden Washington turned from the successful designing of U. S. Naval and Marine Equipment to Radio for the Home. Ask for a demonstration—then choose.

C & W Model 11B—A 3 tube regenerative receiver (Armstrong Patent) shock-absorbing tube mounts to prevent vibration howls; screened panel; automatic rheostat switches; completely self-contained. Price (complete), $160.

ART AND ARTISTS

by rush in the exposure of their person, to a fault.

The engravings are lent to the Art institute by Arnold Seligman of New York and Paris, with the exception of six which are lent by Mrs. Charles Netcher of Chicago.

On Tuesday there will open at the Art institute in the east wing galleries a number of exceptionally interesting one man shows. Oliver Dennett Grover of Chicago will have a representative group of paintings. Victor Higgins of Taos, N. M., will have a group. Louis Ritman of New York and lately of Paris will be represented. Axel Gallen-Kallela of Finland will strike a decisively different note. Nicholai Fechin of Russia will have a striking exhibit. Ettore Caser of New York will recall himself to us.

The Russian sculptor, S. Sudbinine, will show some twenty pieces. Among them will be portraits of John Barrymore, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon, and Senator Medill McCormick.

Savely Sorine, the Russian painter, will show a number of portraits. Among them will be "Lady Beatty," "The Duchess of York," "Lady Curzon," and "Otto Kahn."

Water colors by Winslow Homer, from the Martin Ryerson collection, are also to be seen. This particular exhibit is generally reserved for summer guests to the institute.

In the Arts club room at the Art institute, until now not occupied this season by Arts club exhibits, will be hung an exhibition of the works of Pablo Picasso, the French modernist. It is hoped these will be his newer paintings, which, if the story runs true, deal with acrobats and dancers and have escaped from the limbo of distorted cubes.

The annual exhibition of the Chicago chapter of the Wild Flower Preservation Society of America will be held at the Art institute from Dec. 20 to Jan. 20. How time flies! This means the exhibition will open next Thursday. Associated with the Wild Flower society will be the Illinois Microscopic society, the Izaak Walton league, the Audubon, Geographic, and Aquarium societies, high schools, Boy and Girl Scouts, and the Garden clubs.

The society has already accomplished practical results. The Illinois legislature has passed a bill making it a misdemeanor to buy or sell bloodroot, lady slipper, columbine, trillium, lotus or gentian, pulled up or gathered from any private or public land.

The exhibition this year is to be shown in McKinlock court of the Art institute, and a fascinating departure will be the huge Christmas tree planned by the society, around which groups of children may gather and have a merry time.

Among the numerous interesting lectures to be given under the auspices of the society during the weeks of its exhibit are the following:

Saturday, Dec. 22, at 2:30 o'clock, in Fullerton hall, "The Forestry Needs of Illinois," by Robert B. Miller. The following Saturday at the same hour in Fullerton hall, Miss Ruth Rose will speak on "Animal Life on the Galapagos Islands."

Sunday, Dec. 23, at 3 o'clock, in the assembly room of McKinlock court, Dr. Adolph C. Noe will lecture on "The Real Under World." The following Sunday Will H. Dilg will tell of "Conservation in Water Life."

A story hour for the children of the members of the Art institute will be held on Saturday mornings at 10 o'clock, beginning Jan. 5. The class will meet in the galleries, where the children will hear stories about various collections and at the same time be led to an appreciation of art. Advance registration with Miss Parker is requested, as the class must be limited in size.

The artists of the Jackson Park colony are holding a Christmas exhibition of their work at 1544 East 57th street from Dec. 8 to 30. Among the members of the colony who are exhibiting are Emil Armin, Fred Biesel, Beatrice S. Levy, Agnes Squire Potter, George Rich, Josephine L. Reichman, and Kathrine Winckler.

The Chicago Camera club announces for December an exhibition of fifty prints representative of the work of the Camera Club of New York.

The Fullerton hall lectures for this week are, on Monday, at 2:30 o'clock, "Interior Decoration and House Furnishings," by Florence Spiehler; on Tuesday, at 4 o'clock, "Stained Glass as an Artist's Medium," by Charles J. Connick. There will be no Friday lecture, nor will there be lectures the following week, as that is the period of the Christmas recess.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

Striving to Please.

Regimental quarters had just been set up and the colonel decided he must have a flagstaff.

"O'Hara," he told his orderly, "go out and get me a tall pole—the tallest you can find."

Ten minutes later O'Hara came back with a lanky and embarrassed companion.

"Colonel," he explained, "there ain't a Pole in the outfit over 5 foot 8, but this guy's a Lithuanian, and, whatever you want him for, I don't believe nobody will ever notice the difference."

W. I. B.

Couldn't Be Helped.

"Your school report isn't good this month," said father.

"I know it, dad, but I can't help it. The boy that used to do my 'rithmetic examples is mad at me and I had to do 'em myself.

H. W.

No Excuse.

Pat was trying to work a typewriter for the first time. Mike was endeavoring to instruct him.

"Look at it," said Pat. "I was after writin' the word 'house' and it's written here 'horse.' A fine contraption, surely."

"But it's your own fault," argued Mike. "It was you that made the mistake."

"But what if I did? Is that any reason why this dom machine should make it, too?"

E. M. C.

He Wanted a Drink.

Tommy, after going to bed, became thirsty, or thought he did.

He called out, "Ma, I want a drink."

The mother's voice answered back, "Tommy, you go to sleep."

Tommy was silent for ten minutes; utes; then, "Ma, I want a drink."

"Tommy, you go to sleep," was the reply.

Intense silence again for ten minutes; then, "Ma, I want ad rink."

"Tommy, if you don't go to sleep I'll come up and spank you."

More silence, this time for two minutes, then: "Ma, when you come up to spank me, bring me a drink, won't you?"

Lyon & Healy Apartment Grand

One is reminded by it of a rare bit of statuary, so graceful is this piano. Designed for the requirements of the modern apartment, it occupies no more space than an upright. Yet it possesses all the beauty and charm for which the grand piano has been noted. The cases are finely conceived and free of features which changes in fashions in home furnishings render obsolete. Years hence will find the Apartment Grand lending distinctive elegance to the room which contains it. The tone is appealing in its sweetness and sustaining power. There is ample volume to it. The action is very responsive. Certain features, notably the Junior Unfolding Pedals, mark the Apartment Grand as the piano designed for the modern home. There is a choice of several styles in mahogany and walnut. Prices begin at $950

Steinway Pianos

To the lover of music seeking expression, the Steinway comes with the responsiveness of the Aeolian harp to the wind. Its action is so free that one does not think of it as a thing of wood and metal, but of the spirit. The tone, too, is rare in quality. Mellowed, resonant, beautiful, it enkindles the enthusiasm of all. For workmanship and case design, the Steinway is celebrated. It is the standard of value. When you make it yours, you add to your treasures one whose desirability time alone may best reveal. Grands $1475; Uprights $875

Washburn Player Pianos

With the man or woman who loves music but is unskilled in it, this piano finds favor. It permits them to find expression. They can play their favorite selections, putting into them their own interpretations.

The expression control, only one of many features of the Washburn Player, makes this possible. Then, too, it is a joy to play this instrument. Pedalling is light, quick and responsive. You may play for hours without tiring. Full 88-note player. The tone is full-bodied, rich and clear. The case design is beautiful and the construction is of lasting goodness. Throughout the world the Washburn is noted for unusual durability. Choice of mahogany, oak or walnut . $620

Lyon & Healy Upright

Praiseworthy in excellence is this fine piano. The best that science and musical knowledge could offer is built into it.

You may select one with full assurance that you have made the most economical purchase. In case and in tone it leaves nothing to be desired. Priced at . . $470

Woman's Day Means Politics, Philanthropies, and Parties

By Mme. X

The three primary, principal, particular, and pulsating Ps in milady's life nowadays, politics, philanthropies, and parties, conspire to fill her daily calendar. Last Wednesday over 200 women met at luncheon in the Red room of the Hotel La Salle at the call of the Women's Roosevelt Republican club, to indorse candidates and to listen to a straightforward, simple, and convincing talk from State Senator Essington, whom they had previously unanimously voted to accept as their candidate in the coming gubernatorial campaign. The club's president, Mrs. Walther Dobyns, presided at the meeting and several eloquent women seconded the nominations presented with commendable brevity by Mrs. Langworthy and voted on in viva voce fashion by those present. The other candidates who were also heartily indorsed were United States Senator Medill McCormick and Attorney General Edward J. Brundage.

The ways and means committee of the club made an appeal for help in raising the funds necessary to carry on the activities of the association in the approaching elections. The committee's chairman, Mrs. Silas Strawn, announced that on next Tuesday afternoon and evening the proceeds of the great new movie, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," at the Harris theater will go towards this fund, and urged all present to buy tickets and get their friends to do so.

This is a remarkable and most interesting production founded on Victor Hugo's famous novel of this name, and with Lon Chaney in the chief rôle, that of Quasimodo, the dwarf. Besides the forty-six principal characters (a huge cast), there are 3,931 artists in the piece, which is a stupendous assemblage of talent and makes the photoplay what it is not too much to call the greatest dramatic classic ever attempted by the motion picture industry. The romance is by many considered Victor Hugo's masterpiece, and is probably the most widely read of his works. It has been translated into practically every known written language. Both from the point of view of the story itself and the spectacular way it is presented and, more than all, because the Women's Roosevelt Republican club is one of the ladies working hard to clean up politics in Illinois, the enterprise should be liberally patronized by all good citizens.

Miss Felicia Gizycka, daughter of the Countess Gizycka, will be chairman of the committee of debutantes and other young society damsels who will sell programs and candy at this benefit performance, both during the afternoon and evening. Others assisting her will be the Misses Florence Addington, Elsa Bartholomy, Claire Childs, Frances Hamill, Frances Heyworth, Lydia Hibbard, Ruth Keeley, Marjorie King, Mary Meeker, Louise Mitchell, Theodora Winterbotham, Maxine Stresenreuter, Barbara Durham, Betty Fitts, Anne Kales, Katherine Hamill, Marion Warner, Mary Wegg, Mari Smith, Helen Tieken, and Marion Sippy.

Miss Gizycka and Miss Frances Hamill are at the Republican Women's headquarters at 332 North Michigan avenue every day, doing all sorts of odd jobs for the busy women who are organizing a lively campaign to secure better government for the state of Illinois.

This Is the Harvest Time.

So much for politics! The second P is that heading the great compound Greek word philanthropy, meaning "love of mankind." This is the harvest time of the year when those women who are interested in helping to run and support the many enterprises which look after the community's unfortunates gather in the shekels necessary to the carrying on of these. Tomorrow evening the social world will meet at the benefit performance of Balieff's "Chauve Souris" at the Garrick theater, and by so doing contribute to the exchequer of that oldest of social settlements, Eli Bates house. Mrs. Arthur Farwell is the president of the woman's board and Mrs. James L. Houghteling is chairman in charge of the sale of tickets.

A bevy of young and lovely maidens will sell the ornamental programs in the foyer of the play house. The debutantes each season are generally to be found in the forefront of such battalions, their fresh and youthful loveliness being a sure lure to the most tightly waddled and crossest grained citizens.

The Red, White, and Blue benefit on Wednesday, Dec. 26, at the Colonial theater, will distribute its programs in the foyer "free gratis for nothing," its distributing agency being twelve of the most beautiful of "The Follies" young women. Both of these enterprises have done exceedingly well in both selling tickets and advertising, but each has some last seats left—the Eli Bates tickets at the theater ticket office and the Red, White, and Blue tickets at the headquarters of the committee in the Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank, Superior 7215, where Mrs. W. H. Cleff and her committee of women are to be found every day from 10 o'clock in the morning to 4 in the afternoon, and this in spite of the near approach of Christmas.

Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman and her board of managers are trying to pay off the entire indebtedness for their present home, which they purchased last spring, and to raise enough money to carry on the club for the next twelve months. They see their goal in sight, though it is seldom that an organization has the courage to attempt so much in one evening's offering. When "Follies" are so popular it is folly to be wise.

MISS GERALDINE FAXON.

Miss Geraldine Faxon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dean Faxon of Highland Park, will become the bride of Joseph Lane on Thursday evening, Dec. 27, at the residence of her parents. Mr. Lane will take his bride to Shreveport, La., to reside.

Mr. and Mrs. Jules E. Rosenfeld of 5203 Kimbark avenue have announced the marriage on Nov. 17 of their daughter, Willella de Campi, to Isaac Watson Stephenson, son of Mrs.

MRS. ISAAC WATSON STEPHENSON.

MISS MARIAN FESLER.
[Raymor Studio Photo.]

Isaac Watson Stephenson of Marinette, Wis. Mr. and Mrs. Stephenson will reside in Boston.

The wedding of Miss Marian Elizabeth Fesler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas F. Fesler of 5203 Sheridan road, and Homer Lange of Chicago will take place Saturday evening, Jan. 5, at 8:30 o'clock, at St. Luke's Episcopal church. Mr. and Mrs. Lange will be at home after April 1 at 335 Aldine avenue.

The women's board of that excellent and far reaching charity, the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society, is once more attracting the attention of the public by its activities in behalf of this organization. Mrs. John A. Carpenter and her sister-in-law, Mrs. John H. Winterbotham, are reopening that delightful little shop which they ran for some time two years ago, "Le Petit Bazar." This time they are displaying their wares at 118 East Ontario street. As both of these women are known for their unerring and original taste in everything concerning house furnishing and decoration, it is a great opportunity for those with less imagination and experience to profit by the knowledge and flaire of these generally recognized authorities and to acquire for Christmas gifts and for household possessions articles now on view at the little bazar, to put its name into the vernacular.

You may even have a chance to see the shop today, as Mrs. Carpenter and Mrs. Winterbotham are opening it for an informal inspection this afternoon, a sort of Sunday afternoon reception. The net proceeds from the sales in the shop will go to the Illinois Children's Home and Aid society. The two organizers are giving their services, and will be assisted by others on the committee. As Mrs. Carpenter only recently returned from eight or nine months in Europe and brought back many of the things she offers at her shop, it will be a chance to secure something unusual and interesting.

The woman's board of this charity, which includes such well known social leaders as the Mesdames Potter Palmer, John Borden, Charles Barney Goodspeed, John H. Winterbotham, Barrett Wendell, George Higginsen, Aldis Brown and Miss Mary Waller, is also arranging for a tremendous enterprise; nothing more nor less than a concert by Paderewski, the great Ignace himself, at the Auditorium, on Sunday evening, Jan. 27.

With Mrs. Barney Goodspeed at the head, this committee is preparing to take over and sell that whole, big hall. Paderewski is not only one of the most renowned of living artists, he is also a world famous patriot and statesman. As an orator he is looked upon in his native land, Poland, as even greater than as a pianist. He himself expressed especial delight at being asked to help in a project for the welfare of the children of America, because this country had been so generous in pouring out its wealth for the children of Poland. Mme. de Bisping, another well known Polish patriot, who spent ten days here lately, said that in her country the name of America was blessed beyond that of any other nationality; that wherever he went, an American traveler in Poland would meet hospitality and protection.

Strange and Sinister Genius.

Apropos of which, our fellow citizens, Mr. and Mrs. Stanislas Szukalski who have been there since last summer, are so much immersed in the social and artistic life of Warsaw, that they are not returning to Chicago until a later date than that at first set by them. Mrs. Szukalski's father, Dr. Samuel J. Walker, had expected them at home for Christmas, but lately received word that they would not be here before some time in January. Mr. Szukalski is a well known sculptor, and now he has entered the field of illustrated literature by publishing this autumn a volume of pictures of his works, accompanied by a text which is an alliance of prose and poetry, a sort of what in olden times might have been called "left handed marriage" of the two.

It is a handsome work, with excellent pictures, and gives a striking résumé of his strange and sinister talent. In fact, I don't know whether it should not be called a strange and sinister genius. Talent is a mild and inoffensive word which means usually the mediocre. And Szukalski is not mediocre. Just why his vision of the

WOMEN'S CLUB PAGE

Windsor Park Club Will Give Charity Ball in January

By Kate Webber.

WITH holiday plans already taken care of, or at least under way, members of women's clubs throughout the city are looking toward plans for the new year, and to the events of interest which always give impetus to the last half of the club season.

One of the events of early January interesting to the residents of that community will be an informal charity ball to be given at the clubrooms on Jan. 4 by the Windsor Park Woman's club. Mrs. S. Y. Patterson is in charge of arrangements for the affair, the proceeds from which will go toward furthering the club's varied activities.

The club also is giving its Christmas program on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when readings and music will provide the program. At 3:15 a frolic will be given for children of the members.

The Windsor Park Woman's club is among the oldest in the city, having been organized twenty-six years ago for the purpose of study and work for the advancement of philanthropy and the arts.

One of the club's proudest achievements has been the preservation of the community's wonderful beach. Through the efforts of members a shelter house has been provided, and Mrs. Moses J. Purvin has aided the club in having the beach kept under the city's control.

Interesting work for the civics and philanthropy committee always has been found in the ever present problem of the many workers in the steel mills not far away. With the heads of families temporarily out of work their dependents can turn to these public spirited women for help in time of stress.

The club members also have interested themselves in helping to keep undesirable business out of the community. The officers and various committees, keeping thus in close touch with their greatest pride, their community, have aided in making it a community of homes and a pleasant place in which to rear children.

A public speaking class is a feature of the club, having Mrs. C. H. Samson as its leader. Other interests include assistance for the Vocational Supervision league in keeping children in school, also work for ex-service men, as well as local philanthropies.

Mrs. H. T. Alexander is president of the club, and the other officers are Mrs. Cora Doolittle, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Elizabeth Douglas, recording secretary.

MRS. RALPH H. POOLE.

Mrs. Ralph H. Poole of Lake Forest is the newly elected president of the Ravinia club. Mrs. William Sutherland of Glencoe, the retiring president, has become one of the vice presidents and the chairman of the children's day committee. The other vice presidents are Mrs. Frank R. Greene of Winnetka, Mrs. Caroline Kirkland of Lake Forest, and Mrs. George Lytton of Highland Park. Mrs. Arthur F. Byfield of Highland Park is recording secretary; Mrs. George S. Parker of Winnetka, corresponding secretary, and Miss Juliette Brown of Evanston, treasurer. The annual meeting was held on Friday morning at the Blackstone.

MRS. JAMES L. HOUGHTELING JR.

A sale of gift articles begins tomorrow at the Eli Bates shop, Michigan avenue and Ontario street, and will continue until Christmas. The proceeds will be used to provide more materials and more work for the mothers in the neighborhood of the Eli Bates Settlement house. Mrs. James L. Houghteling Jr. will assist at the sale this week.

MRS. H. T. ALEXANDER.
[Mabel Sykes Photo.]

The Windsor Park Woman's club, of which Mrs. H. T. Alexander is president, will celebrate its twenty-six years of existence on Jan. 4, when the members will give a charity ball at the clubrooms, 74th street and Coles avenue.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS

Club reports will be given at the meeting of the Chicago Woman's club on Wednesday at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Levy Mayer will tell of her work as chairman of the committee on friendly cooperation with ex-service men, and Mrs. Marion Craig Wentworth will read from her new play, "The Singing Globe." The monthly meeting of the Southern Woman's club will be held on Thursday at 12:30 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Walter Smith, 5719 Midway park.

The annual Christmas party for orphans and crippled children, sponsored by the Chicago Culture club, will be given tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Hotel La Salle. The program will include excerpts from the opera, "Hansel and Gretel," a short story hour, and the appearance of Santa Claus. Mrs. E. J. Strawbridge is chairman of the affair. On Friday from 2 until 4:30 o'clock the club will give a Christmas party and program for the patients at the Jackson Park hospital. Mrs. Charles Kraft will have charge.

There will be a meeting of the Chicago Outdoor Art league on Tuesday, with luncheon at 12:30 at the Chicago Woman's club. A Christmas program will follow.

Mrs. Junius C. Haag and Mrs. Louise Harrison Slade will have charge of the concert of the Musicians Club of Women to be held tomorrow afternoon in Recital hall.

A round table meeting of the I Will Woman's club will be held on Tuesday afternoon.

The December meeting and Christmas party of the Dental Woman's club will be held on Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock at the Morrison hotel. Miss May Wycoff will be the guest.

There will be a luncheon meeting of the Connecticut colony on Friday, followed by a business meeting and social hour.

The Prairie State club will meet on Tuesday at 2:30 o'clock at the Blackstone to complete plans for the distribution of Christmas baskets.

Le Cercle Francais will give a members' program on Tuesday when brief talks, music, and a one act play will be given.

The Lake City Woman's club will meet on Wednesday at the Morrison hotel. Luncheon will be followed by cards.

There will be a meeting of the North Carolina colony on Tuesday at the Great Northern hotel to complete plans for the filling and distribution of Christmas baskets.

The Midwest chapter, Alden Kindred of America, will hold its tenth annual celebration of Forefathers' day at the Palmer house on Tuesday evening. Dinner will be served at 6:30, after which there will be addresses by the president, Mrs. Gertrude Alden Nesly, and the Rev. Alexander Karr. A musical and literary program will be given.

The December meeting of the Andoka Philanthropic club will be held on Tuesday at 11 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Harry J. King, 3506 Flournoy street. Following luncheon the members will sew and prepare gifts for children.

An open meeting of the Woman's Protective association will be held on Friday at 2 o'clock in room 1106, city hall. Judge Arnold Heap will speak.

There will be a meeting of the junior auxiliary of the Douglas Park day and night nursery today at 3 o'clock at Washington hall, State-Lake building.

At the morning meeting of the Chicago Woman's Ideal club on Thursday there will be a speaker from the Association of Commerce, also a food demonstration. In the afternoon the speakers will be Mrs. Addie F. Homrighouse and David E. Shanahan, speaker of the house of representatives in the state legislature. There also will be music.

SOUTH SIDE CLUBS

Miss Julie R. Adams will conduct the current events class of the Englewood Woman's club tomorrow morning, and there will be a special musical program. Christmas plays will be given at the afternoon session.

There will be a meeting of the home and educational department of the Wheaton Woman's club on Tuesday afternoon at the city hall.

Christmas donations will be received at the River Forest Woman's club on Tuesday afternoon. A baking demonstration will be given.

The woman's auxiliary of the Colonial club of Oak Park will give a Christmas party on Friday afternoon for children of the members, who will provide gifts for children of poor families in the community.

Club Ethics

By Maude Swaim Evans.

FOUR members met at the club luncheon table—the indifferent one, the bereaved one, the lonely one, and the one who was a public official.

"I haven't seen you at the club for a long time," said the lonely member to the indifferent one.

"No; I have so many other interests I don't get around often, but I'm always sure of seeing you three here when I do come."

"I attend as often as I can," replied the lonely one. "I consider it a great privilege. I'm the last of my line—I don't know of a single living relative—and so the friendships and the companionship I find here are the greatest joys I have in life."

"I suppose, under such circumstances, one would feel that way," agreed the indifferent one, "but I have oodles of relatives."

"Since we've turned this into an experience meeting," the public official commented, "I want to say that to this club belongs the credit for any success I may have had in public life. Here I found the opportunity to develop ability I never dreamed I possessed."

"I'm not seeking public office," parried the indifferent one, with a self-satisfied look.

"I'm glad of this chance to tell you a little of what this club meant to me after my husband was taken away," the bereaved one contributed softly. "In it I found sympathy and a chance to work. I'm positive my work on the service committee saved my reason."

"I can understand how the club has been a help to you all in your special cases," the indifferent one agreed, "but——"

The public official stopped her. "Even if the club can't give you anything, you might give the club something. There's a certain amount of service due from every woman."

"I suppose so," acquiesced the indifferent one. "Maybe I'll find time for it some day," and she sallied forth to a matinee.

"O, Lord, please make the indifferent different," prayerfully quoted the public official.

New Home for Arts Club.

don't think the many members the Chicago Arts club realized what institution it had become until they found itself temporarily without a home. This condition was unexpected, as the members of the committee having in charge the selection of a new home, when the one at 610 South Michigan avenue was given up last year, thought that quarters in that building new building, the London Assurance and Guarantee building, which overlooks the river gate of the city with the Wrigley tower, were assured the club. But you know what often comes to the best laid plans of mice and men. Mrs. Jacob Baur, Eames McVeagh, and F. J. Wrightman struggled all summer long—during the president, Mrs. John A. Carpenter's absence in Europe—to secure permanent quarters. Since her return these have been decided upon, and when certain changes and decorations are accomplished the members of the Arts club will find themselves in delightful suites of artistic surroundings in the North Michigan building, where a roomy suite on the second floor has been taken on a long lease. This extends 200 feet on the south frontage of the building, from Michigan avenue to Rush street.

Arthur Heun is to transform the 6,000 square feet which comprise the space allotted to the club, into charming suites of galleries and clubrooms, with well designed vistas and many delightful nooks. It is situated exactly the same distance north from Madison street that the former rooms were south of this dividing thoroughfare. Therefore, it is as convenient to those of its former habitués as the old place, and to many it is even more centrally located.

Meanwhile, though homeless, the arts club is not out of business. It has a constantly changing exhibit in the gallery allotted to it at the Art Institute. On the eighteenth of this month a collection of Picasso's paintings, which has attracted frantic attention in New York and other eastern cities, will be shown by the Arts club gallery. Picasso is considered by many critics the greatest of modern in the art world. Certainly he is more discussed than any one else. It is a great opportunity for Chicago to see some of the characteristic canvases of this noted painter. Besides this, the Arts club is planning musical evenings in January and a costume ball in February, which will probably be the final occasion of the kind in this club's social season. After that time kn[illegible] generally scatter and go, ca[illegible]

MISS JEAN MARY ANDERSON.

Among the Travelers.

Mrs. Leverett Thompson and her daughter, Miss Laura Thompson, are leaving here in early January for China, taking in Honolulu and the Philippines en route. They will be gone until some time in the late spring, when they will return to open their house in Lake Forest. Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Pike are others who plan a trip abroad in the near future. They are to sail on Jan. 8 from New York on the Italian mail steamer Duilio, and will land at Monaco to continue their tour by motor car through France. They will return to their Lake Forest home some time in May.

Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, who with her three young sons is now at the Lake Shore Drive hotel, is taking them south to Miami in a few weeks. Chauncey McCormick, at present in the west on business, will join her there later in the winter. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Deering, who have a place near Miami, have taken a house for her not far from theirs.

The arrival here of Mrs. Herbert Stone on Dec. 27 to visit her uncle, Edward T. Blair, at 1516 Lake Shore drive, will be the signal for a great deal of entertaining in her honor. She is a member of the numerous and well known McCormick family, the Chicago Medicis. Her father is William G. McCormick, who now makes his home in Virginia. She is also a sister of Chauncey McCormick, the last of his family left in Chicago. She herself was Miss Mary McCormick, and is well known in Baltimore, New York, and on the north shore of Boston, where she often spends her summers.

Her husband, the late Herbert Stone, was one of the most popular men who ever lived in Chicago. He and his brother, the late E. M. Stone Jr., founded, with Harrison Rhodes, that clever but defunct periodical, "The Chap Book," one of the most interesting literary experiments ever tried out here. Herbert Stone lost his life in the sinking of the Lusitania. He was seen by some of his fellow passengers to take off and give his life preserver to Mme. Du Page, the wife of the well known Belgian war doctor. Both Mme. Du Page and Mr. Stone perished in spite of his gallant self-sacrifice. Mrs. Stone is bringing with her her only daughter, Miss Noel Stone, a young girl still in her teens.

Their Presence Is Commanded.

In most gorgeous French, with elaborate and artistic designs and marvelous curlicues, the invitations to the annual Twelfth-night ball, announce that, "In the name of his majesty, Louis, by the grace of God, king of France and of Navarre, your presence is commanded at the White ball, which will be held in the Hall of Festivals, in the Royal palace, on Jan. 4, in the year of grace, at 10 o'clock." It is signed by that well known chap, the Duke of Roquelaure, and if you don't know him may the Lord have mercy on your soul, for you won't get an invitation to what will be a smart and beautiful affair. All the guests are, by royal decree, commanded to dress entirely in white, men as well as women.

The period taken for this affair was one of white wigs and perukes, a most becoming style of headgear, though affected at a time when it was easier to wear such headdress than to wash and brush and keep the hair in good condition. Also, the folk of that time, even the kings and nobles, not having hot and cold water, or porcelain tubs, were rather prone to use strong scents to hide their unbathed state from the olfactory senses. But, as the French say, "Nous avons changé tout ça" and can copy their costumes and their manners (they had courtly ways) without imitating their habits. And these unwashed but ornamental royalties and courtiers were a great advance on their immediate predecessors, either on the continent or in England. The courts of the Louises, from the "Grand Monarch" to the luckless sixteenth of his name, were brilliant and dazzling in the general darkness that prevailed at that time. It was soon after the close of the Thirty Years' war, when the armies of France, Spain, Sweden, and the Holy Roman empire had made a desert of Germany. The Italian renaissance had spread to northern Europe, and was influencing the manners and habits as well as the art and architecture of the neighboring countries.

The setting for the ball to be given on Jan. 4 will be that of an age which was decorative. The brilliant candlelight, mirrors, white woodwork, formal gardens, broad terraces, balustraded steps, and other characteristics of the palaces and parks of that time made a stunning background for the intrigues, love affairs, and romances that made that era famous. The men and women who make up Chicago society today may have similar affairs, but they have no such striking and picturesque setting. Beyond the beautiful and splendid French parks and palaces was an oppressed land, a destitute and wretched peasantry, darkness, and suffering. The contrasts between the idle, gay society and the ground down toilers do not exist today, but we may copy the picture without copying the spirit behind it.

Playing Santa Claus.

In contrast with every other previously organized social machine, how ours of today stands out in its works and attitude toward the less fortunate members of every community! And of all our enterprises to ameliorate unhappy conditions there is none of wider scope and greater beneficence than such an organization as our visiting nurse associations. Practically every large town has one such to carry light and hope into troubled and darkened household. The Chicago V. N. A. is one of the pioneers in this form of charity. Their last report listed that its gray gowned nurses (angels of mercy, they should be called) had cared for 87,000 patients and in this work made 262,000 visits. As the report says: "There is no home so remote, no weather so formidable, that the nurse cannot make the journey to the place of need."

MISS MARGARET SEDGWICK.
[Koshoe Photo.]
The engagement of Miss Margaret Sedgwick to Norman Elliott Bengston, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bengston of 4533 Greenview avenue, has been announced by Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Sedgwick of Highland Park.

The V. N. A. not only cares for the sick and suffering it also plays Santa Claus to the little children in the homes to which the nurses are called. In this work the association is helped by many well to do, healthy, and happy youngsters. The children of the Chicago Latin school are contributing over 100 toys, carefully and cleverly made by the boys in the manual training department, while the girls from a Lake Forest public school have, with equal skill, dressed over 100 dolls, working under the direction of Mrs. Uri Grannis. These will be distributed in many a poverty stricken home and bring joy to many a small lass. The rest of the toys contributed by members of this association have also been chosen and packed by them. In addition there will be Christmas parties given for the victims of infantile paralysis in the recreation houses in Sherman and Pulaski parks. Mrs. Albert A. Sprague has special charge of this part of the work and is planning all sorts of stunts and entertainment to bring happiness and smiles to these afflicted youngsters.

Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy is president of the association; Mrs. James M. Heyworth is first vice president; Mrs. Charles Schweppe is second vice president; Mrs. Uri B Grannis is corresponding secretary; Mrs. George R. Nichols is recording secretary; Mrs. Albert H. Wolff is treasurer, and Mrs. Joseph T. Ryerson is assistant treasurer. Miss Edna Foley is superintendent of the nurses, and Mrs. Charles G. King is chairman of the nurses' committee, while Mrs. Albert A. Sprague is chairman of the committee on the after care and study of infantile paralysis. Others interested in the V. N. A. are Mrs. Henry N. Tuttle, Mrs. James C. Hutchins, Mrs. Earle Reynolds, Mrs. James L. Houghteling, Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, Mrs. Noble B. Judah, Mrs. Charles E. Brown, Miss Naomi Donnelly, and Miss Margaret Conover.

The association is supported by contributions which are raised without great difficulty by the committee, each member of which binds herself to collect a certain amount annually. This obviates the necessity of raising necessary funds by more strenuous ways, such as drives, entertainments, and benefits. The members of this association rather pride themselves on this method of obtaining funds. It certainly is the ideal way to accomplish what they want, but it is not always possible to get the public to support a charity in this way. This same moneyed but unenlightened public has generally to be coaxed and cozened into parting with its pelf for the maintenance of some benevolent enterprise of which it heartily approves.

[Wallinger Photo.]
The wedding of Miss Mary Theresa Lamphier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Lamphier of 837 West 54th place, and John P. Kenny, son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick H. Kenny of 7701 Morgan street, took place on Thanksgiving morning in the Visitation church. Mr. and Mrs. Kenny will be at home after Jan. 1 at 7527 South Shore drive.

In time, when we come more out into the light of a clearer understanding, it is probable that all our giving will be scientifically done and administered. Then there will be a complete coördination and coöperation between the various charities, so that there will be a big general fund to which every one in the community, even those with small incomes, will contribute in proportion to his or her means, and which will be apportioned among the charities according to the necessities of each. There will not be, as is often the case now, a discrimination between those benevolent enterprises which are run and cherished by the rich members of the community and which are generally better endowed than other more needy and perhaps more valuable agents for relief which have not such wealthy patrons.

Also, it is to be hoped that in that millennium the giving will not be left, as it now is, to the pitiful minority of generous, public spirited individuals who now carry on the good works of the city. How prosperous citizens, such as you and I know well, can square it with their consciences not to do their share in the maintenance of these enterprises it is hard to understand. Perhaps they cherish the fond delusion that they and their lack of response to appeals for help are unnoticed in the throng. If so, that foolish ostrich is a wise bird compared to them. All the sands of Sahara cannot hide even the tips of their noses, much

Ravinia Auxiliary Meets.

At the annual meeting last Friday morning at the Blackstone of the women's auxiliary of the Ravinia opera association, Mrs. Ralph Poole of Lake Forest was elected president; Mrs. William Sutherland of Highland Park (former president), first vice president; Mrs. Frank R. Greene of Winnetka, second vice president; Mrs. Arthur F. Byfield of Highland Park, recording secretary; Mrs. George F. Parker of Winnetka, corresponding secretary; Miss Juliette Brown of Evanston, treasurer. Mrs. Sutherland took the chairmanship of the Thursday afternoon concerts for children, with Mrs. Laird Bell of Winnetka, Mrs. Annette Jones of Highland Park, and Mrs. Mauride Mandeville of Lake Bluff to assist her on this important committee. This Ravinia auxiliary is somewhat similar to the Friends of Opera in its relations to the main organization in arousing and sustaining interest in opera.

Well Worth a Visit.

On Thursday the sixth annual midwinter exhibit of the Illinois chapter of the Wild Flower Preservation society will open at the Art institute. The Alexander McKinlock Memorial court will be the setting for the main part of the show. Mrs. Walter S. Brewster and Mrs. Edward Hasler are in charge of the decorations and arrangements of the exhibit. There will be straw flowers, Chinese lanterns (the name of a flower), statice sinuata, lunaria, winter bouquets, and huge vases of soft grasses. Also gourds raised by Mrs. Charles L. Hutchinson at her summer home in Lake Geneva, Wis., which will be arranged to form a centerpiece for a tea table, at which the Mmes. Brewster, F. C. Farwell, and William E. Linn will preside at the opening of the affair on Thursday afternoon from 2 until 5 o'clock.

In the center of the court there will be a Christmas tree, which will bear the label of Colorado, to show that it was removed from the forest by order of the forestry bureau and in order to save the neighboring trees. It is only this kind of Christmas tree cutting that this society approves of, and it urges that substitutes be found for Christmas greens, which frequently denude the forests and leave desolation and ruin behind them when they are ruthlessly torn from their places. The National Wholesale Florists' association has agreed to cooperate with the society by recommending that florists display in their windows such substitutes as evergreen ivy, hawthorn berries, barberries, statice, and euonymous, instead of holly, laurel, and pine. These latter are said to be fast disappearing because of the wholesale cutting for commercial purposes.

There will also be specimens of plant and animal life, fish in aquaria, shells, and other sea products. Mrs. F. T. Avery is chairman of the committee on exhibits. Mrs. Charles B. Cory is vice chairman. It will be well worth a visit and also consideration of the mission which is the underlying motive of the society.

WEDDINGS

No wedding or engagement announcement will be published in The Tribune unless it bears the signature, address, and telephone number of a parent, either of the bride or the bridegroom. THE YEAR'S LAST AND GREATEST SALE OF

Overcoats

Tip off your friend — bring him along — he'll be thankful to you for letting him in on this sale.

Positively the Last $15 Overcoat Sale of 1923. Be Sure to Attend Tomorrow!

Thousands of Them—The Result of a Masterstroke in Buying; Wonder Values

The continued mild weather worked havoc with manufacturers' calculations. They produced for a bumper season and found one of the leanest harvests in many years. They were stuck to the gills with overcoats and short of money. To relieve this condition they were willing to "let go" and "let go" they did when we made a few of them a "spot cash" proposition. As a consequence, you, men, are offered by far the year's greatest opportunity of acquiring a splendid, stylish, warm, serviceable and all around desirable overcoat at a fraction of its real value!

These Overcoats Were Made to Sell for $30, $35 and $40, Now

Heavy plaid back overcoats, fancy contrasting back overcoats, ulsters, ulsterettes, great coats, Chesterfields; belts all around, half belts, convertible collars; in a word, every wanted model that made its appearance this season. Also fur collared and fur lined coats.

The materials are all wool, heavy overcoatings; fleecy fabrics, vicunas, friezes, Scotch tweeds, imported materials, herringbones, diagonals, etc., etc. The entire scale of colors and shades is represented, from the light grays, through the popular tans, greens, heathers, to the dark oxford grays and black.

Sizes for Men and Young Men to 46

Extra space, extra salesmen. Every sale final. No C. O. D. orders without a deposit. No mail or phone orders. No refunds or exchanges. None sold to dealers.

Also—Men's 1 and 2 Pant Suits

"All wool suits in the very latest models for men and young men." This, in short, describes the bargains. These are suits that must not be associated with a $15 price, as there is not a one in the lot worth less than $25.00 and there are also plenty of $30 and $35 values! Hard and soft finished worsteds, cassimeres, tweeds, blue serges, etc. An assortment worthy of being a companion sale to our $15 overcoat sale. Single and double breasted models; half, full and quarter lined. Sizes to 46, including stouts.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. William O. Coleman of Indian Hill announce the birth of a daughter at St. Luke's hospital, to be named Rowena Kirby-Smith, after her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Randolph Buck of Hubbard Woods, and her mother.

Miss Natalie Ogden Frees, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman E. Frees of 5450 East View park, is among the girls returning from Miss Bennett's school at Millbrook, N. Y., for the Christmas holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Terry of Highland Park have gone to their winter place in Miami, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Salade Jr. and their three children, of Central Point, Ore., are in Chicago to spend the holidays with Mrs. Salade's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Westerlund of 417 Barry avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. George T. Mickle of 633 Waveland avenue are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son on Dec. 10 at St. Luke's hospital. He will be named George T. Jr.

Miss Frances Holbrook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Holbrook of Highland Park, returns this week from Boston, where she has been since October.

Mrs. F. C. Caldwell of Oak Park departed this week for California, where she was called because of the illness of her daughter, Mrs. J. M. Lockyer, formerly Miss Constance Caldwell. Mrs. Caldwell will remain in the west until the recovery of her daughter is assured.

Mrs. William J. Louderback of Highland Park has returned from Boston, where she was called by the serious illness of her son, Darragh. He is now recuperating at White Sulphur Springs with his father and sister, Miss Elizabeth. They will all return for Christmas.

Miss Isabel W. Dudley of the Hyde Park hotel has returned to Chicago after an absence of two months spent in Detroit and Grand Rapids, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Arnold of 440 North Normal parkway have gone to their winter residence in Biloxi, to be there until spring.

Varied Activities of Women

Four prominent members of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom are making an automobile trip through Pennsylvania for the purpose of spreading the gospel of peace throughout that state.

Miss Margaret Bondfield has been elected chairman of the general council of the British Trade Union congress. She is the first woman to hold this post, the most important in the trades union movement in England.

Miss L. E. Cheeseman, former curator of the London zoo, heads an expedition to the coral and volcanic islands near South America for the purpose of ascertaining how in the course of many generations they have adapted themselves to new conditions.

Mrs. Julia Freeman, who was director of the Baltimore chapter of the Red Cross during the war, has been appointed passenger representative of the Merchants and Miners' Transportation company. She is the first woman to hold the position, and is now creating a department to facilitate traveling for women.

At the age of 69 years Mrs. Rachel Neill of Orange, N. J., operates the busiest planing mill in New Jersey. There is little about milling that Mrs. Neill doesn't know. She can feed a buzzsaw as skillfully as any man; plane a board as fast as her fastest worker, and there is no machine in her place that she can't operate.

Mrs. Desmond Humphreys, familiar to the reading public on both sides of the Atlantic under her pen name of "Rita," has been writing books for more than forty years. She published her first successful novel at the age of 17.

Dr. Ellen F. Pendleton, president of Wellesley college, is the sole representative of her sex on the jury which will award the prize in the $100,000 contest established by Edward W. Bok of Philadelphia.

Caroline Herowitz of New York, said to be the only woman rag dealer in the country, sold 1,000,000 pounds of rags last year.

Mrs. A. A. De Loach of Atlanta is the proprietor and active head of a large concern devoted to the manufacture of sawmill machinery.

In Italy, custom and antagonism to women workers confine them largely to such trades as tailoring, textiles, and the tilling of the fields.

Five prominent women were fined in one day at the New York custom house for bringing in fur coats from abroad without paying duty on them.

Declaring that the work was taking all their time and making it impossible to do justice to their homes, Milwaukee's two police women have resigned.

Como, Mont., does not rank among the first flight of American postoffices in point of size or volume of business, but it does claim to have for its head the oldest postmistress in the United States—Mrs. Mary Harlan, now past 83 years of age.

The only woman candidate for either branch of the New York legislature this fall will be Miss Sally Peters, member of an old Boston family and first cousin of ex-Mayor Andrew J. Peters.

The high wages demanded by painters prompted seventeen members of the Ladies' Aid society of Uniondale chapel, Hempstead, L. I., to don overalls and jumpers and put a bright coat of paint on the outside of the chapel.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Holy Name Society Meet Today Open to All Members

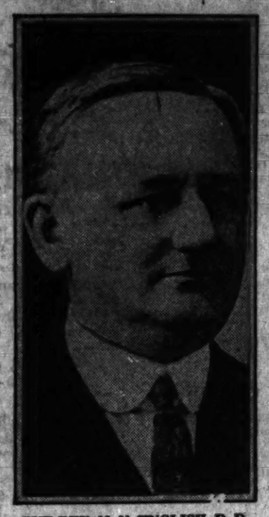
By The Rev. W. B. Norton.

ARCHBISHOP G. W MUNDELEIN will address the final quarterly meeting this year of the Archdiocesan union of the Holy Name society today at 3 o'clock at Our Lady of Sorrows school hall, Albany avenue and Van Buren street. Because of the large size of the hall it has been decided to open the meeting to all members of the Holy Name society and not confine attendance, as in the past, to the appointed delegates.

There will be benediction of the blessed sacrament at 2:30 in the church. John J. Hayes will preside at the Holy Name meeting, and short addresses will be made by Bishop E. F. Hoban, director of the society; the Rt. Rev. Thomas P. Bona, director of big brother work; and the Rev. Daniel Byrnes, director of organization. The music will be under the leadership of Joseph N. Moos, assisted by the Catholic Casino chorus. The next meeting will be held in March, 1924.

The Rev. John Foster, rector of St. Paul's Reformed Episcopal church, Adams street and Winchester avenue, the church so long served by the late Bishop Samuel Fallows, will hold a commemorative service today at 11 o'clock in honor of the late bishop.

Airplanes will be employed by the American Baptist Publication society for the use of colporters in carrying Bibles, tracts, and religious books. Contributions have come to the Rev. W. H. Main, D. D., associate general secretary and formerly pastor of the First Baptist church, Chicago, for the purchase of the planes. The society will celebrate its centennial next year and it is hoped to secure 100,000 persons who will enroll in the Bible Reading league. The translation of the four gospels by Mrs. Helen Barrett Montgomery, former moderator of the Baptist northern convention, and the first woman, it is said, who has published a translation of the scriptures, is being used in the study.



THE REV. M. N. ENGLISH, D. D.

Dr. English is pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Oak Park, North Oak Park avenue and Superior street, where ground was broken last Sunday for a new church edifice to be built of Bedford stone, the total cost of which, with furnishings, will be $450,000. Dr. English has been pastor of the church three years. Before coming to Oak Park he was district superintendent of the Decatur district, pastor of First church, Danville; Grace church, Bloomington, and Centenary church, Jacksonville, all in Illinois.

An interesting feature of his relations to the Jacksonville church is that his father, the Rev. D. W. English, was pastor of this same church when the Oak Park pastor was born. Dr. English was a delegate to the last Methodist general conference. He is a member of the committee of twenty five of the council of the boards on world service, and a member of the special committee of twenty-one appointed to reorganize and coördinate the boards for the next four years. He is a graduate of Illinois Wesleyan university, from which he also received the degree of doctor of divinity, and a student at Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston.

The Oak Park church has had high record in benevolent giving in the denomination. It is expected that work will continue on the new church building until it is completed.

Dr. Frederick C. Eiselen, professor of biblical literature of Northwestern university and dean of Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston, will sail next Saturday for Palestine and Egypt. He hopes to be able to study the tomb of King Tut. He is booked to land on his return voyage on March 17. Dr. Eiselen is the recipient of several doctorate degrees and is the author of several volumes on biblical themes.

C. S. Shank, president of the Baptist Northern convention, has been authorized to proceed to Japan to investigate conditions there caused by the earthquake and fire. He expects to make the visit in February. It is thought that at least $500,000 will be necessary to rehabilitate the churches and institutions allied with the Baptist denomination in Japan. The next meeting of the Baptist Northern convention will be held in Milwaukee, Wis., May 28.

A Christmas cantata will be sung this evening in the Central Park Methodist Episcopal church, Central Park avenue and Huron street, the Rev. Nelson L. Bossing, pastor.

The Rev. A. L. Allais, pastor of the French Methodist Episcopal church, which meets in Room 200 Fine Arts building, will speak at 8 this evening on the subject, "My Trip Through France."

A concert will be given at the Wicker Park community center, North Robey and Evergreen streets, today at 2:15 under the direction of Michael Worobief of Moscow, Russia.

Beginning next Thursday the Church Extension society of the Presbyterian church will distribute Christmas cheer among the needy recommended by Presbyterian institutions. Presbyterians are asked to send Christmas baskets to the various church institutions, which will see that the help reaches the right families. If money is sent it will help to pay for baskets for distribution. Church Extension headquarters are in the Chicago temple, Clark and Washington streets.

The Rev. W. Irving Maurer, pastor of the First Congregational church, Columbus, O., as successor of the late widely known Washington Gladden, has accepted the presidency of Beloit college, Beloit, Wis., and will enter upon his duties early next year. He is a graduate of Beloit in the class of 1904.

Twenty-seven Presbyterian churches in the Chicago presbytery averaged last year gifts for benevolence of $5 or over per capita, according to the report just issued. Fourth church, the Rev. John Timothy Stone, pastor, contributed an average of $26.52 per member. The six of highest rank, each averaging more than $10 per member, were, in order next to Fourth church, Oak Park, First, $21.43; La Grange, $12.30; Wilmette, $11.50; Highland Park, $10.95; Evanston, First, $10.45.

The Chicago Congregational Missionary and Extension society has received subscriptions and cash of $100,000 towards its loan revolving fund of $250,000, which is needed to help new and needy churches over periods of difficulty in getting started or in carrying forward building enterprises which need temporary help. The announcement is contained in the forty-first annual report of the society made by the superintendent, the Rev. J. D. Nichols, D. D.

Dr. John Thompson, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, which will meet in the Chicago temple, Clark and Washington streets, when the church part of the skyscraper is ready for dedication, some time near Easter, will speak in Columbus, O., next Thursday, where Methodists own downtown property which they are thinking of utilizing after the plan of the Chicago temple, although on a smaller scale. Recently Dr. Thompson made a visit to Akron, O., speaking on the subject of the downtown temple idea.

Extensive alterations and repairs are nearly completed in the interior of St. James' Episcopal church, Cass and Huron streets. The whole floor of the nave has been lowered 4 feet 6 inches. The north transept has been made into a gallery, the floor of which is at the former level of the main floor of the church. This gallery is inclosed by a screen, a memorial to John S. Miller, for many years a vestryman of St. James'. The choir of the church has been given greater depth by extending the chancel floor eight feet to the west. The console of the new organ is in the choir, having been removed from the transept. A new heating plant is installed, and the outer wall of the south transept is underpinned and reinforced by a solid wall of concrete.

There are several memorials besides that to Mr. Miller to be given. The new lights will be a memorial to Mrs. Malcolm Caruthers by her two daughters, Mrs. William T. Beale and Mrs. Robert J. Cary. Another memorial is a tablet for John Zimmerman, sexton and verger for more than forty years.

The interior walls are decorated and the furniture and woodwork refinished. The total cost of the improvements and alternations is over $30,000. Tallmadge & Watson are the architects.

The total budgets of the church federations in the United States now total $430,300. Individual city budgets range from $1,200 to $28,000 a year. Some form of church federation is recognized now in nearly every large city and in many smaller cities.

The popularity of summer institutes in church work is illustrated in the report made last week at the Epworth League institute of the Methodist Episcopal church at the Edgewater Beach hotel. There were 35,000 young people who attended 128 such institutes last summer in various parts of the country. Because next year is the year for the election of the President of the United States special courses will be given in Christian citizenship, welfare legislation, law enforcement, and world peace.

Meetings addressed by Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, evangelist, formerly of London, England, which began last Wednesday in the North Shore Congregational church, Sheridan road and Wilson avenue, will continue until Wednesday evening. The meetings are held at 3:30 and 8 p. m. The Rev. J. C. O'Hair, pastor, is in general charge.

The Rev. John A. Earl, D. D., newly elected editor of the Baptist Standard, Chicago, was formerly pastor of the Belden Avenue Baptist church, Belden avenue and North Halsted street.

Make Fig Jam for Christmas Dinner

Easily made at home from Alice Bradley's New Recipe

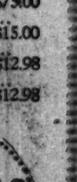
Something unusual, delicious and inexpensive is eagerly sought by every housewife for her Christmas Dinner, and Miss Alice Bradley's new recipe for Fig Jam meets every requirement, and, besides, is easily made. Here is her famous recipe, which, by-the-way, makes the finest layer cake filling you ever tasted.

FIG JAM

Soak ½ pound figs in 1 cup water over night. Cut in strips using scissors. Add juice of 1 lemon and 2¼ cups sugar, bring to boiling point, and boil vigorously one minute, stirring to prevent burning. Add ½ cup (½ bottle) CERTO, again bring to boiling point, remove from fire, let stand until thickened slightly, then pour into glasses.

The above is only one of nearly a hundred special recipes found in the book on Jams, Jellies and Marmalades prepared by Alice Bradley, Principal of Miss Farmer's School of Cookery, Boston, Mass. Other recipes in this book which make a special appeal to the housewife at this time of the year are those for making jams from canned and dried fruits, such as dried Apricot Jam, which is inexpensive and especially good. Then there are recipes for making jellies from bottled fruit juices, perhaps the most interesting of which is Grape Jelly made from bottled Grape Juice, which is really much finer than that usually made from fresh grapes.

Try this new recipe for your Christmas Dinner, and if you are interested in making the very finest Jams, Jellies and Marmalades—many of them entirely new—at the lowest cost and with the least labor, write for a free copy of Alice Bradley's 24-page book, illustrated in six colors, "Jam, Jelly and Marmalade Making," to the Douglas Pectin Corporation, Room 1029 Granite Building, Rochester, N. Y. Better write today and get your copy before Christmas so you can try some of the other new recipes for your Holiday spreads.



IMPORTANT—Certo is pure concentrated fruit pectin made entirely from fruit, and supplies the jelly making principle which is lacking in figs and many other dried fruits and fruit juices. That is why jams and jellies made by the short boiling Certo process look better, taste better, are more easily made and cost less.

REAL ESTATE—OAK PK., AUSTIN.

BERKSHIRE HIGHLANDS SUBDIVISION.

We are offering the most promising and desirable tract of land in North Oak Park to those who know and appreciate real estate values in this section. This is your last opportunity to secure a 50x125 ft. lot on a fine building line, with essential restrictions, for considerably less than adjoining but equally as desirable sections adjoining North Oak Park property has increased tremendously in values in the last two years, positively the biggest investment opportunity of today. Not a question of development, it is already there, improvements will be installed the early part of 1924.

This property is bounded by Oak Park-av., Euclid, Linden, Greenfield, and Berkshire.

Now is the time to act. Do not delay. Terms reasonable.

HOW TO GET THERE.

Chicago-av. surface line to Oak Park-av. Lake street elevated to Oak Park station, then north of Berkshire.

OWN YOUR APARTMENT IN EVANSTON AND SAVE HALF YOUR RENT.

You can save half your rent by buying an apartment home under The Andridge Co-operative Plan. You enjoy the satisfaction of owning your home without giving up the conveniences of apartment life. You build up your capital and borrowing power instead of accumulating rent receipts and canceled checks. The Andridge Plan features new substantial buildings, careful planning and equipment of interiors, careful selection of neighbors, moderate prices and convenient terms.

THE ANDRIDGE.

A few 3, 4, 5, and 6 room apartments remain unsold in THE ANDRIDGE, a brand new, semi-fireproof building at the southeast corner of Ridge-blvd. and Church-st., Evanston. Ready for immediate occupancy. Beautiful surroundings, convenient to the Northwestern railroad, elevated, and surface lines. Large living rooms, closets, built-in bath tubs, full length tiled showers, tiled kitchen cabinets, recessed ironing boards and many other features which make for convenience and comfort. Initial payment on 3 room home need not exceed $1,200; on 5 room home, $1,750.

THE MARINE.

Another brand new, semi-fireproof building in an ideal home location, southeast corner of Maple-av. and Oran-pl., Evanston; 18 5 room apartments. Ready for occupancy March 1st.

ASK FOR BOOKLETS.

Booklets outlining plan of purchase and giving full description and prices on above buildings will be mailed on request. Representative at THE ANDRIDGE daily from 10 to 6.

EVANSTON

HOME FOR 2 FAMILIES.

Close to the lake, in a section of fine homes, you can buy a duplex home, splendidly built, as an ownership proposition. Six rooms, 2 beds, sun parlor, and sleeping porch in one apt., and 5 rooms, 2 baths, and 2 porches in other apt.; garage. The lot is large enough to permit the erection of an additional small home later if desired. Two families can buy this duplex together and make a very real saving in rent.

BUSINESS PROPERTY.

An attractive buy for a builder or speculator. Large lot in fine location, zoned for 2 story height of business buildings. A wonderful opportunity to build stores with apartments above.

PEERLESS

FACTORY BRANCH.

PEERLESS "66" SUBURBAN SEDAN, 7 PASS. An unforseen circumstance has created an exceptional opportunity for some one. This Suburban Sedan has only been through carefully driven mileage to properly break in the motor. The speedometer registers 5,890. You would have to be told that this car had been driven, for it is impossible to distinguish it from a brand new automobile. It is refinished in maroon and the upholstery of velour upholstery. Bumper, Clymer spotlight, automatic windshield cleaner. This fine car carries our New Car Warranty and the price only $4,000 and is priced for immediate sale at $3,300.

PEERLESS "66" 5 PASS. SEDAN. This popular car has the appearance of new, carries our New Car Warranty, it has been refinished and has new tire equipment. The finished and has new tire equipment. The upholstery and interior finish show no wear, in fact, this car has had but little use and is priced to sell at $2,750. With the only reason we have it to offer for sale, Excellent mechanically; overhauled by us. Paint, upholstery and tires excellent; many extras. Unusual value, $375.

PEERLESS TOURING, "56." 7 PASS. This is a current model Peerless which came to us after but short service, its owner preferring a coupe. It is in fine shape throughout and cannot be distinguished from a new automobile. The service it has had has only consisted in breaking in the motor. As to its entire mechanical condition, it carries our standard new car warranty. With the special understanding closure of plate glass fitted to the Peerless Permanent Top one has sedan-like comfort. This is an exceptional opportunity to secure one of the new Peerless models at a remarkable saving, $2,250.

PEERLESS SEDAN, MODEL "56." This late series "56" sedan comfortably seats seven, yet it is in no sense a bulky, cumbersome car for more expensive in operation than cars which sacrifice needed seating capacity. It is a distinguished conventional type of sedan, and the dark maroon finish gives it a new car appearance. Broadcloth upholstery is like new, having been protected by seat covers. Mechanically this car will give a good account of itself and long, satisfactory service. This sedan is in splendid order, ideal for the family who wants a high grade car without heavy investment and demands absolute value for the money they spend. $1,295.

PORT '23-SPORT, 6 CYL. Without question of doubt the best buy in Chicago, though carefully driven mileage to properly break in the motor. The speedometer registers 5,890. You would have to be told that this car had been driven, for it is impossible to distinguish it from a brand new automobile. It is refinished in maroon and the upholstery of velour upholstery. Bumper, Clymer spotlight, automatic windshield cleaner. This fine car carries our New Car Warranty and the price only $4,000 and is priced for immediate sale at $3,300.

PEERLESS "66" 5 PASS. SEDAN. This popular car has the appearance of new, carries our New Car Warranty, it has been refinished and has new tire equipment. The finished and has new tire equipment. The upholstery and interior finish show no wear, in fact, this car has had but little use and is priced to sell at $2,750. With the only reason we have it to offer for sale, Excellent mechanically; overhauled by us. Paint, upholstery and tires excellent; many extras. Unusual value, $375.

PEERLESS TOURING, "56." 7 PASS. This is a current model Peerless which came to us after but short service, its owner preferring a coupe. It is in fine shape throughout and cannot be distinguished from a new automobile. The service it has had has only consisted in breaking in the motor. As to its entire mechanical condition, it carries our standard new car warranty. With the special understanding closure of plate glass fitted to the Peerless Permanent Top one has sedan-like comfort. This is an exceptional opportunity to secure one of the new Peerless models at a remarkable saving, $2,250.

PEERLESS SEDAN, MODEL "56." This late series "56" sedan comfortably seats seven, yet it is in no sense a bulky, cumbersome car for more expensive in operation than cars which sacrifice needed seating capacity. It is a distinguished conventional type of sedan, and the dark maroon finish gives it a new car appearance. Broadcloth upholstery is like new, having been protected by seat covers. Mechanically this car will give a good account of itself and long, satisfactory service. This sedan is in splendid order, ideal for the family who wants a high grade car without heavy investment and demands absolute value for the money they spend. $1,295.
